The dispute between the from 6,000 to 8,000 people have been present city and the company, from the company's standpoint, was gone over thoroughly again. Mr. Wright exhibited a letter from the president of the company in Omaha which stated that the Omaha company had formerly made out its reports from the carbons; when a carbon was found burned out the light was Wood, hay, meat, grocery and confectionery reported to have been fully on. The police also kept tab on the lights, and at the end of the month the two reports were always found to tally so closely that the company had lately given up making separate reports, and accepted the report of the police as final. That the same plan should meet with results so different when adopted in Council Bluffs, to the manager seemed very strange. Every month there has been a large discrepancy between the two reports, but it has always been satisfactorily adjusted by splitting the difference. Now the council has determined to split no more differences, but take the report of the police as the basis for settle-

As a sample of the difference the police report showed that one light had been out twenty-two nights in the month, while the company reported it out only three nights. Had the old plan been followed there would have been a compromise, and the company would have received pay for about ten nights. Another place where the company was weak was called to Mr. Wright's attention by Al-derman Brewick. Right back of his residence there stands a light which Mr. Brewick watched very closely. In one month it was out five times, but the company's report showed it out but once. There are other similar cases, and plenty of them. The committee spent a couple of hours in wrangling, but at the windup had made no decision as to what sort of a report should be made to the committee of the whole when it meets tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. It is reasonably Tried a Confidence Game Monday night Chris Larson, who keeps a store at 905 South Main street, came very near being made the victim of a confidence game. A man visited his store and bought goods in value amounting to $4.50, presenting a check for $10 in payment. It was drawn on the Council Bluffs Savings bank, made payable to W. A. Bonter, and signed by the name of J. E. Loy, foreman of the Rock Island round house. Before accepting it Mr. Larson said he would go out and find whether Loy was good, and he invited Mr. Bonter to sit down and smoke a cigar at his expense until he should return. When he came back he had learned that Loy did not sign the check, and his man had disappeared, leaving the goods and check behind him. The man who attempted the confidence trick has been seen about Lower Main street, but no one seems to know who he is.

a warrant issued from Justice Cook's court harging him with assault. He lives with hi family at Twenty-third avenue and Sixth street, but is said to have had a good many disagreements with his family. According to the stories which blew up from that part of the town his wife stuck him with a hat pin burying several inches of the instrument of torture in his flesh, and he retaliated by putting her out of doors, using more force about it than was absolutely necessary. He then brew out all the furniture after her and duly declared the house for rent. There is a quarrel over the children, the husband being villing the wife shall keep all but the boy whom he wants. PLACER MINING ON CLARK'S FORK PAYS

Colors in Every Pan, with Good Wages for the Men Who Work-Beauties of Box Canyon in Shoshone Gorge.

SHERIDAN, WYO. July 15 .- To the Ed

tor of The Bee: Having recently returned from a trip to the Big Horn basin, a description of what I saw while there may be not without interest to the readers of The Bee My objective point was the upper Shoshone river in the Big Horn basin, Wyoming. To get there I bid adieu to the cars at Red Lodge, Montana's great coal camp, and anchored in a wagon which, through some process of a playful and lively imagination, became one of the coaches of the Red Lodge and Meteetse stage line. The route lies in a southerly direction across a mesa that rises high above the little city. From the tableland is commanded an extensive view of portions of Montana and Wyoming, a dazzling picture, one of nature's exquisite gems, with its cordon of mountain ranges, isolated peaks sunia valleys shining with silvery fringed with great cottonwoods, in fact, a scene none but a master hand should touch Leaving the mesa the road plunges into the bad lands, down a hill simultaneously, then up another, and no sooner is the descent of on accomplished when the ascent of another be-gins, and so it continues through nine long and weary miles. A piccadilly tenderfoot, whose name has been lost in the shuffle, was the head and only engineer of this sky-scrap-ing earth delving route, but he will long live n local fame as Doestick's bosom friend, the llustrious Damphool.

Since passing over this travesty of a road another and far more direct one has been completed by the public spirited citizens of Red Lodge. In the hills referred to runs a tiny stream known as Bear creek, where the great Great Creek coal mines are located. The greater portion of the deposit is covered by United States patent, and owned by a syndicate of Montana and eastern capitalists.

PLACER MINING ON CLARK'S FORK. Leaving the hills we enter the Clark's Fork valley, and reach the station on the river of the same name, some fifteen miles distant from Red Lodge. Along this stream many placer claims are being worked by means of herses and scrapers. Though the gelden deposits in this valley may not attain the proportions of an Alder, Last Chance or the horses overturned the buggy and a gun Florence, yet all the claim owners who are working take out daily good pay, which is confirmed by the frequent shipments of the yellow stuff to Red Lodge and Helena. The valley has not been thoroughly prospected, and it is but reasonable to infer that the great strikes of this region are yet to be made. Nor, so far as I could learn, has the source of this placer gold been found. A few years ago a railroad line was surveyed up this valley to and through the canyon, some fifteen miles away. The proposed route was to have its terminal at the great mineral camp of Cooke. A road to this great silver deposit from this side of the range would mean much to this country generally and to Omaha smelters especially.

A ride of some thirty-five miles brings us to the bridge which spans the Shoshone river where a postoffice is established, named Corbett. Up this stream to the Rattlesnake range of mountains and down to where it empties into the Big Horn river are thousands upon thousands of acres of the chole-est bench lands to be found in Wyoming, virgin soil possessing great possibilities. This now seeming barren waste will soon This now seeming carren waste will soon blossom into a garden and become the home of thousands of prosperous farmers. Jim Gammel, a noted prospector, is asso ciated with them in the development of their mining properties. When their placer grounds were reached a prospector's pan was placed at my disposal. I selected gravel from different points and panned out a number of pieces of coarse gold, and every pan showed up heavy "colors." The appearance of the gold—rough pitted, not smooth—indicates that it had not been carried far, and that the source was not distant, while the fact that the nearer the river bed the coarser the gold became, was a sure indication that the golden wealth lies in the river channel and that these are veritable river diggings. BILL CODY'S HOT SPRINGS.

Up the river and adjoining the lower placer daims are the Shoshone hot springs. During our stay we learned that in the interim the title had passed into the hands of Colone W. F. Cody. If true, he is exceedingly unate in acquiring a resort in such a highly picturesque and romantic region. The Sho-shone canyon commences at the hot springs. On the right bank a trail has been cut for a distance of four miles. At the end of the trail the Box canyon of the Shoshone canyon appears in al' its awful grandeur. A desire taken here today in the Hearne-De Young to employ adjectives in profusion comes over case. Mrs. Dr. Allen, who lives immediately me while thinking of the wierd and gloomy scene here presented, a scene that could not even be adequately portrayed by the pen of a Dante or the pencil of a Dore. The Box anyon deserves its name. It appears like huge box set in the Shoshone canyon and erving as the upper, end of the latter. owning walls of granite rise perpendicular great height from the river bed, while the waters seem as if in seething caldrons in this fearful chasm, a mile in length. At the lower end of Box canyon my guides have discovered the source from whence the gold in their placers come. Scaling the heights above the Custer we come to Observatory point, where can be had a view unparalleled on the American entinent. No description will be attempted. but instead a rough cutline of what lies be-low and beyond. At our feet the high walls of the Box canyon marks the line between the peaceful river above and the boiling and seething mass of waters below. About half mile above the canyon the north and south forks of the Shoshone uniter- The north fork appears like a huge silver ribbon studded with emeraids, the innumerable islands re-sembling so many gents. The valley grows smaller as the eye scans the scene and soon is lost to view in the west among the snow-capped peaks of the Shoshone range. Between and the mountains are seen scattere dong what one of our trio very unpoeticall described as "mustard plasters," but in reality are large and well cultivated ranches To the right can be seen the mountains sur inding the great silver deposit of the Sur ight basin.

The view of the South Fork, stretching to he left and well in front, shows the ranches in greater numbers, long ribbons of green stretching from the mountain sides ind running to the river's edge mark the ourses of dashing streams. Castle Rock, astellated butte, occupies a place by itself he valley, away from its brother peaks, and ppears to good advantage, while the crags f the Ishawood and the natural battlements on the eastern slope gives a charming effect to the scene. Further up the stream loses itself in a great canyon, flanked by the five towering peaks, doing sentinel cuty over the copper deposits of the South Fork, while still beyond Franc's peak looks down upor what is soon destined to be one of the lead ng mining camps on earth, but now only thown to local fame as the Wood River nining district. The view from Observatory coint must be seen to be appreciated,

KANSAS IS SHORT OF WHEAT.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., July 23 .- The Kansas State Millers' association held its annual convention here today and compiled the Kansas millers' estimate of the wheat harvest. Reorts are not in from all counties, but suffident returns have been made to indicate an 1895 yield of from 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 bushels of wheat in the state, about 40 per cent of which will be good enough to mill. A committee was appointed with authority to negotiate with railways for an emergency rate on wheat from Minnesota, the Dakotas, Oregon, Washington and Utah sufficient to meet the demands of Kansas mills. It is estimated that to keep the leading merchant mills of the state going from 7,000,000 bushmills of the state going from 7,000,000 bush-els upward must be imported. As it was apparent that seed wheat must be imported to supply the needs of Kansas farmers in certain portions, a committee was authorized to pro-ceed at once to arrange for the importation of Russian hard winter from the Crimea. All the millers express a determination to hold their flour trade if they have to import wheat throughout the year. They likewise, to a man, declared that the present state of affairs was never approached, much less par-
