Miss Olla Cook, daughter of Justice Cook, heard a ring at the door beel at her residence on South Sixth street last evening, and on going to the door found a rather ragged specimen of humanity who wanted to know several things which she thought were nonof his business. She told him so politely but he insisted on asking impertment ques tions. He attempted to justify his curiosity tions. He attempted to justify his curiosity by saying that his name was Copson and that he was employed on one of the city papers. She was not overwhelmed at this and shut the door in his face. When he had gone she went to a neighboring tele-phone and called up the office of the paper with which the tramp said he was con-nected. She found on furnishing the man at the other end of the line a description of the other end of the line a description o the other end of the line a description of the visitor that he was not entitled to wear the name of Copson and that he was no news-paper man. Miss Cook then reported the case to the police. The fellow lottered around for a little while, but left before the police officer arrived. At a late hour he was still

Man from Oklahoma Adopts a Violent Manner of Paying Debts.

HIS PRESENT ADDRESS IS THE CITY JA'L

Person Whom He Assaulted Claims the Prisoner is a Bad Man Generalty and a Friend of the Late Cherokee Bill.

The Oklahoma plan of settling disputes vas transplanted into Council Bluffs yesterday afternoon by two brash and breezy boys from the wilderness, with great success at first, but subsequent developments may change the look of things. Mike Kennedy and George Simpson were the two Oklahoma boys, and they had with them eleven horses which are at the bottom of the difficulty.

Kennedy and Simpson blew into town om Oklahoma yesterday and spent the entire day admiring the frescoing on the saoon ceilings in various parts of the city through the bottoms of beer schooners. By the middle of the afternoon both were in a ondition that bordered on the hilarious. Simpson had been working for Kennedy for $10 a month, but Kennedy had not kept his salary paid up to date. Simpson insisted on having the money, and said that if he was not paid he would tell where the horses came from, intimating in unmistakable language that the horses were stolen. Kennedy was not brought to taw by this threat, and he coaxed Simpson away from the corner of Broadway and Benton street, where the quarrel first started, along Harrison street oward Crescent.

When the Harrison street school was reached Simpson says Kennedy pulled a huge 4b-calibre revolver out of his pocket and said: "Now, you _______, I and said: am going to kill you." How nearly he came to carrying his threat into execution is well shown by the present condition of Simpson's head and face, for there are two gaping wounds on the top of his head, reaching to the bone, several large cuts on his face, and three cuts on the back of his hand, evidently made while Simpson had his hand raised to ward off the blows from the big gun. Simpson fell to the ground, al- a cash settlement in lieu of a trial, convic most unconscious, and Kennedy whipped up his team and drove off, taking the eleven forses with him. Word was sent to Marshal Cumming, and Deputy Marshal Canning and Patrol Driver John Sandel took the wagon and went in pursuit of the two combatants. They found Simpson lying in the rear of the house just north of the school building, where he had been brought from the sidewalk. He was bardly able to talk coherently, from the combined effects of the jag and his wounds, He was loaded into the wagon and chase was given Kennedy. Ahe officers went as far as a road house on the Crescent City road, three miles east of the city, finding traces of the fugitive at every house they passed. The patrol horses became weak in the knees, and had to be walked back to town. Marshal Canning telephoned to Crescent and found that the fellow with the eleven horses had just paseed through not more than two minutes before, on his way north. He asked the local authorities to arrest him. and Justice Menary hurried out, armed with a shot gun and mounted on his faithful mule. He overhauled the Oklahoma man about a mile north of Crescent, and, level-ing his shotgun at him, compeled him to throw up his hands. Kenedy was then taken back to Crescent, and Menary and Oenver Hough brought him to Council Bluffs last night, depositing him in the city

Wiatt Brothers Tell an Interesting Story About Milk Commissioner Flemming. The trial of John G. and James A. Wiatt on the charge of selling milk that did not me up to the 3 per cent test attracted a good deal of attention in Justice Cook's ourt yesterday. Deputy State Milk Inpector Reuben Flemming was the prosecutne witness. He testified that he made a test May 5, finding that the milk sold by Wiatt Bros. did not come up to the required standard, and he had them arrested in con-

The description of the way in which he tested the milk called forth an objection from G. H. Scott, the attorney who represented the defendants, he claiming that according to the law Flemming bad no au-thority to make tests, but only to collect milk for his superior officer to test. This was debated at considerable length by Scott and County Attorney Saunders, but the question was not definitely decided. When the Wiatt Bros. brought in their ustomers to testify to the quality of milk sold the court room was nearly full, and every witness said the milk was of a satisfactory quality. An interesting feature of the testimony of the defense was the charge by both Wiatts that Flemming had proposed tion and fine. "Flemming called on me three days after making the test," said James Wiatt, "and told me there was no need of my being ar rested, that I could settle it for $10 and n one would be the wiser. I told him that was simply in the business in order to help my brother, who is very poor, and I did not think I ought to be made to pay any such amount for something I had nothing to do with. After we had talked a while he offered to come down to $5, if I didn't feel like paying $10. I told him I would feel like paying $10. I told him I would talk the matter over with my brother, but we never made the settlement he proposed." When John Wiatt was put upon the stand ne testified that he did not own the herd, but was merely attending to it for hi brother. He said that Fiemming had asked him to make a cash settlement, using about the same words as those quoted by his brother, excepting that no amount was named. As he was not finencially interested in the dair, he was discharged, and Justice Cook took the case under advisement so far as James Wiatt was concerned.

Demaree, the new physician of the penitentiary, will assume the duties of his office tomorrow. He was down at the pen today and made an examination of the colored convict, W. M. Jordan, who was struck by Keeper Z. T. White eight days ago. Dr. Demaree says the man is not in jured in the least, and that up to yesterday he worked rolling and piling barrels ever since the assault. But yesterday the old prison physician, Dr. Houtz, cupped Jordan in four places on the back. Jordan himself says this was entrely unnecessary. It is the opinion of Dr. Demarce that this cupping was done simply for political effect While Jordan was cupped on the back, in hi sworn testimony before Governor Holcomb h states that he was hit a light blow on the side, and under the right arm, Prison dis cipline requires the convicts to salute th guards and keepers by raising the right arm to a point above the head. It is alleged that Jordan's back has been so severely in-jured that cupping in four places was nec-essary but the convict has no difficulty at all in raising his right arm to the required height. The governor has given the matter height. The governor has given the matte a pretty thorough investigation, taking the testimony of Warden Leidigh, Keeper White Convict Jordan, Deputy Wagner and severe others, and is prepared to submit his find ings to the Board of Public Lands and Buildings. So far as Warden Leidigh is concerned, he will not receive a very large shower of censure. Jordan was sent down question that is puzzling the peace officers of the city of Marshalltown is whether or not Mrs. Lewis Hall was the victim of a terrible mistake. Hall's version of the affair is that burglars tried to enter his residence week ago, and that he bought a revolver to be ready for the next attempt; that about 3 o'clock yesterday morning his wife, who slept in the front part of the bed, woke him and said some one was trying to get in Next he snatched the revolver from under his pillow and fired at the dim outlines of a form bending over him, which proved t be his wife, and then, realizing his awful mistake, he at once aroused his neighbors. The fatal shot took effect in the left eye nd lodged in the brain, producing death five ours later. The victim partially regained onsciousnes for a few minutes, unable to give any account of the shooting The husband appears nearly frantic with grief and neighbors believe the deed was anintentional. The dead woman was his third spouse. Hall is an electrician and had quarreled bitterly with his wife lately.
