Paid for Being Careless

James Smith, colored, who was arrested Tuesday night for firing a pistol on Doug'as street, was before the police magistrate yesterday on a charge of carrying c ncealed wespons. The testimony showed that he went into a saloon and refused to pay for a drink that he had ordered, and when made to settle, said that he would go out and buy a pistol and clean out the place. While careless y hardling the revolver it was accidentally discharged near a group of children. Five dollars and costs.

STEPHENSON'S

decided by the supreme court within the next Secret of the Petition for Street Cleaning by Contract.

WERE SIMPLY IMPOSED ON

Presented to Them Before Anything Was Known About Day Labor Plan and Signed as an Accommodation.

If any one believes that James Henry Stephenson, formerly street sweeping contractor, is not the possessor of a head long enough to anticipate several successive turns of the political wheel, there is a document now in the hands of the city council that vould cause that person to change his mind. Long before the Stephenson contract expired the labor unions were using all their influence to induce the council to give the day labor system a trial in cleaning the streets. The Board of Public Works favored the plan and it was apparent that such action would be taken, to go into effect when Stephenson's contract expired, July 1.

It was at this stage in the proceedings that Mr. Stephenson at n with a weapon with which he is now endeavoring to get back his remnnerative contract. Some time before his contract expired, and before the public knew anything about the value of day labor as a street cleaning medium, Stephenson had a brief petition written out on a typewriter. Armed with this, he visited the bankers and other business men whom he numbered among his acquaintances. The penumbered among his acquaintances. The pe-tition simply stated that the signers believed that the interests of the taxpayers could be best subserved by sweeping the streets under ontract, and as this statement was not particularly significant at that time, he had no difficulty in securing the signatures of about thirty of the best known business men is

PUT IT IN COLD STORAGE.

This accomplished, Stephenson quietly shoved the document into his pocket and waited for developments. On July 1 his contract expired and, as he had anticipated, the system of street cleaning was changed to day labor. Since then Stephenson has been quietly getting in his work on members of the council whom he considered friendly to is interests, and a number of the members, eaded by Taylor and Kennard, have announced themselves as in favor of a return to the contract system. But when it was rumered that such a scheme was on foot, the abor unions spoke out in meeting and declared that they would camp on the trail of every councilman who would vote for such a measure. Moreover, the records indicated that the day labor plan was saving more than $1,000 a month to the taxpayers, while the streets were kept in better condition than they were when Stephenson did the work with his machines. It was then pointed out Stephenson's forethought came into play and he dug up the petition which he had ob-tained long ago, dated it August 27, and sent it in to the council Tuesday evening. It was referred to a committee and the members who favor the contract have a definite basis to work on and can show that their position is endorsed by some of the heaviest property owners in the city.

SIGNERS REPUDIATING IT. But now that Mr. Stephenson's little scheme has developed itself, there is a disposition to kick over the traces on the part of many of the signers of the petition. John Rush of the signers of the petition. John Rush was one of the signers, but he says he signed long before he knew anything about day labor. "Mr. Stephenson brought me the paper," said he, "and asked me to do him a favor by signing it. I glanced over it and saw that it was signed by a number of the bankers, and so I added my name. Soon after that I had an opportunity to see what results were being attained by day labor, and I wrote a letter to Street Com-that he was in the same boat with Mr Rush. "I signed the petition," he added Rush. 'at the personal solicitation of Mr. Stephenson. I saw that the leading business men were well represented among the signers, and as Mr. Stephenson was well known to us, I added the name of our firm, simply as an accommodation. That occurred long before I knew anything about day labor, or the fact that Omaha laborers were to be employed in cleaning the streets. We are perfectly satisfied with the results of the

ay labor system."
A half dozen more of the most prominent signers of the petition were interviewed and they all told substantially the same story. They had signed the petition a couple of months ago at the solicitation of Mr. Stephenson, but since they had seen the economy of day labor they were in favor of it. One or two of the handers refused. of it. One or two of the bankers refused to say that he preferred the contract system to day labor. Troubled with Periodical Dysentery. Henry P. Silvera of Lucea, Jamaica, West india Island, says: "Since my recovery from an attack of dysentery some ton years ago, it comes on suddenly at times and makes me very weak. A teaspoonful of Chamberlain's Colle, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy taken in a little water gives me relief. I could get a dozen testimonials from people here who have been cured by this remedy."

REASONS FOR THE VETO.

No Evidence that Work Charged For Was Ever Performed. A bill of $63.50 In favor of the News Publishing company for city advertising was vetoed by Mayor Bemis Tuesday night on the ground that there was no endorsement on the bill from the comptroller's office nor was it accompanied by any proof of publication, as required by law. Deputy Comptroller Westberg declared that Mr. Bryant of his office had O. K.'d the bill and on this representa-tion the veto was not sustained. An investigation shows that the bill bears no O. K. whatever from the comptroller's office, nor from the finance committee. Similar bills from other newspapers are accommissionally and the companion of the comp panied by an affidavit showing that the pub lications have been inserted the required length of time and also a copy of the advertisement. They are also O. K.'d by J. S. Bryant for the comptroller. The bill of the News company bears no endorsement whatever, neither is there anything to show what it is for or whether the alleged advertisement

In fact we hadn't got to the top of the Rue du stiff west wind and the sky above us was black as ink. Where we'd got to I couldn't for the life of me tell, but by and by Jim stopped the driver before a third-rate drink-

Here a squat little woman, who didn't appear to have washed her face for a fortnight, was in talk with a girl who had a guitar in her hand—a poor, bespangled, squalkd looking wretch, who made her living, I don't doubt, by capering about before the scum in the har. capering about before the scum in the bar.
