Meeting Devoted to a Discussion of the Absent Colleagues - Hopeful Conclusion Was Reached.

The meeting of the Churchill-Russell fire and police commission last night was noted for the enthusiasm which it developed. While the meeting did not continue in session for any great length of time, it was interesting enough to satisfy the most fastidious.

Early in the evening the superintendent of the city hall turned on all of the electric lights in his room, and a few minutes later the space outside the rail was filled by ex-Detective Haze, ex-Sergeant Sigwart, Jim Allan, Hy Pyburn and a couple of other men A few minutes later Paul Vandervoort, secretary of the Churchill-Russell board, rode up in the elevator and burried into the room, thinking that he was late. He pulled from his pocket a huge bunch of applications from men who would be policemen, deposited the package upon the table, and, mopping his classic brow, seated himself and commenced the examination of the documents.

For half an hour Mr. Vandervoort buried himself in thought, and then locking at his watch and noticing the time and the fact that neither of his associates had appeared upon the scene, a look of disgust spread over his features. He was about to adjourn his meeting when an idea as big as life popped into his head. "I'll do it if I die the next min-uie," he exclaimed in a stage whisper. "Do what?" asked A. G. Edwards, pres-ident of the city council, and Beecher Highy. city clerk, who had just entered the room. "Hold this meeting," answered Mr. Vande

Suiting the action to the word, Paul Vandervoort arose to his feet, and in a heavy basso voice said: "I move you that Paul Vandervoort be elected chairman pro tem of this meeting. Are you ready for the question at this time?" There being no objections raised and there being no prospect of an argument, Mr. Vandervoort added: "The motion is carried and Mr. Vandervoort is elected chairman pro tem. Mr. Vandervoort, you will take

As soon as he was elected Mr. Vandervoort changed chairs with himself, and then turn-ing to himself, he said: "Secretary Vandervoort, you will read the minutes of the last

"There are no minutes, Chairman Vandervoort," remarked Secretary Vandervoort to Chairman Vandervoort.

"Were the other members of this commis-sion notified of this meeting, Secretary Van-dervoort," asked Chairman Vandervoort, "They were, your honor," replied Secretary Vandervoort, addressing Chairman Vandervoort, "and besides that they knew that we were to meet tonight." "Strange, devilsh strange," muttered Chairman Vandervoort to himself, and again he thought.

"I have an idea," quietly suggested Secretary Vandervoort. "Give me your idea, and do it quick," commanded Chairman Vandervoort, as he looked out upon his audience of half a dozen, who were watching the proceedings of the meeting with close attention.

"My idea is this," answered Secretary Vandervoort. "Our forces have gone over to the

"Not this year," ventured Chairman Vandervoort. "You can't make me believe that Broatch has played me false. I saw him this afternoon and he pledged himself to be on hand at this meeting."

"And he's not here," answered Secretary Vandervoort, with a knowing look, as he winked an eye at Chairman Vandervoort, "all of which is a straw that blows in the wind." Chairman Vandervoort buried his head in his hands and commenced to think. After thinking for a time he raised his massive head, grasped Secretary Vandervoort's left hand in his own strong right and remarked Paul, possibly you are right. Let us go out

The suggestion was a catching one, and a ninute later Mr. Vandervoort had adjourned his own meeting and was well on his way down the street.

for Office. A meeting of the Swedish-American Republican club was held last night in the Patterson block. The proceedings were opened up with the transaction of considerable routine business, after which an opportunity was given for addresses. Among the speakers were Assistant City Attorney Ed Cornish, J. M. McFarland, Judge Berka and Charley

Mr. Cornish started out to eulogize the republicans who are now in office. He spoke of Mayor Bemis as a mayor of broad and liberal views, and one who had served the city in a commendable way, barring a few political mistakes, his stand on the present police controversy being one. He denominated Bolin as an honest man and as good a candidate as could be found anywhere. Mr. Cornish admitted that, despite the goodness of the present city officials, the people of the city were bowed down by excessive taxation and that they would insist upon the next officials being honest men. He therefore advised the republicans of the city to nominate a clean ticket, such Mr. Cornish started out to culogize the reof the city to nominate a clean ticket, such as the body of citizens would approve. He He eald that although he was not an A. P. A himself, he would stand by the order al

J. M. McFarland's speech consisted largely of stories and a panegyric of Tom Majors, "the neblest thing that God created," He said something about the police question, and then leaving that he waved the red flag. He said that every republican that left the party this fall would have to fight, because the republican party would scrap like a bull in whose face a red flag was flopped every time any republican got outside the ranks and would not get back in line.

He Bought a Home.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 8, 1895.—Mr. George W. Ames, City: Dear Sir—I have been all over Orchard Homes and must confess I was agreeably surprised at the beauty of your land and its pleasant surroundings. We visited a number of peach orchards in the vicinity of Orchard Homes and found all the early varieties had been shipped and sold at good figures. Of later varieties, the trees were loaded down.

A 20-acre truck or fruit farm, with the splendid shipping facilities at Orchard Homes, is the best purchase a man with a little money can make. He not only buys a home, but gets a lasting job and good pay for his work. The Illinois Central railroad runs fas fruit and vegetable trains to Chi-cago on about passenger schedule time, getting the Orchard Homes region stuff into market 6 to 20 hours ahead of any other locality. A man raised at Orchard Homes a crop of early Irish potatoes and got 200 bushels to the acre, which sold in Chicago at $1.25 to $1.75 per bushel. A crop of corn now growing on this same ground that will o from 50 to 80 bushels to the acre.

Have been all over this country, but think your Orchard Homes lands, taking climate and soil together, the finest place I ever saw where a man with so little capital and labor can make so much money. I bought 20 acres in Orchard Homes for myself and selected 40 acres more for friends of mine. Yours truly,

ROMANCE OF WILLIAM THOMAS FISHER

He Sought the Hand of Minnie Montgomery in Marriage and Threatened to Kill Her if She Ref sed Him.

"I will give you your choice of two things, either leave the city on the first train, or go jail, and be held there to answer to charges of threats to kill, that will be preferrel against you in the morning."

This was the edict issued by Chief of Poice White to William Thomas Fisher of Sharpsburg, Penn., a suburb of Pittsburg. This man is a well known inventor and expert machinist, and draws a salary of $3,500 per annum as foreman for a big manufacturing plant in Pittsburg.

The cause of the mandatory order, issued by the chief, involves an unusual story of Fisher's persistence in following Miss Minnie Montgomery from the east and threatening to end her life if she would not become his

Miss Montgomery is a handsome brunette, still in her teens, and a very fascinating young lady. Fisher is 32 years of age and good looking. The story dates back two years ago, when the young woman was a school girl. The man became infatuated with her and watched and followed her until he made her acquaintance through an introduction into the family. Nothing was known of his deep attachment to the pretty little miss for some months, when he made a request the parents for their daughter's hand in marriage. The father laughed the matter off and paid no more attention to it until a few weeks ago. Miss Montgomery became emaclated and morbid from some cause and began to waste away and lose her former brightness. When asked the reason, she replied that she was sick and wanted to leave her A doctor was consulted and he prescribed a change, and suggested Omaha a healthy place for the girl to regain er strength.

The mother, with her two daughters, ar-ived in this city and remained here from the 8th inst., until yesterday, when they left for Denver. Fisher followed them here, and he followed the girl so that she told her mother the reason for her nervous con-dition and broken down health. To a reporter for The Bee she told the following ory: "Two years ago I met Mr. Fisher, and being a young and inexperienced girl, I was flattered by the many little attentions he showered upon me. I never for a mo-ment thought he was serious, and treated him just the same as I did all of my other acquaintances, although he was at all times telling me of his love and his purpose to make me his wife. He at last became so fierce and jealous that I shunned him and was careful to never go out unaccompanied. One evening as I was returning from the postoffice he overtook me and said if I did not go with him for a walk he would murder

HE MADE HER SWEAR. "I was dreadfully frightened," said the young woman, "and went with him. That night he made me swear a terrible oath that I would be his bride. He swore me in such awful terms to secrecy that I con-sented to everything he said. I met him at stated times, and would plead with him to allow me to tell my folks. He would curse and say to me that if I ever breathed a word of what he had said to me I would meet with a violent death at his hands. "I was afraid of my life," she concluded.

"and as a last resort asked to be taken away from the city. When he met me here on the street I almost fainted. He glarel at me and said: "Well, you will not escape me. We will go to some park Ningara Falls. We can give you all the varied routes going or returning. For tickets or further information call on any agent of connecting lines or at Wabash office, 1415 kill you and end my own life, for it is worth-less without you."

After Miss Montgomery told her mother of the man's presence, she sought the ad-vice of the chief of police, who at once detailed Detectives Savage and Dempsey on the case. They soon located their man and brought him before Chief White. The officers were sent with Fisher, who purchased a ticket for Chicago and left.

Yesterday a letter was received from Fisher under a Chicago date, thanking the officers for saving him from doing viclence, and saying he would locate in the Windy city, as he was not strong enough to go back to the place where he had met

WANT TO BAR THE CIRCUSES. Effort to Shut Them Out of Omnha

This Year. Some of the members of the local state against the sawdust ring and their efforts have materialized in an ordinance, which will be passed upon by the city council next Tuesday night. The ordinance is not yet drawn, but it is understood that it will amend the present circus license ordinance so that the issuance of a license will be left to the discretion of the mayor. The champions of the ordinance allege that there is a prospect that Barnum's and Ringling Bros. circuses will come to Omaha while the state fair is in progress, and that it is for the interests of the fair that they should be excluded. The purpose of the ordinance is to carry out this idea by shifting the responsibility on the mayor, who will be called upon to refuse to issue a license to any circus that shall apply for one to show at the time of the fair.

As a matter of fact the agent of Ringling

Bros. has already contracted with the city for their license. The date set is fully a week before the fair. The coming of Barnum's show involves another story.

The present ordinance provides that the license for a first class circus shall be $300 per day. This is considered exorbitant by the showmen, and this year it is stated that the Barnum crowd has no intention of com-ing to Omaha and paying this large fee for the privilege of giving an exhibition in this city. The Barnum show is scheduled for this locality about a week after the close of the state fair. Consequently it will in no case conflict with it. But this year this show has made arrangements to exhibit just Iowa it will have to pay a license of $25 for the circus and another of $50 for the parade. The managers expect that they will draw just as many people from Omaha as if their exhibition was given on this side of the river. there is another side to the question which is being quite vigorously discussed by retailers and the general run of business men who are interested in anything that brings a crowd to Omaha. They assert that the circus will draw just as heavily from Omaha as though it were located on this side and will leave nothing to offset this draught on local resources. The daily expenses of a show like the Barnum aggregation are esti-mated at about $2,500, most of which is distributed at the point where it is enamped. Under the prospective arrangement hey assert that all this will be lost to Omaha, and the action of the city in making he license practically prohibitive be penny wise and pound foolish.

"Here we are contributing thousands of dol-ars for the state fair in order to bring people to Omaha," said the head of a down town re-tail establishment, "but when something comes along that will bring in thousands of people and not cost us a cent the city holds hem up for such a license that they prefer camp outside to being subjected to what hey consider an imposition. I think that he license business in this instance is a mistake, and that a first class circus is thing that should be welcomed instead of being driven over the river."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

"A Bowery Girl," a new melodrama, will be presented for the first time in Omaha at Boyd's theater on Sunday evening, August 18, the engagement continuing for the two succeeding nights. It is from the pen of Ada Lee Bascom, and is described as a comedy melodrama, with its characters drawn from that portion of New York from which the play derives its title, a quarter of the metropolis which abounds in enough kinds and ualities of character to furnish the melo dramas and sensational novels of the next cenury. Miss Bascom has made a study of the Bowery for months and drawn her characters very faithfully. Mr. Williams' company was selected by that gentleman in New York with special reference to the work he wished performed. Clara Thropp will play the Bowery formed. Clara Thropp will play the Bowery girl. She will be remembered as the dashing coubrette for many years with Evans and Hoey, and also with Neil Burgess, in his original production of "The County Fair," in which she created the role of Taggs. Other ladies in the cast are Miss Minnie Ryan and Emma Sardou, and among the gentlemen may be mentioned Harry A. Buckhardt, Andy Aman, George W. Thompson, Mark W. Cody, Edward Clifford and others equally well known. Ben Teal, the most noted stage di-rector of the present day, has charge of the stage production of the play for Manager Williams, who is known as a successful producer of melodramatic successes, and whose lavishness in stage settings is noted as prodigal in the extreme. A carload of special scenery is carried by the company. The Palisades on the Hudson, the house tops of New York, Paradise Flats and Mulberry Bend on the Bowery, the famous Bowery at Grand street, looking toward Cooper institute, the great fire scene, the explosion, abduction and rescue scenes are realistic. The sale of seats for the entire engagement will open this

A thorough test of the acoustic properties of the Creighton theater last night demonstrated the perfection of the new house in the respect indicated. Several members of the theater orchestra performed solos, and the Scandinavian Glee club, an organization which is too seldom heard in public, sang under the leadership of Mr. Norden a number of songs ranging in effect from fortissimo to pianissime and from grave to gay. Even the slight echo, which might have been expected in a comparatively empty house, was not discernible, and the balconies, though carried in this house unusually far forward, worked no harm to the quality of the lones produced from the stage, which were as plainly audible in the opmost gallery seat as in the proscenius boxes. Last season was the greatest the Empire theater, New York, of which Charles Frohman is the manager, has had. The only dramatic successes the metropolis enjoyed were produced there and had long runs, "The Masqueraders" and "John A-Dreams," the first of which will be produced by the Empire Theater company for two nights, commencing Thursday, August 22, this being the inaug ural attraction of the new Creighton theater.

"Liberty Hall," which also scored an in-stantaneous uccess in New York City, will be produced at the Saturday matinee, the en gagement closing Saturday night with "Sow ing the Wind."

Some Men

d ou't know yet that we carry a larger stock of Men's Shoes than an shoe store in town and that nowheres on earth can good qualities o shoes be bought any cheaper than we sell them.

We keep only good dependable Shoes, of sound leather and we ,1 made, otherwise we could not give such a guarantee with every pair wo

New Shoes Free, or Your Money Back, if they wear out too soon There isn't another concern in the land who makes such an offer and at the same time our prices are lower.

Notwithstanding the rise in Shoes we will continue to sell our celebrated Goodyear welt shoe for $2.50. We are enabled to do this because we placed our order for the coming Fall long before the advance in leather. Just now when other shoe dealers have hardly placed their orders, we are already getting in and opening our Fall stock. You wil be surprised what an assortment of shees you will find in our basement
