

ESTABLISHED JUNE 19, 1871.

OMAHA, SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 26, 1895—SIXTEEN PAGES.

SINGLE COPY FIVE CENTS.

REAPING A HARVEST

London Shop Keepers Lying in Wait for Wealthy American Arrivals.

ARE NOW COMING OVER BY THE SCORE

Goellets Receive a Hearty Welcome from the Prince of Wales.

MAY RETURN WITH THEM TO AMERICA

Gossip Concerning the Latest Drawing Room Gradually Leaking Out.

PRINCESS OF WALES WAS NOT SICK

Deceived to Attend Because a Lady to Whom the Prince Had Been Paying Attention Was to Be Presented.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—To the delight of everybody except the undertakers and kindred professions, London had a return of fine weather this week and the great metropolis is overflowing with American tourists, who are occupying the best rooms at the hotels and making things interesting and lively in the fashionable shopping districts. Much attention has been attracted to the early party of distinguished Americans which has been occupying the best apartments at the aristocratic Hotel Bristol since Saturday last. Its members consist of Mr. W. C. Whitney, formerly secretary of the United States navy; Miss Whitney; Mrs. Southgate; Mrs. W. K. Vanerber; accompanied by her son and daughter; Mr. Victor Delcamp; Mrs. Ogden Goelet; and ex-Mayor Hewitt of New York. The baggage of this party filled the hotel lobby and corridors and the arrival of the Americans was the signal for the invasion of their apartments by a small army of dressmakers, tailors and shopmen, who had been lying in wait for the travelers. The Goellets have been deluged with invitations to various aristocratic gatherings, and their presence here, as well as the warm manner in which they have been received, has caused a renewal of the circulation of the rumors that there is a possibility of the Prince of Wales accompanying them to the United States in the fall next. It is reported that the prince's secretaries have been studying the matter for some time past, but that he has not yet decided to do so. The prince's trip to the Mediterranean, when the prince was their guest on board the Whyte Lady, would not be satisfied if the report turns out to be correct. On the other hand, it is reported that the prince's secretaries are endeavoring to bring about a trip to America, as well as to the United States. The subject of the conversation between Messrs. Whitney and Croker is not known, but naturally there are people who are interested in the possibility of the prince's coming to America. It is known, however, that he and his family are going back to the United States shortly and will remain there for the America's cup races.

THE WORLD.

The world. She is only about 10 years old and has inherited the bulk of the late duke's estate, including the Isle of Arran, which alone is worth $5,000,000. The whole of the duke of Hamilton's property was at his own disposal and the rentals already amount to $1,000,000 per year. The duke's death was due to "haunting," as the process of reduction of one's avoirdupois is termed. He had succeeded in frightening himself about sixty pounds, but the process was too much for his vitality. The present duke of Hamilton, a distant relative of the late duke, inherits Hamilton place and barely enough to support the title. A camphor famine is threatened as a result of the war between Japan and China. The price of camphor has recently advanced and Japan is placing the same severe restrictions upon its exportation. Much of the camphor in this country is held by a syndicate. Should a warm summer bring cholera the demand for camphor will be very great and its scarcity will not only interfere with many medical compounds, but will hinder the manufacture of smokeless gunpowder, in which camphor largely enters as an ingredient. As a sign of the times it was announced on Thursday last in the House of Commons that the duke of Cambridge, as the ranger of Hyde Park, has been compelled to give a reluctant consent to the admission into the park of bicyclists. But riders will only be allowed in Hyde Park until 10 a. m.; after that hour they will be excluded until the park is placed in the hands of the ranger. The duke of Cambridge has hitherto been firmly opposed to the admission of bicyclists into the park. THEATRICAL WORLD WAS DULL. The theatrical world has been dull during the present week. The principal event was Jerome K. Jerome's play, "The Prizes Program," produced at the Comedy theater with success. On Thursday the Gately company gave a benefit for their amusing colleague, Edward Payne. Mr. Alfred Rothschild, Elr Edward Lawson and Mr. Harry McCalmont were on the committee. Sir Augustus Harris, by engaging a new prima donna in the place of Mrs. Calve, has done the double stroke of business, for Miss Calve has now signed a contract to appear at Covent Garden toward the end of the season. The queen has as usual taken a box at the opera for the season. Clara Loftus has been engaged at the Empire at a salary of 100 guineas a week. Mr. Howard Gould's Herreshoff twenty-rater, Niagara, since her arrival on the river, has been winning all the races. The Daily Chronicle yesterday, commenting on the dinner, remarked: "That there is no serious breach between the 'greedy' author and the 'generous' publisher' was shown by the presence of a number of publishers, who, from their happy appearance, showed that there is no danger of starvation among them."

MISTAKE AT MEMPHIS

American in London Thinks the Democrats Are Dividing the Party.

PLATFORM ADOPTED IS MOST IMPOLITIC

True and Sensible Enough, Academically Viewed, but Not Sound Politics.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by Press Publishing Company.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—The work of the Reichstag session which has just closed was mainly of a negative character. In an expected parting attack on the government yesterday, Count von Kautz reproached the ministers with this fact. He declared that the members of the Reichstag might as well leave Berlin empty handed as return to their constituencies with "miserable pieces of legislation touching upon sugar and spirits." Such results, he added, could only increase the discontent in the country. The government, he insisted, had done nothing, in spite of all the promises made by the ministers, to relieve agricultural distress, and he demanded that the government either draft a new bill by the autumn or accept his motion to raise the price of cereals. Baron von Manteuffel said that the whole conservative party subscribed to the opinions on this subject of Count von Kautz. "Dr. von Boetticher, imperial secretary of state for the interior, in reply said that he regretted so little had been done during the session, but he added that the government had not felt encouraged to prolong it in the face of such empty benches as had recently been seen in the house. GROWTH OF BIMETALLIC AGITATION. One of the chief features of the session, which has not been without startling incidents, has been the rapid growth of the bimetallic agitation. The bimetallic party in the Reichstag has, in the Prussian Diet, inasmuch as the resolution of the Diet, instead of merely asking the government to call a conference, as the Reichstag did, instructs the chancellor, Prince Hohenlohe, much against his liking, to persuade the Bundesrat to so frame invitations to the monetary conference as to make it plain from the beginning that Germany wishes to bring about the general adoption of the double standard. Dr. Mequel, the Prussian minister of finance, however, in his speeches on the subject in the Diet, while doing his utmost toward the conciliation of the conservatives, is careful to bind the government as little as possible to a definite policy. Practically there is no doubt that the Bundesrat will empower the government to invite the powers to send representatives to a monetary conference. Finding no support for the bill advocated by Count von Kautz, looking to a state monopoly of the sale of grain, they regard the monetary standard as one of the big remedies which they claim the government owes them and they will be satisfied with nothing less. It is interesting that Prince Bismarck, in his recent talk with the Saxon delegation, declared himself to be a bimetallicist, saying that Germany wishes to bring about the general adoption of the double standard. RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES. Rumor still buzzes itself with the probability of a ministerial crisis and that Count von Eulenburg, Count von Waldersee and Count von Radowski, the German ambassador at Madrid, are canvassed as possible successors to Prince Hohenlohe. Emperor William, after indulging in deer stalking to his heart's content, is back in Berlin, looking remarkably well. While a guest at Wierchowski's the emperor was invited to an exhibition given by Herr Fleischer, an inventor of Berlin, on a new fluid. The exhibition took place on the lake near the castle. The inventor poured some of the fluid on the water of the lake, and directly it came in contact with the water it burned upward, giving a high flame on the surface. A strange feature of the exhibition was the fact that the flames could be pushed aside at will by the boatmen on the lake. The emperor was highly interested in the spectacle and expressed the opinion that the invention could be made use of in case of war. Emperor William has painted a fine picture representing Paget of Hibelung in fame, and has presented it to the new German ironclad Ragen, where it adorns the mess room. The empress of Germany and her children will pass part of the hot summer season at Wyck-on-Fohr Island, in the north sea, where four villas have been rented for the use of her majesty and her suite. The measures to be taken in order to counteract the effects of the American petroleum combine are still under consideration by the government. For one thing, it is proposed to differentiate between raw and refined petroleum in the levying of duty, so as to permit the establishment of oil refineries in Germany. It has also been decided to allow the bringing in the general market of mixtures of Russian and American petroleum. Steps for the complete reconciliation of Count von Kautz and his traducers are still proceeding. In accordance with the wishes of the emperor, Duke Gunther of Schleswig-Holstein and Count von Hohenau had to call on Count von Kautz this week and express their sympathies with him. And so the "rest court scandal" arising from the series of anonymous communications, sent for years past to various high personages, is gradually being smoothed over. The chief of the general staff, Count von Schlieffen, is now attending to this matter and the court proceedings which would have been personally distasteful to the emperor have been entirely suspended. Ex-Senator Washburn of Minnesota stopped here for a few days while on his way to Copenhagen. Ex-Mayor John P. Hopkins, ex-Corporation Counsel Henry Rubens and his daughter, and Father Kelly, all of Chicago, are taking the waters at EMS.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now, the platform is in the nature of a threat to those in the party holding different views, while political wisdom demands at this juncture conciliation and not coercion. His second regret is that the platform was not vigorously and emphatically put in the United States in the very front of the movement for calling an international bimetallic conference. Its tone on this most important question is lethargic, as expressing a mere "attitude of readiness" to co-operate with other powers.

HOME EMPTY HANDED

Session of the Reichstag Just Closed Has Accomplished Very Little.

PARTING SHOT AT THE GOVERNMENT

Ministers Reproached for Doing Nothing to Relieve Agricultural Distress.

GROWTH OF BIMETALLISM IN GERMANY

Bismarck's Talk to the Saxon Delegation Gives it an Added Impetus.

RUMORS OF MINISTERIAL CHANGES

Emperor Witnesses the Exhibition of a Naval Invention—Measures to Counteract the Effects of the American Petroleum Combinations.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 25.—(New York World Cablegram.—Special Telegram.)—Commenting on the Memphis convention, briefly reported in the Times this morning, an American gentleman, now visiting London, who has always been a hard money man and has conspicuously advocated the principles at home, said today he much regretted, for two reasons, the action at Memphis yesterday. In a merely academic point of view the platform adopted was true and sensible enough, but politically he thought it unwise. The convention will be everywhere recognized as representing the administration, and therefore as representing one section of the democratic party. The platform will precipitate a serious issue, while neither the near election of congress nor of a president makes it advisable or necessary to pronounce for the party nor to divide the party on it. Now,