REPLIED TO THE BIMETALLISTS

Sir William Vernon Barcourt Touches Or of Their Arguments Briefly, LONDON, July 2 .- Sir William Vernor

Harcourt has written a letter in reply to the memorial of the Bimetallie league, in which he says: "I do not share in the opinion expressed in your memorial, but this is not a fitting time to enter into any argument.) will venture upon one observation. The me-morial refers to the depreciation of property and the depression of industry, particularly agriculture, and attributes all the evile to the action of France in abandoning the bimetal-lic system, which, while it existed, you con-sidered secured to the rest of the world the advantages which you believed flowed from that system. You do not, however, advert to the fact that a depreciation and depression of a far more serious character occurred during the period when, as you maintain, the bimetai-lic system was in practical operation-for instance, the thirty years from 1815 to 1845-when the evils to which your memorial refers existed in far more aggravated form. If you compare the condition of the people of the urban or agricultural districts of that epoch with their condition now you will find that the wages and employment of the working classes contrast most unfavorably during your almetallic clysium with their situation these monometallic days which you deplore."

PROGRESS OF THE IDEA.

The deliberations of the committee con-umed some time, which was occupied by ${\boldsymbol a}$ umber of stirring speeches. Rev, Gregory Powell, who had recently returned from he national convention of Municipal leagues at Cleveland, was called for and talked oriefly on matters of interest connected with he convention. He said that the representa-ion which composed the convention was indicative of the substantial class of men who were back of the general demand for mu-nicipal reform. It was composed of mayors, editors and men of large affairs from nearly all the large cities of the United States. There was brought the same complaint from every part of the country. "We are suffering verywhere from bad government." It was the universal experience that the partisan or-ganizations were in control of local affairs. Local interests were lost sight of because local offices were made to serve as spoils to serve partisan interests in state and national contests. The corporations were getting control, and their malevolent influence was everywhere apparent. Our entire system was wrong, and we would never have satisfactory local government until public ownership had succeeded private monopoly.

Rev. Mr. Powell said that the convention vas a convincing proof of the progress which he sentiment of reform was making all over the country. Papers were published in Buf-falo, New York, Philadelphia and other cities the sale purpose of which was to push this movement. The magazines were teeming with atatistics and facts which went to show the necessity for reform, and the rising tide of carnest purpose offered an immense hope for the future if honest citizens would only remain face to face with the issue.

Mr. Takey made a brief but vigorous speech, which struck a responsive note in the sympathies of the audience. He said that the size of the audience. He starting that the size of the audience which had assembled was millicent proof that the Citizens' league was not a one-man organization. The senti-ment was in the minds of all that they wanted better city government. That was exactly what the Clitzens' league was destined to furnish. It was the good fortune of the league that it had an organ whose editor was in sympathy with and would voice the entimients of the organization. Continuing, Mr. Tukey said that he was a republican, some of his heaters were dem-ocrats and others pepulists. In joining the Cutzens' league they had not abandoned their principles. They only differed from others of their party in this, that a certain number of men had banded themselves together into a sectarian organization. They were members of the American Protective association first and republicans or democrats or popullats afterward. Speaking for himself, he declared that he was not that kind of a republican. They had seen enough of this political and social ostracism and were all in favor of allowing their neighbors to worship God as they saw fit.

ON LIBERTY'S ANNIVERSARY.

As Mr. Tukey concluded his remarks Mr. E. Resewater was discovered in the sudience, and repeated calls for a speech were sucreeded by prolonged applause as he appeared upon the rostrum. Mr. Rosewater said that about eight weeks ago he had visited Inde-pendence hall in Philadelphia, and he was now reminded that it was on July 2, 1776, that the mon who had staked their lives, their fortunes and their honor on the achieve-ment of independence had signed the declaing the workings of various police departration that "these colonies are and cught to he free and independent states." In that hall was now deposited the great Liberty bell that had proclaimed independence to all the iand, and all the inhabitants thereof. Victor Quintana; for whom the officers have seen searching for eight years, has been esp-ured in New Mexico and will be taken to This proclamation had been made not to any one class of inhabitents, but to all classes, Officers came up with the supposed mur-
