HELD TO THE DISTRICT COURT

Conclusion of the Preliminary Hearing of the Suspected Poles.

MUST ANSWER FOR THE MURDER OF SELJAN

Bukove, Drobn'e and Mikan Refused Bail by Judge Berka and Remanded to the County Jail to Awatt Trial-Urban Held as a Witness.

Bukove, Drobnic and Mikan have been held to the district court without bail to answer to the charge of having murdered John Selian in the Mikan cottage at 1318 Pierce street on the afternoon or evening of July 3. Urban will be put under bonds as a witness in the case. He has some money and will be allowed to deposit it with the court and to resume his work at the smelter. He is not thought to have had any connection with the murder, but he is an important witness for

When the case was called yesterday morning arguments were heard by Judge Berka on a motion for the release of the defendants. The arguments consumed the time until noon.

In passing upon the motion Judge Berka said that facts had been established that John Seljan had hved and was dead and that his death had been caused by a wound inflicted on his throat with some sharp instrument. The theory of suicide had been refuted by the evidence. In his opinion the injury to the throat had been inflicted in the cottage at 1318 Pierce street and that the wound was of a nature to cause almost instant death. While the case of the state was not as strong as would be required to convict, the evidence was sufficient to hold the men for trial in the district court. The fact that the key to Seljan's trunk, which it was shown Seljan had used on Mon-day preceding his death, was found in the possession of Bukove after Seljan's disappearance, was evidence sufficient to connect Bukove with the crime. The strongest point against Mikan and Drobnic was that they were the men who would most naturally have been called upon to help Bukove. The prisoners were immediately taken to the county jail to await trial at the next session of the criminal court.

IOWA AT THE NEBRASKA STATE FAIR. OMAHA, July 11 .- To the Editor of The Bee: Enthusiasm over the prospects of the coming state fair to be held in Omaha is not confined to state lines. The people of western and middle Iowa are very much interested in the White City by the big Missouri. A great number of families in that state have relatives in Omaha and Nebraska and can easily be induced to attend the fair if proper effort is put forth. The trip to the World's fair has whetted their appetite for attending displays of this character and the present magnificent outlook for crops in that state has raised their spirits to the point where they feel like celebrating in some way and a trip to Omaha's big state fair will about fill the measure of their ambition. But, whilst this is true, some effort is needed to let our lows neighbors know some-thing of the real magnificense, size and prac-tical character of this great exposition of ours. I have spent the last three weeks i western and central Iowa and from persons experience know that if the Nebraska state fair is properly advertised in Iowa that her people will come over by thousands. While on this trip I traveled over 100 miles in a carriage, and, although expecting bounti-ful crops, surprises met me on every hand. Few years have blessed the farmer with such grand crop prospects as the present in the Hawkeye state. Wheat, corn, oats and vegetables are luxuriant. Corn is a good stand, sturdy of stock and as green as the bay tree. Wheat is all in head and as even on top as a floor. The growth of the oat fields is so rank in places as threaten to lodge. Whole fields of potatoes were in blossom June 20, a very unusual thing and for weeks Iowa people have been using new potatoes of their own raising. The hay crop, although sufficient for home consumption, is not up to the average and the pastures are a little short. The farmers of Iowa will profit by the lessons of last year by caring for their corn fodder. This excellent stock forage is be-ginning to be appreciated by stock men and farmers. The water question is the most serious one that confronts the Iowa farmer today. There has been too much draining and ditching and the farmer who used to curse his stars for having to cross boggy sloughs would bless some kind fairy should she furnish his hogs with a decent wallow The rains, whilst sufficient for surface irrigation, have not penetrated the ground far enough to effect the water supply. Deep wells and whirring wind mills are becomin a necessity all over the state. A not less noticeable feature on the farm A not less noticeable leading in the farms of lows than the bountiful crops is the improved condition of the stock kept. Where a few years ago were the scrawny, prairie breeis of cattle, with nondescript pedigree and horns equal to Texas cattle, can now be found great herds of Herford, Poled Angus. Hoistein and Jersey cattle. They are trim limbed, smooth boned and can be seen these July days switching flies in the shade and looking as slick and fat as moles. The same is true of awine, horses and indeed of every other animal kept upon the farm; even the

THROUGH WITH TESTIMONY

Investigation of Comptroller's Office Brings Out Some Startling Fact.

CHECKED UP MONEY THAT HE NEVER SAW

Olsen Knew that City Funds Had Been Deposited Contrary to Law, Yet He Remained Silent, Allowing the Practice to Continue.

The councilmanic investigation into the affairs of the office of the city comptroller, which has been in progress for two days past, was completed yesterday afternoon, and the committee report will be presented to the committee report will be presented to the council next Tuesday night. At the conclusion of the testimony Comptroller Olsen assured the members of the committee that there was no charge that could possibly be there was no charge that could possibly be laid against him and requested them to prepare their report at once, so that he could go away in peace on his summer vacation at Lake Washington. This was agreed to, but as a rdical difference of cpinion developed between Councilmen Howell and Saunders as to the nature of the report, it was found impossible to reach a conclusion last night.

Councilman Howell contends that the adissions made by the comptroller himself indicate that he has been very derelict in his futy. In this connection he remarked: "Olen may have lived up to the letter of the law, but he has certainly failen far short of the spirit of it." Saunders had nothing to say. It is understood, however, that he wishes to let the censure of the council fall as lightly as possible on the comptroller's shoulders. Both councilmen agree that a radical reform is demanded in the present sysem of checking up. It is possible that two reports will be presented, reflecting their diferent views as to the responsibility of the omptreller for the circumstances which have curred during the past two months.

When the investigation was resumed yes erday morning Assistant City Attorney Corish cross-examined a number of witnesses or Mr. Olsen. Edward Rosewater answered in invitation to appear before the committe and Mr. Cornish handed him copies of th reports of the comptroller and treasurer and leftantly asked him to show where the comproller was at fault.

Mr. Rosewater said that in his opinion the sport justified the impression that the comptroller had not kept a proper check on liebursements that should have been made only on warrants duly signed and appropriations made by the city council.

REPORTS PROVED NOTHING. Mr. Cornish inquired if there were any facts that showed that the comptroller was in collusion with the treasurer. Mr. Rose-water replied that there were only such facts as were inferential. The statement of the comptroller that certain sums were on de-posit in the smaller banks to the credit of the school fund when no such amounts were in the school fund when no such amounts were in the school fund would indicate that the comptroller must know that a part of the funds of the city were on deposit for speculative purposes in the small banks. Either that was the case or the comptroller was woefully ignorant and incompetent.

Continuing, Mr. Rosewater said that there was nothing either in the comptroller's report or in that of the treasurer to show how much money was deposited, or how large a balance remained. Neither did it prove that the residence of the continuing that the continuing the con due not on deposit was in the vaults of the city treasurer. The duty of the comptroller was unquestionably to check up all receipts and disburgements of the treasurer. He was presumed to check up the bank books and see that the stated balances were actually in the banks. Then he should see that the residue was in the treasurer's vault. The statement of the comptroller that the treasurer's report agreed with his own books might be true and a defalcation exist, never-theless. A check that did not take the cash into consideration was no check at all and in that case there was no purpose in having a comptroller. The mayor and city counci had general jurisdiction over the finances of the city and the office of comptroller had been created expressly for the purpose of keeping a close check on the treasurer's office and informing the council from time to time of its condition. If the idea was correct that the comptreller's duties d d n t 'r c ude an ove sight over the cash and bank deposits, there was absolutely no check on the treasurer He might put a small amount in the banks and speculate or otherwise dispose of the remainder. On June 18 there was a shortage of from $25,000 to $30,000 in the treasurer's office. Mr. Bolln had at least two months before drawn out over $19,000, without warrant or appropriation, and applied it to his own use. There must consequently have been a shortage of that amount in the deposits and this must have been discovered if the office had been properly checked up.

AN ILLEGAL DEPOSIT OF FUNDS. Mr. Rosewater said that about two weeks before June 18 he had begun to investigate the condition of affairs and had found that there could not have been much more than $2,000 in the school fund. At that time it was represented that there was $19,000 of school money in the Midland bank, $6,000 in the Globe Loan and Trust company's bank and $5,000 in the McCague bank. This had struck him as being a remarkable state of affairs. There was at least an illegal deposit in banks that had not been designated by the city council. This had been explained by the claim that the money was out of the school fund, but the figures quoted proved conclusively that there was no such mount in the school fund. Mayor Bemis was called and said that if the duties of the comptroller were not properly defined it was time that they were If a competent man had been in the comp troller's office he should certainly have dis covered that the checking up process was farce and would have reported the facts t the city council. It was certainly his opinion that Mr. Olsen should have disovered the fault some time during the thr and one-half years during which he had been

The afternoon was devoted largely to threshing over old straw. There were somvoluble explanations upon the part of Mr Olsen, which were, as a rule, entirely for eign to the points in controversy. Mr. Rose water was recalled and emphasized his testi mony given during the preceding session with regard to the obvious laxity which was apparent in connection with the depositing of the school funds.

J. E. Wilbun testified that he had purchase some warrants issued for damages accruing from a change of grade in an alley. This was on the recommendation of the comptroller The proceedings had subsequently been stopped by injunction, and he was still helding the sack. He thought that such a pro-ceeding indicated that there was something wrong somewhere.

Thomas Swobe testified to numerous erasures on the tax lists. These were caused as far as he had observed, by the permicious practice of making out tax receipts for heavy property owners before the taxes were paid in order to save them the interest.

The books at the stock yards office show that during the seven months of this year the receipts of cattle have held up wonder-fully well considering the drouth of last year. During the first seven months of 1894 334,065 cattle were received at the yards; for the corresponding time this year the receipts have been 154,573 head. Of hogs during the first seven months of 1894 there were 901,495

As a result of this shortage there are no cattle or hogs in Nebraska now in compari-

Iowa is sending lens cattle to this market than last year, but is making up the deficiency by seeding hers. making up the deficiency by sending hogs. During the first seven months of 1894 the hog receipts were 88.968 head and for the same period this year there have been received from Iowa 178,597 head of hogs.

Colorado shows a little dropping off in cattle but this is more than made up by Ne.

Hogs the same. The reason for this is that South Omaha is a better market today than Kansas City and shippers are sending their stock where they can get the best prices. The demand with no local supply is what has made this market the best in the country.

What Men Say Who Are on the Ground-Letters from Northern Settlers.

Before personally examining our famo Orchard Homes lands in central Mississippi," said Mr. George W. Ames of Omaha, general agent. "we corresponded with actual occu piers of adjoining lands, whose statements we afterward found to be more than verified by the facts. One well-to-do settler writes as follows: 'Before locating here it was my privilege to see a good portion of the southern states and after carefully weighing the advantages and disadvantages of the different ections of the country I came to the con-dusion that this was the best country I had ver seen and I am still of the opinion

"We have good water, good health, plenty of fire wood, good society, churches and chools in close proximity. Fine railroad and hipping facilities are among the reasons why prefer this section of the south. We raise all kinds of fruits and vegetables in abundance and they are very profitable.

"This is in my opinion one of the finest stock raising countries in the world. In the winter cattle live on grass, cane and reed that grows on the creeks and branches. Hogs do well; I have nine to kill that scarcely cost ne anything to raise."

A New York man living in the same neighborhood writes: "Our country is well watered, having streams of water running in every direction. The rainfall is from fifty to sixty inches a year. The climate is pleasant; average temperature in the heat of summer is 80 degrees, in winter 45 to 50 degrees. By consulting statistics you will see that our summers are not as oppressive as they are in New York state; sunstroke is an unheard of occurrence. We can work in the fields twelve months in the year, and, when we try, have vegetables twelve months in the year."

The county of Douglas nearly won a lawsuit in one of its "poor farm" cases yesterday morning.

The official and legal title of the county s the County of Douglas, but Mrs. Lucy E. Wright, and her attorneys, some three cars ago, when seeking to recover on a laim against the county, overlooked this act and sued "Douglas county" to recover ie sum of $633, with interest, intending to hold this county liable. Advantage was at once taken of this by the county attorney. and since then the case has been hanging fire, the county alleging that it had never been brought into court, and could not have judgment entered against it, while Mrs. Wright contended that it was simply a desire on the part of the county commissioners to quibble over a name in order to evade the payment of a just debt, since anybody knew that to all intents and purposes that Designs out that the late of the county of th poses that Douglas county was the same corporation as the County of Douglas. After wrangling for some hours before Judge Keysor, Mrs. Wright was permitted to change the name of the defendant, and with a single stroke of the pen bring the county into court after it had successfully evaded the law. Once in court by this sum-mary process the attorneys had no trouble mary process the attorneys had no trouble in agreeing that if anything was due it was $844. This sum of money is what Mrs. Wright claims, because her husband, in 1887, bought a lot in Douglas addition for $1,759, this being a portion of the fifty acres of the poor farm, sold under authority de-rived from a special election held in No-vember, 1886. The power of the commis-sioners to make the conveyance being later found defective, when Wright desired to found defective, when Wright desired to make a second payment, he was refused a deed. After his death, his wife sued for what he had paid the county. The county attorney reserved an exception to the order, bringing it into court against its will. Testimony of a Neighbor-Orchards Home-Lands-What he Says.

"We came here about three years ago because we wanted to get rid of the cold winters, hot summers and drouths that made crop failures. We like the climate. We also like the people; they are intelli-gent, cultured and kindly. This is a great fruit country. Peaches bear abundantly at three vers of area. All small fruits do well three years of age. All small fruits do well and truck farming is a veritable gold mine for results. I think the possibilities of this country are great and that it has a grand future before it and this future will be hurried along by the good, energetic northern and western men who are beginning to settle here. The days are perfect here, warm, still, soft and pleasant. I might say,

Mrs. Starkey is a devout member of the Catholic church and the religious differences between the busband and wife are responsible for much of the present lamentable state of affairs in their home Mrs. Starkey has been ill for some time and vesterday her physician announced that she was at death's door and could not live many hours. The woman at once sought the con-solation of her religious belief and sent a neighbor woman to secure the services of a est of her faith. The woman found Father Judge and asked him to visit Mrs. Starkey to administer the sacrament to the dying woman. The priest called at the Starkey residence, but was met at the door by Mr Starkey and refused admission.

Father Judge remonstrated with Mr. Star-key and reminded him that whatever his be-lief might be he should respect the wishes of his dying wife and allow her to receive the consolation of a minister of her religion. Mr. Starkey was obdurate and retused to allow the priest to enter the house.

The priest then left the house and returned to his home. Later in the evening he re-ceived another call from the dying woman and again went to the Starkey home and sought admission. Mr. Starkey refused to allow the priest to enter and became emphatic in his denual of the privilege. Union Pacific Matters May Be the Subjec of National Legislation. Quietly, and without any call in the east

The make-up of the committee is not known, but it is thought that many of the men who gave strength to the movement last winter for reorganizatio are quietly working to bring about a unanus feeling among the bondholders to ac cept their just proportion in the new schem of reorganization. The legal proceedings in the Oregon Short

Today the hearing will come up in Portland on bill and answer in the Short Line case and Mr. Zera Snow will represent the in terests opposed to the foreclosure of the prop-erty. Upon the completion of the hearing Mr. Snow will probably pray an appeal from the court to a higher tribunal upon a multiplicity of grounds in answer to the bill of the petitioners, assigning among other reasons non-residence upon the part of plaintiff and defendant, the lack of statutory enactment and other reasons why the plaintiffs in the cause should not be granted the prayed-for decree.
