EX-BANK CASHIER INDICTED

A. F. Nichols of Litchfield Bank Fame Wanted for Counterfeiting.

MARSHAL AFTER HIM WITH A CAPIAS

Believed that the Evidence Will Throw Light on the Failure of the Institution with Which Accused Was Formerly Connected.

It is seldom that a bank cashier is insuch was the case in this city yesterday. The federal grand jury found a true bill against A. F. Nichols of Litchfield, Neb. He was indicted on four counts and it is said thrown bimself off. that there is an excellent prospect of his con-

Nichols was cashier of the People's State bank at Litchfield. For some time there were complaints about the circulation of counterfeit coin in the vicinity. The counterfeits were clever. They were mostly silver dollars, and a few of them were eventually traced to the counters of the bank where Nichols had charge of the funds.

The previous record of the cashier placed him above suspicion and it was thought the passing of bad coin was purely accidental. But rumors soon spread thick and fast about Nichola' peculiar style of financiering, and on h 1, the bank of which Nichols cashier suspended because it was found to be in an insolvent condition. The that date. Popular suspicion of its shape was confirmed. The official commercial agency report on the financial condition of the institution was brief but breezy. It was:
"The bank has been looted. No assets."

Investigation revealed the fact that not a dollar was left to pay liabilities, and in this respect counterfeits were no exception. The bank has never recovered. Depositors were out their money. Nichols found himself out of a job, but he remained in Litchfield. OPERATIONS AT LINCOLN.

Nichols made frequent trips to Lincoln, and there was soon a chorus of complaints at the state capital about the prevalence of silver counterfeit dollars, so smooth in appearance that detection was difficult. These complaints became so frequent that the city authorities of Lincoln detailed Detective Pound to do some investigating. In a few weeks he was amazed at the web of evidence which to do some investigating. In a temperature of the was amazed at the web of evidence which he was amazed at the web of evidence which he had woven around Nichols. In October, when Nichols visited Lincoln, he was arrested. A number of counterfeit dollars were found upon his person. Nichols, however, was not at that time prosecuted. He was permitted to return home, the case was was permitted to return home, the case was was permitted to return home, the case was and the incident was lost in a members of the diplomatic corps, who dined members of the diplomatic corps, who dined a separate room, was 60. The varied in a separate room, was 60. counterfeit dollar, traced its receipt to Nich-cls. The affair was reported to the federal authorities and an officer was detailed to work on the case. A large amount of evi-dence was submitted to the grand jury, and it did not take the latter long to find a true bill against the accused.

INTERESTING DISCLOSURES EXPECTED It is claimed that Nichols' arrest will precipitate some startling disclosures later on the methods in force at the bank with which he was identified.

which he was identified.

Nichols seemingly worked alone. The officers believe now that he victimized many people while he was cashier by giving out the spurious coin, and they are puzzled to know where he got his supply if he did not have a small "mint" of his own. The work for which he was indicted occurred at Lin-coin, but it is claimed that there are many other instances where Nichols pas et counte felt money, and whenever the recipient de-tected the coin the smooth financier would apologize and claim that it was uninten-tional. It was this possibility that caused the officers to investigate with great diligance, but the cases became so frequent and the evidence so conclusive, coupled with the fact that his pockets contained counterfelts when arrested at Lincoln some time ago, that all doubts were removed.

Enneral of Mrs. K. W. Barton.

The funeral of Mrs. K. W. Bartos was held at the family residence, 1327 South Thirteenth street, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Bartos was prominent in Bohemian circles and was a charter member of the Bohemian Ladies' society and of the grand lodge. The funeral was largely attended and a line of carriages several blocks in length followed the remains to their final resting place in the Bohemian cometery. The floral tributes from the Bohemian societies and other friends were numerous and elaborate. Bartos leaves a husband and five small Four Murderers Make Their Escape.

THEY WANTED TO KILL HIM Bicyclist Incenses Italians by Striking

Girl with His Wheel. Last night shortly before 8 o'clock a bicyclist, T. R. Huston, was maimed by a crowd of Italians near the corner of Twelfth street and Capitol avenue because he ran into a little girl. The girl's name is Christina Sansone, and she lives near the corner where the accident occurred. Huston was scorching south on Twelfth street, and, nearing the corner of Capitol avenue, he struck a crowd of Italian children who usually infest the corner. He shouted, and had apparently cleared them all, when the Sansone girl, out of whose way he was trying to get, ran directly in dicted for passing counterfeit money, but front of the wheel. Her arm was caught in the fork of the front wheel and she fell to the ground, with the bicycle on top of her, but before this happened Huston had

The street was immediately alive with Italians, who surrounded Huston and threatened to do him violence, some of them calling for knives. He got on his wheel three times, but each time the girl's father pulled him off. He began to have lively visions of an untimely end to his young life, when a number of negroes who live in the neighborhood came to his assistance. Each picked out a man, and the street was rapidly becoming filled with the recumbent forms of Italians, when Huston jumped on his wheel and rode to Fifteenth and Douglas streets. Sansone and another man followed him, and at the corner another fight ensued. Sansone's friend tried to stick a knife into Huston, but two other colored men came to his assistance and stood the infurlated Italians off until Officers Curry and Sullivan arrived. Sansone and Huston were arrested, charged with fighting. The latter was immediately released on bonds.

Huston is a clerk in the office of the Globe Loan and Trust company. His face presented the appearance of a piece of pickled beef after the warm reception he received from the pavement when he threw himself from his wheel. The little girl's arm was tadly bruised, but otherwise she was uninjured, except in the minds of her parents and The wheel. friends, who were sure that she was dying.
Witnesses say that Huston was not to blame for the accident. He had steered to one side of the little girl and would rave passed her safely if she had not run directly in his way. Even then he threw himself from the wheel in time to prevent the girl from receiving serious injuries.

The burgomaster, Lehman, in proposing a oast, dwelt upon the canal as the work of the emperor and the empire. It was a memorable day for Hamburg, since the city's lifegiving mother had received a second mouth in a second sea. The waves of the North sea would henceforth mingle on its shores with the waves of the Baltic. He desired to thank the foreign representatives whose presence symbolized the international significance of the canal. He then concluded: "We desire to thank the originators of this splendid work and to thank the emperor and empire, and we desire that all the hopes that bound the new undertaking shall be realized. We trust that our honsall be realized. shores with the waves of the Baltic. We also wish that the emoress, whose absence we here so keenly deplore, may there be able to participate in renewed health.'

Here Burgomaster Lehman turned toward the emperor and begged to be permitted to read a telegram from the empress. The emperor bowing his assent, Herr Lehman then read the message, in which the empress said: "To my deep regret I must forego the pleasure of attending today's great festival. I will, however, participate in it from afar, and I earnestly desire that the glory of the Hanse town may, with God's blessing flourish anew. During these brilliant hour of hospitality, alike to the emperor and the allied German princes, my thoughts center upon the memorable festival and its great national significance."

The reading of the empress' message was greeted with repeated cheers. The emperor then replied:

TOUCHED BY HIS RECEPTION "Worshipful Burgomaster-I am deeply touched at the words I have just heard and am deeply touched above all by the recep-tion which Hamburg has extended to me, the like of which I have seldom experienced. The wave of feeling which was tendered me was no artificial production, nor any common sort. Like a hurricane, the joyous cry is sounded in my ears. "I well know that I may not presume to appropriate that exuitation to my own per-son alone. I recognize rather, therein, the outward sign of the pulsebeat of our whole German people, which is proud of seeing the newly united German empire represented by its princes and illustrious guests. -The Omahas fell down again before the terrible onslaught of the mighty Saints, and, as a result, they were defeated by a score of 12 to 6. Carrish of the Omahaspitched a nice game, but his support was awful, the team making nine costly errors behind him. The fielding of the Saints was faultless and Parvin kept the hits well scattered. The fielding of Pace, Slagle, Shaffer and Hutchinson was bad. All the errors they made were costly, letting in runs every time. The Sainta started their run getting in the first. Two bases on balls and a single produced one. In the second two singles and base on bails and an error by Slagle produced three more. In the third an error by Lohman, a base on balls, an error by Pace and a single scored two more. In the seventh an error by Hutchinson, Carrish hitting a man, an error by Nattress, a two-base hit up satisfactorily to all parties.

More Specific Provision for the Disposition of Condemned Carcasses. WASHINGTON, June 19 .- Secretary Mor on has just issued new meat inspection regulations which will take effect July 21. The principal change from the regulations now in force relates to the disposition of condemned carcasses. Section 7 of the old regulations provides that carcasses found to be diseased and unfit for human food should be temove, at once under the supervision of the inspector and tanked in such manner as to prevent their withdrawal as food products. As there were some doubts as to the authority of the Department of Agriculture to cause the tanking of the carcasses when objection was made by the packer, the following paragraphs have therefrom been added to cover such cases:

"Should the owners of such carcasses not consent to the foregoing disposition of them, then the inspectors are directed to brand the word 'condemned' upon each side and quarter of said carcasses and keep a record of the kind and weight of the carcass, and they shall, under the supervision of the inspector, be removed from the packing house where meats are prepared and stored for the interstate and foreign trade; and said firm or corporation shall forward through the inspector to the secretary of agriculture a sworn statement monthly giving in detail the disposition of the carcasses condemned. and if the same have been sold, showing to whom, whether for consumption as food, or otherwise, with what knowledge, if any, by the purchasers of the condemnation by this department, and whether or not for such sale said carcasses have been cooked, or their condition at the time of inspection by this department altered, and, if so, in what way

"The inspectors shall, when authorized by the secretary of agriculture, give notice by publication to the express companies and common carriers at the place of condemnaion of the fact of condemnation, giving the name of the owner of such carcasses, the time and place of slaughter and the reason of its rejection and a description of the carcasses, and warning them not to transport them out of the state.

"Section 20 provides that carcasses found affected with trichinae shall be disposed of n the same manner as are other condemned reasses, or they may be rendered into eli-o lard at a temperature of not less than 150 degrees, or made into cooked meat products if the temperature is raised to the boiling point a sufficient time to thoroughly ook the interior of the pieces."

OUR TRADE WITH BRAZIL.

Natives Prefer American Goods, but England Controls the Transportation. WASHINGTON, June 19 .- Minister Thompson, writing to the State department, thus discusses affairs in Brazil: "With the exception of spasmodic fighting in Rio Grande do Sul and occasional election disturbance

Brazil and confidence in the government seems to grow stronger each day. "Several impediments must be overcor before any large increase in the consumption of the products of the United States by this country can be accomplished. The mercantile trade of South America, especially of the Atlantic seaboard, has been built up through English and other European chan-nels, and their methods of doing business prevail at every point. "The English prevail in all port traffic They know the market and cater to the demands of traders. The consumers of Brazil, i. e., the masses of the people, have the most friendly feeling for our country and would favor American products of all kinds laid to them at even prices with competing goods, but the channels through which they are to be obtained are not established.
