A Mystery of Heroism.

A DETAIL OF AN AMERICAN BATTLE.

BY STEPHEN CRANE

(Copyright, 1985, by Traing Dacheller) . | red hate of the shells and each one as it ex-The dark uniforms of the men were so ploted seemed like an imprecation in the coated with dust from the incessant wrestling face of a mailen. of the two armies that the regiment almost seemed a part of the clay bank which shielded them from the shells. On the top of the hill a battery was arguing in tremendous roars with some other guns, and and, as after the roar, the shattered wall fell Fred Collins of A company was saying their feet. Its long, green grass was rip- shut up,

In a great convelsive death leap, pling gently in the breeze: Beyond it was the gray form of a house half term to pieces by shells and by the busy axes of the sodiers who had pursued firewood. The line of an old fence was now dimly marked by old weeds and by an occasional post, shell had blown the well house to frag-ments. Little lines of gray smoke ribboning upward from some embers indicated From beyond a curtain of green woods there came the sound of some stupendous soulle, as if two animals of the size of islands were fighting. At a distance ther were occasional appearances of swift mov ing men, horses, batteries, figgs, and, with the crashing of infantry volleys were heard, the crashing of infantry voleys were heart, often wild and frenzied cheers. In the midst of it all Smith and Ferguson, two privates of A company, were engaged in a heated discussion which involved the greatest questions of the national existence.

The battery on the hill presently engaged in a frightful duel. The white legs of the gunners scampered this way and that way, and the officers redoubled their shouts. The guns, with their demeaners of stelldity and self-possessed in this clamor of death that swirled around the hill.

One of a "swing" team was suddenly smitten gulvering to the ground and his maddened brethren dragged his torn body n their struggle to escape from this tur-noil and danger. A young soldier astride one of the leaders swore and fumed in his saddle and furiously jerked at the bridle. An officer screamed out an order so vio eatly that his voice broke and ended the sentence a falsetto shrick.

The leading company of the infantry regiment was somewhat exposed, and the colonel releved it moved more fully under the shelter of the hill. There was the clank of steel against steel.

A licutement of the battery rode down and passed them, holding his right arm parefully in his left hand. And it was as if thus arm was not at all a part of him, but belonged to another man. His scher and reflective charger went slowly. The officer's reflective charger went slowly. The officer's face was grimy and perspiring and his uniform was tousled as if he had been in direct grapple with an enemy. He smiled grimly when the men stared at him. He turned his horse toward the meadow.

Collins of A company said: "I wisht I had a drink. I bet there's water in that there of well yender."

"Yes but have you goin' to git it?"

"Yes, but how you goin' to git it?"
For the little meadow which intervened was now suffering a terrible onslaught of shells. Its green and beautiful calm had vanished utterly. Brown earth was being flung in monstrous handfuls. And there was a massacre of the young blades of grass. They were being torn, burned, obliterated, some purious fortune of the partle had made his gentle little meadow the object of the

A lieutenant of artillery floundered his horse straight down the hill with as great concern as if it were level ground. As he galloped past the colonel of the infantry, he threw up his hand in swift salute. "We've got to get out of that," he roared angrily. He was a black-hearded officer, and his eyes. which resembled beads, sparkled like those of an insane man. His jumping horse sped along the column of infantry.

The fat major standing careleasty with his sword horizontally behind him and with his legs far apart, looked after the receding horseman and laughed. "He wants to get back with orders pretty quick or there'll be no bitt'ry left," he observed.

HOLMES' CONFIDENTIAL MAN

Principal Accomplice in the Many Crimes Said to Have Been Located.

AUTHORITIES EXPECT MUCH FROM HIM

Now a Convict, but Promises to Give Up the Whole History of the Numerous Murders If He is Pardoned.

CHICAGO, July 21.-Pat Quinlan, under the CHICAGO, July 21.—Pat Quinlan, under the questioning of Chief of Police Badenoch, has let the cat out of the bag by admitting that "Mascot" was H. H. Holmes' confidential man in Fort Worth, Tex. "Mascot" is the man the police are tooking for. MYSTERIOUS WORK EXPLAINED.

The police discovered today the means by which the mark of a woman's foot became printed on the inside of the vault door. While examining the oil under the microscope the expert got some of the oil on his hand, and later placed two of his fingers on an iron They turned to regard Collins, and as they perceived him surrounded by gesticulating comrades, the colonel said "Well, by thunder! I gurss he's going."

Look Out for the Measles

They turned to regard Collins, and as they perceived him surrounded by gesticulating ward he roticed that the marks of his nukers were distinctly visible on the iron and all efforts to rub it off were futile. A test for acid in the oil was then made, but without result, as no trace could be found. A finer test on this point is to be applied. This discovery will clear away a groat doal of surmise to the province. on the part of the police as to the theory advanced by the expert that Holmes got a small quantity of this oil in a bowl, added-either petroleum, benzine, gasoline, or even kerosene to it and placed it in the vault. A deadly gas would be given off immediately and all Holmes had to do was to lure his deadly gas would be given off immediately and all Holmes had to do was to lure his victim into the trap and then shut the door. Death would soon result. The explanation of the footprints on the iron door is that one of the alleged victims in her struggles upset the howl and placed her foot in the liquid, which had run over the floor, and then in her struggles upset the self-size of the day and size of the size melling disinfection, deaderant and germ-cide—healing and cleansing. The police were today informed that at the st. 1,200 time Holmes was first supposed to have left St. 1,200 Chicago he did not go any further away than pay the stock yards district, where he opened a restaurant under the name of H. H. Howard. He employed a number of young women as waltresses, and is said to have had a new force nearly every day. Among them were two girls who came from Wisconsin. A few nights after they began work the neighborhood was startled by female acreams coming from the Howard restaurant. Several men ran to the building, and were in time to meet the two girls as they ran out of the hallway in their night clothes, and it was some minutes before they could be quieted sufficiently to tell their story. They said they had been sleeping together and had been awakened by a man, who had gained entrance to their room, and who had placed a wet cloth over their faces. They thought the cloths had been saturated with chloroform. Neighbors took the two girls in and cared for them, and before the police had an opportunity of arresting Howard he disappeared.

HUNTING UP MORE VICTIMS. Harry Walker of Greenburg, Ind., is now slieved by his friends to have been a victim f Holmes. Walker, it is said, was induced y Holmes to have his life insured for $10.-000 in Holmes' favor. He came to Chicago and in November, 1893, wrote in friends that he was at work for Holmes. It was evident, however, that the consultation had resulted in a change of program, for after it was ended Attorney Capps said that he might defer his little trip for several days, it was believed that Quinlan had given important information regarding the Arkansas convict, but its nature was carefully suppressed by the police.

Experiments were made today with the liquid found in the bottom of the vat in the callar of Holmes' house, and it was found that disposition he made of it.
