Good judges of large crowds estimated the atten-dance at 3,500 people. The grand parade scheduled for 9:30 a. m. was postponed un-til 1 o'clock p. m., starting from the camp grounds. Adjurant E. B. Brown was in comgrounds. Adjutant E. P. Brown was in com mand and headed the procession. Then came Mendel's drum corps, eight small boys, aged ing resolutions were adoptedr from 8 to 14 years, Prof. King's Minor club swinging clubs, eight little girls dressed in while, with double sashes made of red, white and blue colors over both shoulders and tied at the back, wearing upon their heads Scottish caps with long tassels, the Underwood cornet band in full uniform, the Neola volunteer fire department No. 1 and Council Bluffs High School Cadets in full military uniform, commanded by Captain Seanlan, with McFadden's drum corps, while a long line of old soldiers brought up the rear, some carrying clubs to represent guns. Hugh Dowling, an old veteran, carried upon his shoulder a rooster to represent the eagle. They were followed by the Knights of Pythias Crystal lodge of Carson with their banners flying, with Avoca Knights of Pythias Crystal lodge close in their rear, the parade being about four blocks long. The procession marched through the prin vinal streets with band and drum corps play ing, the cadets going through the drill, and returned to the grounds, where they listened to a most patriotic address delivered by Hon Frank Shinn, the only speaker present who had promised to speak. Hon. A. L. Hager, C. E. Saunders and other noted speakers were on the program, but failed to appear. The balloon ascension, due for 1:30, was postponed until 6:30 p. m. on account of high winds. This, with a match game of ball be tween Neola and Missouri Valley made up the day's program. The Council Bluffs cadets returned tonight and the Macedonia ladies' broom brigade are expected tomorrow, when the same program will be carried out.

The offense for which Riley had been arrested was for picking the pocket of a man living at Prescott, and this led to the confusion in the advisory telegram. It is now learned for a certainty that Riley after the shooting of O'Brien and the wild chase across the bottoms, reached the river shore, and there securing a log managed to navigate across to the Nebraska side on that, the voyage being a wild one on account of the floating ice. Near Bellevue he found friends of a shady reputation, who sheltered him until he could make a safe escape out of this part of the country. At the time of his escape James Raph saw him trying to ross the river on a log and told the officers, but there were so many conflicting reports coming in that all of them could not be investigated in time, and it now seems that the very one which was not thus run down was the very one which would have that the very one which would have

Was There Careless Driving?

Many of the bicycle riders around town, and especially the friends of George C. Pullman, who was so severely injured on the Manawa road Wednesday night by colliding with a carriage, are inclined to criticise some of the people who drive to the lake at night. Many of them seem to be utterly reckless of the rights of others, refusing to give even a small part of the roadway. Pullman's friends claim that he saw the team coming in the darkness, shouled to the driver, and got as far out of the way as possible, but in spite of all precautions was run down and badly hurt. The experience of most of the bloycle been uniformly kind and thoughtful and given half the road. Occasionally there is

New FOLDING BEDS Political Quarrel Ends With a Killing SEATTLE, Aug. 22 .- A political feud that

The effect most desired in a Folding Bea is that it shall be anything but a bed by day and nothing but a bed by night. Step by step we have improved it at both these points, and the Folding fied as now perfected is a triumph of ingenuity. By night it is a full fashioned, inxurious bed with not the slightest suggestion of the "cabined, cribbed, confined" berth above it. The sides are open their entire length, and the bed could not be detected from a regu-lar bedstead. Furthermore, in this bed there is a perfect system of ventilation through-out the day, and this removes the last pos-sible objection to a folding bed.
