PURE WHITE DEER.

Rare Animal Brought Down by a Hun-ter's Gun. The white buck of Nevada county, probably he last of its kind in California, has fallen before a hunter's gun. It was not an Indian than five times, drowning Prof. Whiting and hunter who killed it, for no red man would the two women. Then it was that Sutherland have dared to draw a bead upon the beautiful creature for fear of a curse falling upon his family and his tribe. The Indians in that locality, says the San Francisco Call, believed that the white deer contained the spirit of one of their great and good chiefs and to kill it would have been worse than murder. For several years the animal had been occasionally seen by the Indians in the contains in various parts of the county out they rarely spoke of it to the whites, fearing the latter would start in pursuit. A few white men saw it, but none were very desirous of taking its life because of its beauty. It weighed about sixty-five pounds and its hair and hide were of pure white. Near the horns the hair was tinged with gray.

Many years ago a white deer was seen in Mendocino county, but it was of a dingy or yellowish white, but the Nevada county buck vas as white as snow.

It required nine large Winchester bullets to kill it. The hunter ran across the animal on a mountain side and opened fire. Although wounded by the first bullet, the deer bounded into a small clump of brush, the only shelter within a mile. From his position on the hill-mide the hunter poured shot after shot into as 18 degrees 28 minutes latitude; longitude the thicket whenever he could catch a glanco of the white hide. STEAMER SANK IN A TERRIBLE GAL

Arrival of Twenty-One Rescued Persons at Mazatlan and Their Story of the Fate of Their Late. Companions.

MAZATLAN, Mex., June 1.-The steamer San Juan has arrived here with the twentyone passengers picked up on the 21st inst from the Colima. From them has been learned some of the details of the dreadful disaster, which they say happened on Monten miles from shore. All the rescued are badly bruised. They were all picked up from pieces of wreckage and rafts, with the exception of A. J. Sutherland, who had clung to a boat after it had capsized five times and drowned all the other occupants. As all were affoat, lashed by the fiercest gale of years and buffeted by the angry seas, for about twenty-four hours, they are hardly yet in a condition to tell a connected story of the wreck and the experiences of their escape, but many interesting particulars have

The steamer was heavily laden and had a large deck load of lumber. When the storm struck her she made bad weather of it, the captain baving great difficulty in keeping her head to the sea. The wind increased in fury, until it is said to have been the flercest storm known along this coast in twenty years. The sea rose rapidly. Waves washed the vessel and started the deck load. As the waves rose and the storm increased the managing of the steamer became impos-sible. At last, about noon, her head could no longer be kept up and she breached to. Once in the trough of the sea a mighty wave struck her and she was thrown on her beam ends. This wave struck her with such force that the steamer trembled as if she, had run upon a reef, and most of the passengers thought this was the cause of the shocks. This gave rise to the first report crowd of invalids and pleasure seekers, which that the ship had struck on a reef. Whether is constantly pouring into Denver would take because of the heavy deck load, the shifting of the coal and cargo, or the force of the storm, the steamer would not right herself. The passengers were pretty badly stunned by being pitched about, but rushed upon being pitched about, but rushed upon by length pitched about, but rushed upon being pitched about, but rushed upon by length pitched about, but rushed upon being pitched about, but rushed upon by length pitched in the city by the local deniers, besides the large number shipped in by inusting the local deniers. of lumber from its fastenings and whirled the heavy planks about with appalling violence. Many were struck and maimed. At least one passenger was killed by having his head crushed by one of the flying timbers. In their terror the passengers made few mental notes of their surroundings at this juncture. The survivors say, however, that the officers of the steamer were brave and active. Captain Taylor stood upon the bridge, his first officer, Griffiths, with him. At an order Griffiths rushed aft to superin tend the launching of life boat No. 5. Second Officer Langhorne was at life boat No. and succeeded in getting it launched and filled with passengers. Then down went the ship and Langhorne's boat was capsized.

All in the boats were supposed to have been drowned. CAPTAIN WENT WITH HIS SHIP. Captain Taylor went down with the ship. sticking to his post. As she pitched down-ward he blew three blasts on the whistle, supposedly as a signal of goodbye. Then he disappeared beneath the waves. Down went the engineers and firemen with them at their posts. Freight Clerk Perry was in his room at the time of the final plunge. Third Offcer Hanson was saved. As the steamer sank he cut some of the lashings of the deck lumber. Then he jumped or was thrown lumber. Then he jumped or was thrown overboard on the weather side of the vessel and reached the top of the deck house. This had been torn off and washed away by the great wave which threw the Colima on her beam. There Hanson clung, washed and buffeted for twenty-four hours. He saw men and women sink about him, but was Hanson says that as the steamer foundered ner boilers burst. The deck burst under his feet as he left the ship. Ten other men were thrown into the sea with him. The bursting of the boilers tore off the deck and threw part of it over at least a dozen men who were struggling in the water, drowning them all.

Flying debris hit others.

Two life rafts were seen to be afloat. On one were three men and on another six, in-cluding J. A. Childburg of Seattle, Wash., who seemed to have been a leader in the work of launching the raft. Those in any position to take notice of their surroundings saw many who clung to hits of wreckage and the lumber from the deckload. The gale caught this wreckage from the crests of the great waves and beat the struggling unfortunates with it. One man's skell was considered by a whiching plant as he skull was crushed by a whirling plank as he was about to clamber upon a life raft. The dash of the sea made each timber a menace as well as a hope. So the fight for life began. There was no hope for women or children, and small chances for men in such a storm. Many of the women and children must have remained in their cabins. The completely nude bodies of the stewardess and two other women came floating by the deckhouse some time after the steamer sank. All were dead and the sight was so distressing that Officer Hanson and was so distressing that the others on the deckhouse pushed the bodies away with pieces of scantling.

Prof. Harold Whiting of the California university made a heroic effort to save his wife and four children and the nurse. He got into a boat in which were A. J. Suther-land and others. The boat was soon swamped. Then it was righted, but went over again. Five times she was righted after being over-turned. The women were soon drowned de-spite all efforts to save them. Some were spite an entire state of the flying debris. At last only Sutherland was left. To avoid the swirling wreckage he climbed upon the seats while the lifeboat was overturned and so floated with the bottom of the boat serving him as a protecting shield. Air came to him through the broken sides of the boat. Sutherthrough the broken sides of the boat. Suther-land says he was on the weather side of the steamer when she went on her beam ends, but slid over to the lea side and fill into a boat. As the steamer went down a mast or part of the bridge took the boat under-water. When it came to the surface Sutherhand crawled into it again. Then he picked up Prof. Whiting, Mrs. C. Irving and another lady, supposed to be Mrs. Whiting. Almost immediately the boat capsized again and, as has been related, went over no les came up under the boat and remained there, protected, as he tells, from the flying timbers and dashing debris. DRIFTED ON THE WILD SEA. The survivors drifted about for twenty-four the survivors drifted about for the San Juan says was the hardest atorm experienced on the coast in twenty years. Of course none but the stoutest could survive. The weaker ones succumbed from hour to hour. Many of those sayed were badly hurt by the wreckage and impairs Among these many injured is and jumber. Among those most injured is young C. H. Cushing, ir., of Oakland. He and another man floated about on an improvised raft, but his brother was drowned. Some of the others are in a pitiable condition. The appearance of the San Juan kept up the spirits of those who were ready to give up the uneven struggle as hopeless. The otice of the trouble came to the first office of the San Juan, who noticed a great quantily of wreckage and reported the probability of a disaster during the storm. Captain Pitts immediately sent men aloft and soon some of the survivors were sighted. All the twenty-one picked up were found within a radius of two or three miles. The Colima is in 600 fathems of water.

104 degrees 14 minutes, west. Though the direct cause of the disaster was the tremendous sea and the fearful southeast run for shelter deeper in the mountains, and it was literally burnt to death with hot lead. The last shot entered the heart, and when the hunter secured his prey he found that nine builets had struck the little creature. Its vitality was remarkable. The Indians in Neyada county and across the deek from the hold, making her too. he deck from the hold, making her top heavy and unable to withstand the heavy headwinds and cross sea. Then, too, it is thought the cargo was badly stowed and that it shifted as soon as the steamer began to heel over. It is estimated that within three

COLIMA SURVIVORS ON LAND minutes of the time Captain Taylor gave the farewell blasts of the whistle the steamer had entirely disappeared. All the passengers praise the captain for his cooliese and heroism. The last they saw of him he stood at his post, the waves and winds dashing water and debris all about him, and the wail of that whistle will sound through the dreams of many for years to come. Captain Pitts of the San Juan put lookouts in the mastheals and cruised through and around the floating debris for hours, and then continued on his trip, calling here and leav-ing four of the passengers from the wreck. Five more survivors drifted ashore at Coapusyana, sixty miles south from here. They are J. E. Chilberg, Louis H. Peters and Enrique Vider, cabin passengers; Fred Johnson, seaman, and Robert Gonzales, mess boy. They were thirty-three hours on a 1fe raft without food or water. They was the San without food or water. They saw the Juan, but were not seen by the lookuts.

A peculiar circumstance in connection with the disaster is the fact that Prof. Whiting, before starting with his family on the Colima, drew up two wills. In one he provided that in case the steamer went down and he was drowned his estate should revert. day at noon, when the Colima was about the other he provided that in the event of twenty-eight miles out of Manzanillo and the death of his entire family his property should revert to his surviving relations in the east. After executing the two wills and but a few days before starting on his seas voyage the professer mailed the testaments Attorney Brawster of Cambridge, was a classmate at Harvard with both Profs, Whiting and Stringham.

THE BICYCLE EPIDEMIC.

The bicycle epidemic is sweeping over the whole country. It is estimated that during the coming summer the votaties of the wheel in New York City alone will number over 200,000. In many cities the bicycle has inaugurated a serious rivalry with the street car, and in Denver the effect has been so unmistakable that the local street railway company has had to cut the wages of its employes in order to meet the great reduction in its income. The daily receipts of the car lines have never been so low, and that the drop is caused entirely by the introduction of bicycles is beyond a doubt. On wet days, when the wheels cannot be ridden, the receipts per car invariably run up to over $30 per day. As soon as the streets dry off the rec ipts drop down fully one-half. Formerly the large the cars out to the suburbs for their daily out-ing; now the wheel is used instead. It is estiis probably extremely low. Each of these wheels will take out of the pocket of the street railway company some 20 or 30 cents a day. Taking the low estimate of 20 c nts a day for the 10,000 wheels, the amount would reach $2,000 a day, or $730,000 a year. The contingency which has presented itself in such definite shape in Denver will have to be met by street car companies in many other cities, and instead of being abated this source of deprivation of revenue is likely to become more formidable, especially during the summer months. The use of the bicycle has appar-ently but just begun to fairly take held on the popular fancy, and it is phophesied that be-fore long the majority of people will just as soon think of doing business without their bicycles as their watches.

An expert on cycling matters, who was asked "How will the bicycie be improved in future years?" says there is some ground for believing that the chainless safety will be the coming bicycle. Overcoming the friction is the greatest difficulty manufacture of this class of wheel, and many of the experiments which have been made to this end have given encouraging results. There will be improvement all around in the construction of the bicycle; in the tires, the saddles and the pedals. Already a saddle has been brought out in France which is pronounced a comfort and a de-light. It is said to enable a wheelman not a new idea, no matter how good it is, and it is only the pressure of popular dis-satisfaction that will drive them to the manufacture of a better form of saddles. It was so with the safety frame, the pneumatic tire, the wood rim and other improvements. Just now light wheels are the fashion, but they are certain to be dropped later on. On the question of whether cycling is merely a craze, or will take a permanent place among the national pastimes, opinion is divided. The authority just mentioned says on this head: "Of course, the cycling craze will die out, and the sport remain. Cycling has backbone, and has come to stay; but it may experience a setback, for many perns now riding will hardly do so next year or the year after. Field athletics, tennis, base ball, roller skating and many other sports have all had their booms in this country, and cycling now has the time and attention of the public." Nevertheless, cycling is about the most rational and healthy craze that has taken hold of the people in a generation, and it bears unmistakable signs of robustness and long life.

A ROLLER STEAMER.

Strango Ocean Craft Invented by Frenchman. "The steamboat of the future" is the title which some of the admirers of the French engineer, M. Bazin, have given to his invention. If the novel vessel should sustain the promise which the performance of a small nodel has given, the name will not be a misnomer. It will make it possible to go from New York to Havre in four days. For fifteen years M. Bazin studied the ossibility of giving to steamboats a rolling motion, in order to obtain a faster rate of speed. That is, he dreamed of replacing the bouble friction of wave-impact and the vessel's own headway by a single relling mo-tion. To get an idea of his device, picture to yourself a great platferm, supported on each side by great hollow wheels or drums, Big shafts underneath convey the motion of the machinery to the wheels. Upon the platform are the cabins, dining rooms, salcons and engines. The whole looks like an immense wagon. To give the ship a forward motion, M. Bazin has invented a peculiar screw, which gives the vessel a powerful thrust onward. Most important of all, he has devised a peculiar steering apparatus, wherein a powerful jet of water is utilized in such a manner that the vessel can be turned such a manner that the vessel can be turned about in its own length.

The only test yet made of M. Bazin's wonderful ideas was with a model vessel about eighteen feet long in Paris. This model was about one-twentieth as big as a 2 coolers occan stramphy. It exhibited a model was about one-twentieth as big as a 5,000-ton ocean steamship. It exhibited a speed of forty-two knots an hour, it is declared in the Illustrite Zeitung; and now M. Bazin has been commissioned to build another vessel five times as long. If this gives as successful a proof of the value of the Frenchman's idea, a passenger ship to run from Havre to New York is to be built. M. Bazin thinks that the forward motion of the vessel is equal, at each revolution, to about vessel is equal, at each revolution, to about 60 per cent of the circumference of the big roller wheel. The wheels of a passenger steamer would be about 72 feet in diameter, about 25 feet being under water. Imaginativenty-four revolutions to the minute, and its contraction of the contraction of th will be easy to figure how long it would take to reach New York from Havre.

Confederate Postage Stamps Persons who have kept any of the old letters they received in the south during the war night do well to look them over .. The conederate government authorized the issue and se of local postage stamps and nearly every, city in the south at one time had its own stamp. Many thousands of those were used, but so rare are they now that they bring very high prices. There is among collectors keen demand for them, and an idea of what keen demand for them, and an idea of what they will bring may be gathered from the re-port of a sale which occurred at the rooms of the Philadelphia society, New York. Local confederate stamps sold as follows: Athens, (is., $40; four varieties of the Baion Rouge, La., 5-cent, $41, $77 and $30 respectively; Macon, Ga., two varieties, for $65.50 and $171; Lenoir, N. C., $82, and Mobile 2-cent, black, $41,50. As time goes on these curlousties $11.50. As time goes on these curlosities will probably increase in value. They are already beyond the reach of everybody but wealthy collectors.
