Omaha and St. Joe played another very pretty game yesterday, the boys from down the river winning with little apparent exertion. That the fielding was sharp and decisive is testified to by the fact that there were no less than six double plays, four falling to Omaha and two to St. Joe. The story of the defeat is told by the Hutchinsonian.

DEFENDER COME IN FIRST Vigilant Fairly Outslung in the First Trial for the Coverted Post.

FAST TIME MADE IN A LIGHT WIND Lazy Tack Outward Followed by a Quick Run Home Shows the True Quality of the Sympadite's New Craft.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Defender has met Vigilant and vanquished her over a course of fifteen miles to windward and return in the same waters that the cup race will take place in, in September. The course was one of the kind wherein Valkyrie III will meet the Vigilant, and that Defender, who has been built much superior to the Vigilant was clearly proven. The new boat not only outslung the old champion to a remarkable extent, but she outfoeted her as well, when sailing to windward. Moreover, on the run home before the wind, with Vigilant's centerboard hauled, she gained on the champion, an advantage that her most enthusiastic admirers did not anticipate. The weather was about what is to be expected during the season in which the cup races will take place. There was a good breeze from twelve to fifteen knots an hour blowing throughout the day and the water was smooth, taking into consideration, the trial was all that could have been expected for its results. It is believed the new boat will improve from five to ten minutes over such a course, and this is the case the Defender must be a marvel.

CHICAGO'S ROCKY WORK LOSSES. CHICAGO, July 20.—The batting was hard and the fielding very poor and about equally divided today. from the race. Alisa then sailed over the water. The crowd was estimated to be about 100,000. The race was won by the Vigilant in 1 hour and 15 minutes.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—The Press today prints an interview with H. H. Holmes, who was visited in his prison cell by a reporter of this paper. Holmes insists that he can prove an alibi with reference to the murder of the child, Nellie, in Chicago, and says the authorities here cannot prove that Pitzel was murdered in this city. In view of the finding in Chicago of the charred bones supposed to be those of Minnie Williams, as reported exclusively in the Associated press dispatches last night, Holmes' statements with reference to that young woman are interesting. He says: "I am innocent as a newborn babe of the charge of murdering the Pitzel children. I don't believe they were ever murdered, and if they were I am not guilty. Why, the last time I saw the boy, Howard Pitzel, was in Indianapolis. Miss Williams was then in Detroit, and we had arranged that she take the boy to her home in Detroit, and I followed her. Before I reached Detroit, however, Minnie Williams had taken Howard east and stopped in Buffalo. I then came east with the boy, and he was staying at the Hotel Toronto. We had been there a short time when my wife arrived. She knew nothing about the existence of the Pitzel children. She was staying at the Hotel Toronto, and I had no communication with her. I had good reasons for not letting Mrs. Pitzel know of the proximity of her children. She was then in delicate health. I was saying to her, 'I am not going to let you see the children. I am going to England, but my delicate health prevents me from doing so. I am sorry to see you go. I am sure you will be well when you return.' She was then in delicate health. I was saying to her, 'I am not going to let you see the children. I am going to England, but my delicate health prevents me from doing so. I am sorry to see you go. I am sure you will be well when you return.'"

SEARCHING FOR MISSING BODIES. Chicago Detectives in Hot Chase After Disagreeable Odds. CHICAGO, July 20.—The search for the bodies of the Pitzel children, which began early today in the house in Englewood formerly occupied by the alleged murderer, H. H. Holmes. Yesterday's developments led to the belief that evidences of the supposed crime were concealed somewhere about the house and the suspicion of neighbors and detectives pointed strongly toward the cellar. The search was continued all day, but no trace of the bodies was discovered. The belief was that the bodies were in the cellar, and that the search would reveal the body of the second Williams girl from Texas, and possibly that of little Howard Pitzel. Inspector Fitzpatrick accordingly put a force of men to work digging up the cellar. The bodies of the Pitzel children and Miss Williams were found in the cellar. The bodies were found in a box, and were in a state of decomposition. The bodies were found in a box, and were in a state of decomposition. from the race. Alisa then sailed over the water. The crowd was estimated to be about 100,000. The race was won by the Vigilant in 1 hour and 15 minutes.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—The Press today prints an interview with H. H. Holmes, who was visited in his prison cell by a reporter of this paper. Holmes insists that he can prove an alibi with reference to the murder of the child, Nellie, in Chicago, and says the authorities here cannot prove that Pitzel was murdered in this city. In view of the finding in Chicago of the charred bones supposed to be those of Minnie Williams, as reported exclusively in the Associated press dispatches last night, Holmes' statements with reference to that young woman are interesting. He says: "I am innocent as a newborn babe of the charge of murdering the Pitzel children. I don't believe they were ever murdered, and if they were I am not guilty. Why, the last time I saw the boy, Howard Pitzel, was in Indianapolis. Miss Williams was then in Detroit, and we had arranged that she take the boy to her home in Detroit, and I followed her. Before I reached Detroit, however, Minnie Williams had taken Howard east and stopped in Buffalo. I then came east with the boy, and he was staying at the Hotel Toronto. We had been there a short time when my wife arrived. She knew nothing about the existence of the Pitzel children. She was staying at the Hotel Toronto, and I had no communication with her. I had good reasons for not letting Mrs. Pitzel know of the proximity of her children. She was then in delicate health. I was saying to her, 'I am not going to let you see the children. I am going to England, but my delicate health prevents me from doing so. I am sorry to see you go. I am sure you will be well when you return.' She was then in delicate health. I was saying to her, 'I am not going to let you see the children. I am going to England, but my delicate health prevents me from doing so. I am sorry to see you go. I am sure you will be well when you return.'"

SEARCHING FOR MISSING BODIES. Chicago Detectives in Hot Chase After Disagreeable Odds. CHICAGO, July 20.—The search for the bodies of the Pitzel children, which began early today in the house in Englewood formerly occupied by the alleged murderer, H. H. Holmes. Yesterday's developments led to the belief that evidences of the supposed crime were concealed somewhere about the house and the suspicion of neighbors and detectives pointed strongly toward the cellar. The search was continued all day, but no trace of the bodies was discovered. The belief was that the bodies were in the cellar, and that the search would reveal the body of the second Williams girl from Texas, and possibly that of little Howard Pitzel. Inspector Fitzpatrick accordingly put a force of men to work digging up the cellar. The bodies of the Pitzel children and Miss Williams were found in the cellar. The bodies were found in a box, and were in a state of decomposition. The bodies were found in a box, and were in a state of decomposition.
