MADE NOISE AND WERE TAKEN

Men Who Stole from Farmers' Wagons Under Arrest.

THEY ARE IDENTIFIED BY MISS WADDELL

Freight Car Robbers Charged with Grand Larceny—Colonel Izard's Trouble on Boarding Stable Keeper.

The quartet of bad men who were arrested for robbing freight cars have been charged with grand larceny on a complaint filed by officers of the company. Yesterday another complaint was filed against the men charging them with larceny. R. Waddell of Elkhorn was in the city on Monday and he made a number of purchases at Bennett's store. He was in the store and had his daughter in the wagon on the Capitol avenue side of the building while he went in to make some further purchases. The young woman was watching the passing multitudes when her attention was attracted by a noise behind her. She looked around just in time to see a man lifting a sack containing 100 pounds of sugar from her wagon. A similar sack had already been taken, and the two sacks were dumped into a light wagon that was standing near and the thief and the driver of the light vehicle disappeared around the corner. Miss Waddell called for help, and her father came just in time to see the men drive rapidly north on Fourteenth street. The matter was reported to the police, and yesterday Mr. Waddell and his daughter called at the police station. The two Hyans and Frank Gannon and James Edwards were brought out for inspection and she unhesitatingly pointed out Frank Ryan as the man who had taken the sack of sugar from her wagon. She could not identify the man who was driving the rig, but thought that Edwards was the fellow. Complaints were filed against the party charging them with grand larceny.

Proposes to Make a Fight. Colonel Izard, proprietor of the Colonade hotel, is having a lot of trouble over a horse, and from present indications he says he would not be at all surprised to have a charge of larceny or even murder lodged against him. He has retained eminent legal counsel and proposes to make a fight for his life and liberty. The trouble all came over an old skate of a horse that would bring about $3.75 on an active market. On May 26 a man named Thomas was arrested for trying to steal a lot of people. He was taken to the police station and locked up. He had the old gray horse in his possession and Acting Captain Sigwart, who was in charge at the station, ordered the animal put in the Colonade stable. After a day or two Mr. Izard called the police to take the horse away, as it was not worth feeding. This request was repeated daily for weeks, but the horse boarded on until a bill of $30 for feed was run up against the animal. Mr. Izard was getting ready to sell the horse for the claim when he was served with replevin papers issued from a Clontarf Justice court and asked to pay $50 for having kept the owner of the steed out of the use of the animal for eight weeks. The entire machinery of the legal department of the city is working on the case, and Colonel Izard is patiently waiting to see what will come out of it for him.

Serious Charge Against Block. Al Block, a driver of a laundry wagon, was arrested yesterday charged with having criminally assaulted Mary Wilnot, the 14-year-old daughter of a North Sixteenth street cigar dealer. The girl's story is that Block called at the store Wednesday night when she was alone at the place. He asked for some ice cream, and when the girl served it in the parlor he assaulted her and accomplished his purpose. Block admits the charge, but alleges that it was a mutually agreeable affair.

Officer Gorman's Great Luck. When Officer Gorman, one of the new policemen, picked up a vagrant whom he found sleeping in a barn, he had no idea that he was picking up $25. It developed so, nevertheless, and now Officer Gorman can sport a new uniform, for which he won't have to pay a cent.

Jailer Havey eyed the prisoner pretty closely, and came to the conclusion that the man was wanted. After Hansen was put in cell the jailer looked up his books and found a man named Henry part of December last that belonged to Henry Drees of Gretna had stolen $30, and had then left for parts unknown. The description given by Henry Keel tallied exactly with that of the prisoner, Henry Hansen. Mr. Hansen was consequently put through the identification process by Sergeant Whalen, and acknowledged that he was the man who was wanted, and that he had stolen the money. A reward of $25 is offered for his arrest.

Mr. Sammon's Star Boarder. Isaac Newman Overturf was married Wednesday night and his honeymoon pleasures were rudely marred yesterday morning. Prior to his marriage the boarder, Isaac had eaten three meals a day at the boarding house of Mrs. Sammon at 809 South Nineteenth street. He was something of a star boarder and was not pleased for payment of the bill. He had succeeded in accumulating a board bill amounting to $21, and after the marriage ceremony he went to the house to pack his belongings and leave the Sammon house. He was disappointed in his plans and yesterday morning he was arrested for attempting to defraud a landlady.

HAD WANDERED FROM THE CAMP. Thomas Armstrong Located Near Honey Creek Station.

The disappearance of Thomas Armstrong, the 11-year-old son of William Armstrong, residing at 1322 South Sixth street, has been explained.

On Monday the members of the choir of St. Matthias church in Omaha started for a week's outing at Hathorne lake, a few miles northeast of Council Bluffs. There were a score of boys in the party, which was under direct charge of Rev. Bonner of the church, and choirmaster Est. Dr. Doherty of Brownell hall and Canon Whitmarsh of the cathedral. The party was pitched at Hathorne on Monday and the day spent in preparing for the week's outing. A number of rules were adopted for the government of the camp, one of which was that the boys were to report at the camp each hour and thus those in charge of the party would be able to keep close watch over the lads and avoid any disaster. Everything passed along pleasantly on Monday and until noon on Tuesday. During the forenoon the boys went bathing in the lake, but young Armstrong refused to join the bathing party. A cousin of his had been drowned in Omaha and he was very much afraid of the water. Just before noon the lad failed to get in an appearance. A search was commenced soon after the party was made no report of the matter until last evening. Searching parties were at once sent out and just before noon yesterday the boy was found near Honey creek station. He had wandered away from the party and had lost his way. He was brought home last evening.

DISCUSSED STATE FAIR MATTERS. Race Course Reported as Being About Ready for Use.

The Omaha Fair and Speed association met yesterday and received notification that the state fair track would be completed within ten days. It was unanimously decided to invite all owners of light vehicles and bicycles to visit the grounds and use the track on and after August 7. The association discussed several additional contracts. The committee also considered the action of the Omaha Business Men's association on a joint issue of a hand book of information, relative to events during the state fair week, and suggested that in view of the many advertising schemes being sprung that advertisers patronize only those parties who have been awarded the contract for preparing the official edition. The development of many fine artesian wells on the grounds was reported. The soliciting committees reported progress.

COOPER REFUSES TO ACCEPT

He Proposes to Let Well Enough Alone.

DECIDES TO KEEP OUT OF OMAHA SCHOOLS

Majority in the Board of Education at Sea in Its Search for a Man to Succeed Dr. Marble.

There is consternation in the ranks of the members of the Board of Education who engineered the campaign against Dr. Marble. This is caused by the receipt of a letter from Superintendent Frank B. Cooper of Des Moines, in which he positively and finally refuses to accept the position of superintendent of the Omaha schools, to which he was elected by the Omaha Board of Education. The letter was mailed from Des Moines Tuesday afternoon and is now in the possession of President Akin.

In speaking of the matter to a Bee correspondent Mr. Cooper said he had not consented to the use of his name at any time, and that the afternoon preceding his election he had written to the school board, while in Omaha, that he would not accept the place should be elected. He believed this letter had been suppressed, as the board elected him anyway. When asked his reasons for not accepting Mr. Cooper said he had never been in Des Moines and from the first told the board he would not accept, but wanted them to elect Mr. Marble. After they did elect him he said he would not accept the place, as it was evident they would never agree on Marble. But even then he did not feel like taking back his first statement, that he would not accept. He said the plan was to have Omaha be stopped off on his way home from the west in response to a telegram sent to him at Salt Lake City. He then went back last Sunday morning and answered the telegram in accordance with the advice of friends. He was sorry he had done so, as it had evidently led the board to the conclusion that he might accept the position, when it was not selfish motives that had led him there at all.

PUTS 'EM IN A HOLE. The result of Mr. Cooper's action is to place the majority of the board in an extremely embarrassing position. For months they have endeavored to find a man who would be willing to accept the position and carry out the ideas of the derisives, who were demanding Marble's scalp. Several prominent educators have been approached with, but they invariably refused to devote themselves to the sectarian cause to the extent demanded. Finally the majority determined to elect Mr. Cooper, and trust that the prospect of a two-year contract and an increase in salary would induce him to accept. Now that the plan has failed, they are in a quandary where they can scarcely see their way out. There are several candidates for the position, but none of them are men of such high repute as Mr. Cooper could be expected to fill Dr. Marble's shoes. It is understood that desperate efforts are being made to induce Mr. Cooper to reconsider his refusal, but so far they have been without any prospects of success. In the meantime, the members who voted for Cooper will say nothing as to their future course.

Dr. Marble went to Des Moines Tuesday evening and has not returned. He is expected to arrive in the evening and was seen soon after by a Des Moines Leader reporter. He seemed much surprised when he was told that Mr. Cooper had been elected. He mailed his refusal of the Omaha position.

He said he had been informed by some of the members of the Omaha school board that word had been received from Dr. Marble that he would accept and he supposed there was no doubt about it. He had come to Des Moines Tuesday afternoon and had intended to obtain the position made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Cooper, and to explain to Mr. Cooper some of the things which he had received from the board. Mr. Cooper had acted in the best of faith with him and he wanted to thank him, now that it was all over, for the stand he had taken in his behalf.

Just before going to press yesterday afternoon Colonel Akin called the Bee and stated that he had received a letter from Mr. Cooper. "This," added the colonel, "throws the bars down again and I expect that we will be besieged by the candidates for the superintendency of the city like myself again. I am gaining every day." KMENT DISMOWS THE CHILD.

Introduced that Council Resolution to Please Another Member. Councilman Anton Kment allowed himself to be interviewed yesterday relative to the resolution which he introduced Tuesday night providing for an investigation of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners. First and foremost Mr. Kment denies the paternity of the measure. He had introduced the resolution at the request of another councilman who did not care to be known in that connection. Mr. Kment hastened to add, however, that from where he stood the resolution appeared to be a good thing. He understood that there were three populist members of the board, and this was not according to the contemplation of the law. He named the populist members as Stricker, Deaver and Brown. He had been appointed by a populist governor, and that, in his opinion, was prima facie evidence that he professed populist principles. As to what the resolution would accomplish Mr. Kment was somewhat in doubt. He thought that it might throw some light on the recent removals of policemen. He admitted that the council could do nothing, even if the report of the investigating committee should declare that the board was at fault. Anyway, it would indicate the subject and satisfy the demands of the people who were clamoring for an investigation. Just who these people were, Mr. Kment did not know, nor would he divulge the names of the councilman at whose instigation the resolution was introduced.

Mr. Kment's idea of the manner in which it is sought to be indicated that there are three members on the board of one political faith differs materially from that of some of the other agitators. The claim is made up in other quarters that there are three republicans instead of three populists. It is estimated that Stricker, Deaver and Brown are the only three members of the board in circulation. It is doubtful whether any member of the board can tell when he goes to bed at night in what political corral he will find himself located by the derisives when he wakes up in the morning.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION AFFAIRS.

Will Abandon the Annual Parade and Go into Politics.

At the regular meeting of Central Labor union held Wednesday night the following named delegates were received from Cooper's union No. 19: A. Miller, J. J. Brown and A. L. Scott. William Boyer was received from Carpenters' and Joiners' union No. 427. The Labor Day committee recommended that on account of the condition of the times no parade be given this year. A new committee, consisting of Messrs. Sebring, Bierman, Kerrigan and Baird, was appointed to report further in the matter. The committee approved to look into the feasibility of placing a union labor ticket in the political field by the support in favor of such a move. The report recommended that in lieu of holding caucuses and conventions that a general committee be appointed to investigate the matter, and make a report before further action is taken the present committee formulate and present a declaration of principles.

The report of the trustees showed a balance in the treasury of $201.99. Receipts during the last six months, $79; expenses, $91.89. A communication was received from the Commercial club inviting organized labor to take part in the coming Mardi Gras entertainment of the state fair. Messrs. Sabine, Kerrigan and Baird were appointed to confer with the club.

A committee from the Omaha Co-operative association—an institution claiming to be interested in the home industry movement and in the better welfare of workmen—was present, and asked for the union's co-operation. Messrs. Rowley, Cohen and Tracy were appointed to investigate the project. The semi-annual election of officers took place, with the result that every officer of the union, with the exception of sergeant-at-arms, was re-elected by acclamation, as follows: President, J. B. Schupp; vice president, J. J. Kerrigan; recording and corresponding secretary, E. S. Fisher; treasurer, J. L. Baird; treasurer, George Clark; sergeant-at-arms, C. E. Mathews; trustees, Ernst Langbein, A. F. Clark and H. Cohen. The action of Brokers' union No. 96 in extending its boycott to include all local made beer was indorsed.

They Thought the Law Lame.

A widow and her prospective husband, each of whom discreetly kept their names to themselves, stating that they desired to avoid notoriety, wandered into the marriage sanctum of the court house and demanded the presence of the law to make their two hearts beat as one. The clerk thought some inquiry might save the couple trouble. It was ascertained that the woman obtained a divorce just one month ago. When the couple were informed that they would have to wait five months they were quite wrathful at the harshness of the law which prohibited their marriage.

NOTSON ESTATE IN COURT

There is Not Enough Money to Pay the Claims.

MANY NOTES AND BILLS ARE PRESENTED

Attorneys Contend that They Will Recover on Policies Which Had Lapsed When the Woman Committed Suicide.

At this time the estate of Mrs. Ida Remington Notson is insolvent. What condition it may be in later on will depend largely upon the outcome of a suit that will be brought to recover on one of the life insurance policies. The suit is now being projected and will be brought early next fall. At present there is not enough money in the estate to pay much over 50 per cent on the claims. Judge Baxter called up the Notson estate for hearing and allowed over $500 of bills and notes yesterday. These claims are only part of the debts which, altogether, will be sufficient to eat up the amount on Mrs. Notson's life insurance policy, paid in by the Massachusetts Life insurance company. The total amount received by the probate court on this policy was $1724.74. The company before paying this sum paid Mrs. Gardner, a friend of Mrs. Notson, $250 on an assignment of her life insurance policy which is the reason that the face of the policy, $2,000, was not paid into court. Among the claims proved up yesterday were notes, almost all of them bearing out the theory of insanity, now generally accepted as the true explanation of Mrs. Notson's strange death. One of the notes, given to Alice Hitts for $25, dated December 23, 1893, was for money borrowed from a school teacher and contained the death clause familiar to Mrs. Notson's notes, providing that the money was to be repaid out of her salary, or, in case of death, that it was to be paid as a claim against the estate of her mother, in similar tenor follow in succession during the succeeding winter. Besides this many of the notes are uncommenced in their construction, some bearing interest after maturity and some until maturity. In the latter case after the notes fell due no interest is computed upon them.

The prospects for Mrs. Notson's mother getting anything that comes into the executor's hands after paying the debts of the estate, owing to the verdict of the coroner's jury. For a time it was a question whether the husband of Mrs. Notson was the heir, all depending upon the decision of the coroner whether Mrs. Notson or her two children died first. John Rush, the executor, states that inasmuch as Mrs. Notson was shown to have waded into the water with the two children tied together, or at least such appears to be the strong probability, the children must have died first. They were shorter and would go under the water first.

Besides this, Mr. Rush is in possession of the contents of a letter written by Mrs. Notson the day before her death, in which she desires her mother to fall heir to her property. This, Mr. Rush says, is in the nature of a codicil to her will.

Attorneys think that there is good prospect for recovering on the life insurance policy already partially lapsed at the time of Mrs. Notson's suicide. The recovery will be on the ground that she was not wholly negligent and at least had equities in the policy which the court will protect. So if a recovery is had the mother will probably get the money as the heir.

Improving Their Opportunities. The defendants who received permission from Judge Keyser to make answer in reply to the foreclosure proceedings of Eunice Baldwin, brought against her tract of land in the west end of town, have begun to avail themselves of the opportunity. Four started in yesterday by filing showings.

Wellington Burt, the main defendant, detailing the history of the Baldwin mortgage since the time it was first given on this land by a son, Morgan Baldwin, to his father, M. S. Baldwin. According to Burt's account of the affair, he had a mortgage dated in 1875 which was prior by some months to the Baldwin mortgage and under this he foreclosed. Since then he has sold the property to many parties. On the other hand, he charges the Baldwin with selling that mortgage and trying to foreclose on it in the district court and the United States courts.

Asking Pay for His Seeds. Charles McGuire is desirous of recovering the value of five tons of cucumber seeds which he alleges he sold to Phil Stimmel and P. T. Emerson under a contract dated March 20, 1893. McGuire holds a judgment for $200. He alleges the trustees of the court to intervene and assist in fighting the suit of Emerson against Stimmel, in which the various seedsmen are trying to force the parties who bought the cucumber seeds at the sale of March, 1894, to pay the value of the goods into court. It is claimed that the buyers are judgments against Stimmel individually and satisfied their claims from the partnership fund.
