In the first place, members of the new board were not appointed at the proper time; the officers who should appoint did not unite in appointing them. The new members did not have the commissions which they should have as ap-pointees of the state. An injunction was were all completed, five resulted in draws. pointees of the state. An injunction was standing against the city council at the time the city council approved the bonds of the commissioners. Therefore, the members of the new board cannot take advantage of this wrong of the council and claim that members have nevertheless filed a bond as provided by law. On account of these facts the new board is in no position to assert that it has compiled with the law under which it lays othin to the office. "The old board is de facto such, because it is in possession of the office, exercising the functions of the office and in possession of its records." DISSECTING MCULLOCH'S CASES.

An lowa case cited by McCullech, it was shown, so far from suitaining his position, distinctly stated that had an injunction been brought in that case as was done in Omaha by Mayor Bernis such an injunction would have been maintained by the court, the circumstances otherwise being similar to those in Omaha. A case in the United States court from Wallace's reports was read by McCullech to show that an injunction would not be al-lowed against the president of the United States. "Of course that is good law," said Judge Doane. "It is absurd to content that the court would restrain a co-ordinate branch States. Of course that is absurd to contend that Judge Doane. Hi action tests the constitutionality of the al loged law of 1895, and his case will decid whether or not he is entitled as a membe of the Fire and Police board, ex officio, perform the duties appertaining to that o fice. So I say that the law is being teste good faith, and the members of board, as de facto officers fulfilling th duties of their station and performing the Gustav Wolff, Omaha...... functions of the Fire and Police board, have Elfriede J. M. von Minden, Germany..... in the decisions.

"I do not care to reflect or cast aspersions on the new board, as the other side has seen fit to do respecting the chief executive officer of this state, whom they speak of as guilty of some great derillction. What is it that the That he didn't trot attendance at the beck of these gentlemen at the very first hour al-most that the law went into effect; that he didn't meet them, when under the law they were given thirty days in which to act as an appointing board. I could turn around if I chose and reflect on these gentlemen for their unscemily haste. The governor was not bound to go out to meet them at 4 o'clock that day. He in fact was the one who was to call them together, as chairman of that appointing board, and he had thirty days in which to do 11. It is a piece of great as-surance, indeed, for these gentlemen to attempt to command the governor, and attempt to drag him into their presence to do that which the governor had thirty days allowed him by law for the doing of. But we know the purpose for which there was such haste. It they had not been so hasty to get the new police and fire forces at work the controversy might have all been determined peaceably. But they had their henchmen waiting anxiously for the fleshpots, and so waiting anxiously for the fleshpots, and so could not defer the appointments. But I do not care to press this line of argument; we are here simply to demand any defer are here simply to demand our rights."

HALL EXPRESSES DISPLEASURE.

The last speaker for the combine's board, who attempted to sustain the city council in its approval of the bond over the court's temporary interdiction, and which seeks to maintain the new board in office and estab-lish it there, in spite of the remarkable disregard of the very provisions of the law under which it lays claim to the position, as pointed out by Judge Doane, was R. S. Hall,

Mr. Hall laid great stress on the remark finade by Judge Doane that the old board in every view of the situation had a clear and prima facie right to held the office, so as to allow the controversy to be neareship out of allow the controversy to be peacably settled in the courts. This view of the situation did not please him at all, and he told the court sa. He also attempted to take issue with Judge Donne as to the remark of the latter that Frank Ransom was in a peculiar pesito say the least. Last winter Ransom stated that the law was unconstitutional, but he told others that it would be belatered up by subsequent legislation, which was never passed. This remark of Judge Doane's Hall defield, asserting that Ransom had declared the opposite to be the case, under his own signature. Hall turned to Ransom, sitting at his elbow, for corroboration, but Ransom said his views of the law had only been transmitted to future generations by word of mouth. Not backed up in his assertions on this score. Hall dropped this line of argu-ment, next trying to show that there was no ment, next trying to show that there was no need of commissions in order to authorize the rew board to act, although the laws of the state declare that state officers shall be armed with such commissions from the governor to give warrant for their authority to act. Hall then turned his attention to the quo warranto proceedings. On Saturday his side in its answer complained to the court because no such proceedings had been brought, and it assertied none would be brought. He can tended, the proceedings having been com-menced now, that it was in bad faith and to it assorted none would be brought. He can tended, the proceedings having been com-mended now, that it was in bad faith and to
