

BACK FUSHA ON THE CARPET

Lincoln Police Official Charged with Encouraging a Mob.

QUEER STORY FROM CHEYENNE COUNTY

Cash Williams Alleges that While Located at Lodge Pole Two Years Ago He Was Roughly Handled.

LINCOLN, July 10.—(Special.)—The Lincoln Excise board a man named Cash Williams has told a rather sensational story. It involves the character of one of the police officers of the city, Jack Fusha. Williams says that some time in August, two years ago, he was selling organs in the northwest, his headquarters being at Lodge Pole, Cheyenne county. He claims that in order to do a thriving business in that locality it was necessary to resort to bribery. Fusha, he says, was acquainted in the neighborhood, and he employed him as an agent to "sugar up" the refractory school board officials, who refused to purchase organs when requested to do so. Fusha had told him where to place money where it would do the most good. As a result of the "sugaring" process he had sold three organs to schools in that locality. Shortly thereafter he was assailed by a mob, taken away from his boarding house, and furnished with a coat of tar, after which he was rolled in a load of wheat. The mob, he avers, also took from him notes aggregating $300. He left here about a week ago, and the officers are now looking for him. The county attorney claims that Fusha was a prominent factor in the matter, and that when he went to Cheyenne to have the parties prosecuted he was informed by the county attorney that there was an organized gang that had an attempt at prosecution would be useless.

Fusha's story to the excise board, it is said, completely refuted many of the alleged charges of the mob against the man with the details. Fusha says that Williams had manifested an unhealthy penchant for the society of young girls, and that the mobbing was due to that fact. He had been warned to leave town, but had defiantly refused, and supplemented his refusal with a number of imputations against the purity of the women of the neighborhood. Then it was that Williams was rolled in tar and subsequently in a load of wheat. Fusha denies having had any hand in the matter, and says that he has taken the names of a number of parties living in that vicinity, and will write them for further particulars.

PREFERRED THE PEN.

The boy charged yesterday for the burglary of J. P. Hendry's store will not go to the penitentiary, as anticipated. He gave his name as Charles Williams when County Attorney General Corbett, after reviewing the testimony and hearing the argument of the attorney general, declined to give Dr. Leiber a certificate.
