THEY TURNED OUT AND MADE IT A HOLIDAY

Dullness of the Summer Season Passes Away with the Return of the Gay Ones Who Are Returning to Their Homes.

Scelety always enjoys a holiday, and Jubilee day was no exception. The day was perfect and after a drive through Elmwood park the arrival at the fair grounds was quite exciting, cars running, people rushing to and fro, and such a good natured crowd. All those who had a rig or vehicle of any kind took advantage of it and filled it to its utmost capacity. Almost all of Omaha society people were there, and although there land, Miss May Bartlett, Miss Mae Burns, was not much to see they enjoyed the novelty of the situation, and the faultfinders Miss Grace Himebaugh, Miss Brownie Baum, were few and far between.

Probably the most attractive rig was that of Miss Dickenson, drawn by her dapple grays, containing a quartet of pretty girls in dainty attire, who were the Misses Wilhelmina and Pauline Lowe and Emma Crandell.

In other carriages were noticed the follow ing: Mr. and Mrs. Jo Millard and Miss Jes-Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Carter and Miss Himebaugh, Mr. Her and Misses Edith and May, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. guests, Mr. Darling, Messrs. Guiou, Doane, Grary, McMahon, Cowin, Colpetzer, Burns and Mr. Shiverick, and Mr. George Barker and family. There were any number others.

Season after season dancing figures and formulas vary; long popular ones are thrown out of use; old ones revived or entirely new expressions incorporated in ball room lists. The waltz, however, continues to enjoy a vigorous old age, to be followed more dignified grace than formerly. A Parish Reception.

On Thursday evening Mr. B. A. MacAllas ter threw open the doors of his hospitable home to the members of the parish of the Good Shepherd and its many friends, to welcome the rector, Rev. J. P. D. Llwyd or his return from a summer's outing in Can ada, where he went in search of a muc needed rest. That he found it was evident in his greatly improved looks. The reception was also a farewell to the roung lay reader, Mr. Lewis Franklin, who has so faithfully performed his duties in Mr. Liwyd's absence, and who has endearco himself to the parish at large. The spacious rooms were crowded until a ate hour, enjoying the program prepared by a thoughtful host and hostess. Piano solos were rendered by Mrs. Mc-Farland, Mrs. Ellen Beall and Mr. East; a violin solo, by Mr. Ed Bradley, accompanied by Miss Grace Williams, while Mrs. Chace and Mr. Franklin made music on banjo and mandolin. Little Miss Starks, Mrs. G. B Lourie, Miss Grace Turner, Mr. Hiller and Mr. Cox entertained the company with select readings. Delicious refreshments were served in the dining room.

A Charming Dance. One of the most successful and amartest of he series of entertainments given for the Merry Moments club took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hoagland Friday evening. Owing to the charming weather dancing was kept up with great spirit until a late hour. Miss Helen, as usual, was the kindest of entertainers, and the party was voted a decided success. called the "Golfer's Polks," because it was first danced in the golf club houses at her instigation, and has hazards and bunkers very difficult for the uninitiated to overcome Its cleverness consists in polkaing through doorways, over all manner of obstacles., and joy of overcoming them, and a polka invariably winds up the games held this autumn Touching square dances, at every resort. Touching square dances, the simple, old Saratoga lancers stoutly holds its own, and society has reorganized the quadrille. No longer do the couples balance as side to the sides and end to the ends as formerly, but the side couples dance to the end couples, after a diagonal fashion, and every figure breaks into waltzing.

The german, meanwhile, has taken on new and wonderful forms, chief among them the coaching figure, when three couples, at the of a horn, rise, and joined by ribbon reins dance twice about the drawing-room gathering a complement of followers that must not number more men than women the seats of a coach will hold. The favors are whips, spurs, stirrups and the like and when a half dozen such turnouts are on the floor the music changes rapidly to polka, two step, waltz, gallop and yorke, dancers must instantly keeping their proper groupings of couples whirl past a judge's stand. At the end of the figure a series of prize favors are awarded, even into the fifth and sixth grade of comparative merit.

Nowadays, when weary satin shod feet are almost ready to turn homeward, the indefatigable musicians no longer play up as final measure the familiar strains of the Virginia reel. Even under the guise of Sir de Coverly this hearty square dance is no longer the last on the program, and all because a frollesome young person who had been playing at cow boy out in the west brought back to the east a civilized edition of an Indian war dance, that has captivated the polite drawing-rooms. This is a compro between the highland schottische and a Hungarian gypsy dance, with features truly American, punctuated with conventionalized Comanche howis and a brilliant finale, with the squaws and braves racing round in a wide circle, and so out of the drawing-room door at a signal.

THE ODE TO JOY. The first intimation that we have tha Beethoven associated the "Ode to Joy" by sketches for the Seventh and Eighth was developed into the Overture in C (opus 115), but even here we fail to find any intimation of the existence of a plan which produces the symphony. It is only a recurrence of his old resolution to compose music for the ode which now has assumed the proportion of a large work of the concert overture kind. In a book used in 1815 the first subject

used by Beethoven in the symphony is found
