Against American Meat.

Will Neither Allow it to Be Sold Without Inspection Nor Inspect It Themselves-American Certificates Not Sufficient.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 .- Secretary Morton has received through the State department a report from United States Consul-General Mason at Frankfort, Germany, on methods adopted in some of the German cities to obstruct and discourage the trade in American meats. An agent in southern Germany for a Chicago packing firm complained to the consul that restrictive measures enforced by local authorities at Freiburg had practically destroyed a formerly prosperous trade in that city. Similar restrictions were threatened at Carlsruh. The matter was at once taken from the United States consulate to the embassy at Berlin, with the expectation of preventing the objectionable proceed Ings threatened at Carlsrub. Meantime Mr. J. H. Thierot, United States commercial agent at Freiberg, was instructed to make a thorough investigation as to whether official hostility to American meats in that city was due to the discovery of any diseased or affected meats of American origin, or was simply the result of the agrarian spirit, which would from self-interest seek to exclude all foreign food products which compete seriously with the domestic supply.

The report just received is practically a summary of Mr. Thierot's investigation. was learned today that the local veterinary physicians at Freiberg had visited the principal meat and sausage dealers, warning them against the use of foreign meats, especially those coming from the United States. Dealers were requird by decree, moreover, if they continued to offer such means for sale, to post in their slops a declaration stating that the American meats offered for sale had passed only a superficial and insufficient in-spection, and that no guarantee of their purity, therefore, could be given.

In reply to a written protest made by subAgent Wohls, it is stated the city ordinance required that all slaughtered meats to be brought to the city be accompanied by a cortificate of inspection or else submitted for inspection to the municipal shaughter house, and that American slaughtered best. not being provided with any certificate that could be recognized, must be reinspected. This meat, it is stated, consists of beef shoulders pickled in brine and pressed dry in air tight casks, each barrel being accompanied by a United States Inspection tag certificate. It is used very largely in Germany for sausage and the receipts at Freiberg have amounted to about 12,000 barrels per annum. In all this importation not a single cask or piece of deceased meat was

A United States certificate of inspection ac companying American beef was held by the official veterinary to be insufficient. Many sausage makers refused to post the placard required by the Freiberg decree, deeming it derogatory to their self-respect as well as business interests, and discontinued using American meats rather than comply.

All the susage makers consulted by the United States commercial agent were unanimous that all persons who used American mests were satisfied with them and would have gladly continued their use. The result of the action of the local authorities is tha the trade built up at Freiberg has been practically destroyed, since the local authorwould neither accept our certificates inspect the meat, preferring to thus publicly discredit our meat products. Meats of precisely similar quality and origin con-tinue to be sold at Frankfort, where they have frequently been examined by municipal inspectors and have always been found wholesome and in good condition

The popularity of the Creighton theater matmees is evident to any one observing the throngs of ladies attending each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon, which effect is the result of the general excellence of the at-tractions offered and the popularity of the prices, 25 cents obtaining any reserved seat. "The Charity Ball" is the attraction for this afternoon's performance.

During the past summer Al Spink of "The Derby Winner" put in his spare time in St. Louis revising and generally strengthening "The Derby Winner," which opens at the new Creighton Sunday matines, and in its second season on the road it has proven to be more attractive than ever. Its scenic beauties have been greatly enhanced by the new and elaborate representation of General Grant's famous old log cabin, the stable scene, and the representation of the Derby day race. The dramatic action has been greatly improved, the situations strength-ened, the climaxes well worked up, and the east added to by the aequisition of such we known artists as Eddle Giquere, the little comedian with the double voice, Arthur Kherns, the Dutch comedian, Blanche Boyer and Dora Cole, soubrettes, and Miss Funice Rundy, in the role of the heorine. The old favorites, Miss Viola Arthur, who can ride a race horse better than any woman living, and Billy Eldridge, the famous colored actor, are still with the company. The specialties are all new. The buck and wing dancing, and the comedy business throughout add greatly to the attractiveness of the play. "The Darby Winner" is full of good wholesoms fun and will no doubt pack the new Creighton in its engagement beginning Sunday

The story of "The Politician" deals with the machinations of General Josish Limber, a scheming politician, who hits upon Peter Wooley as a compromise candidate for congress. Wooley is anything but a politician. He is rich, satisfied with his manner of life, thoroughly domestic, and loves his home and his garden patch. But Limber gets the women on his side and finally persuades Wooley to "let his name be used." It is used in the most lurid and band-wagon style. The interest culminates in the third act, which represents the ante-room of the convention hall. Limber works like a horse and carries the day, Wooley being declared the nomines. The lover of Wooley's daughter is nominated by the other side, which causes their engagement to be broken, and Limber falls in love with Wooley's niece, while her aunt sets her cap for Limber. All the complications are straightened out in the last act, which takes place in the dining room in Wooley's residence, where election On Wednesday and Thursday evenings Mr. teed will appear in the comedy, "Lend Me Park Corner. Dr. J. B. Ayers, 1801 South Thirteenth street, was held up last night at the southwest corner of Hanscom park about 8:30. The robbery was committed by three men and the doctor thinks he can identify one of them should the police capture him. A description of the men was telephoned to police headquarters. The doctor was robbed of $30 in cash. He had left his watch and other jewelry at home. He had been out to the new fair grounds in the afternoon and was on his way home when assaulted. I was so surprised that I did not comply at first, and he snapped a pistol in my face. I then threw up my hands. Then two other men sprang out from the bushes that border the road at that other two, getting up behind me, through my pockets. They took everything I had, and, seemingly not content with that, scattered my glasses, keys and notebooks in the road. When they had finished one of them said, 'Is that all?' and, letting go my horse, they quickly disappeared in the trees to the south of the park. I drove to No. 10 fire engine house and secured a lan-tern, and, with the help of a man named went back to the place where been held up and gathered up what few things I could find. I saw nothing of the men." The doctor was uninjured and was very glad to escape as easily as he did. Bad Darkey Arrested.

Thirst and Laziness Combined De

Ludyer Tardy, the best worker of "sympathy gags" in the metropoils, has succeeded once more by forcing the city to provide him with what he calls the luxuries of life. Mr. Tardy was arrested, relates the New York Sun, by a policeman of the Mulberry street station, and on the station house blotter opposite his name appears the word "insanity. It was written there by a brand new ser geant at the suggestion of the probationary policeman who arrested Mr. Tardy, and it was with a voice full of sympathy that the sergeant asked the officer for details. All many feared that it might pass into history moaning and crying:

"Oh, Mary! Mary! fer you ter bring me ter this. Oh, that I could see you now as I used outlook for the treasury and ter look at yer in the little ivy entwined cot- maintenance of its gold reserve "did yer ever love er woman?"

The sergeant almost sobbed aloud. "I did," went on Mr. Tardy, "and this is Tardy to. I was a struggling young artist the week. A crisis was reached this mornmy God, such eyes!"

"This is really serious," said the sergeant I must send in a call for an ambulance at

"Do," said the probationary policeman, who had his handkerchief out, "I'm sure Mr Roosevelt would approve" And so a call for an ambulance was sent in and the probationary policeman and the new sergeant carried Mr. Tardy into the back room and laid him on a bench. Here Mr. Tardy began to have spasms again, and he rolled from the bench to the floor and twisted himself around, raving about Mary's eyes.
The station house door flew open and an embulance surgeon, carrying a little black bag, entered, "Ah, doctor," said the new sergeant, "this is a case of the mind, not the body."

The sergeant led the way into the back

"Just look at the poor fellow," said the new sergeant.
"I see him," said the surgeon. "I've seen "Do you think you are in time to save "I guess so," said the surgeon. "Go and "I feel better now."

"I thought you would," said the surgeon, and then he explained to the sergeant that his prisoner was the biggest "grafter" in the Tardy got to Bellevue all the same. has been a prisoner in every station house and prison in town, and there isn't a hospital where, at some time or another, he hasn't occupied a cot. He seeks arrest constantly, and at Bellevue they have had him so man times that they put him to work the moment he gets in howadays. His game is free board and lidging. Pretending to be taken suddenly ill or to be insuno is his specialty. He prefers a hospital to a prison. Occa-sionally when overcome by thirst, Tardy will take a chance at jollying a bartender, and it was attempting this that got him into on Wednesday night. He entered a Houston street saloon, and, walking up to the bar with great dignity, said in his oillest tones: "Ah, me, but this is a delightful evening, trifle warm, and (a glass of beer, please) in gold coin to the treasury which have sufficed to maintain the reserve, but it has done so voluntarily and will continue to do so from agrd on the throat, but then we Americans, particularly us New Yorkers, must put up with these sudden changes of weather and ah, thank you," as the bartender placed a large schooner of beer in front of him. The bartender didn't look overconfident, but the flow of eloquence allayed his suspicions for the moment. Nevertheless, he gave a secrethe moment. signal to the free lunch man, and that vidual dropped his cheese knife and picking up a bung starter wandered over toward the Tardy observed the move, but dodging bung starters is part of his business, at

"But I'll prove it, sir," went on Tardy with track." lofty dignity, and he placed his schooner of beer in front of the wheel, which caused the foam to fly off in all directions. "There, sir, what man needs go ter the effort of blowin' off der collar of his beer when one er them things is around? Tardy drained the glass and lodged past the lunch man, who had dropped his bung starter and was wiping the foam from his eyes. But the bartender jumped he bar and caught Tardy at the door. Then he and the lunch man made a mop out of him and wound up their exercise by throwing him out on the road. The probationary Tardy, fearing he might be arrested for attempted swindling, immediately threw him-self into a fit, which resulted in his being conveyed tenderly to the station house. Tardy "kin t'row a fit," as he expresses it, or do his crazy act, on a second's notice, and he always does it in the most picturesque fashion man who knows him he gets roughly handled. but as a rule he looks out carefully and se who's on the best before he does his little

Tardy was greatly impressed by Bomb Thrower Norcross's attack on Russell Sage three years ago, and he made up his mind that bomb throwing was a good insanity racket. About a week after the Norcross affair he ran into the office of a big brewery up town, with a small package in his hand, and velled out: Give me $100,000 or I throw it!" "Hold on!" cried the cashier, turning pale Wait a moment, for God's sake!"

"Not a second!" yelled Tardy, and he made a move to throw the package, while the book-keeper, cashier and clerks dropped behind

Then with a yell Tardy hurled against the wall the package, which contained a piece of calf's liver. The liver stuck there, and the lerks, seeing that it wasn't a bomb, jumped op and ran to the window, yelling for the police. A ponchaman came rushing in and Tardy was soon on his way to the station house. Two weeks around the Bellevue nospital grounds,* inhaling the fresh river breezes and living on first class food, were his reward for this little performance. Tardy has a trick of going crazy in public laces, and some weeks ago he wandered into a branch postedice up town, worked his way into a crowd, and then began to swing his arms around and yell at the top of his voice. In about half a thinute he owned the place Everybody fied at top speed, and it was not until Tardy had exhausted himself and lay panting on the ground that even a policeman could be induced to enter the place again. Three or four times during the past year the man has cleaned out cable cars in the same way. Telling the story of his life for any-thing from drinks to money is another game of Tardy's, and although his tales differ, Tardy always figures as a broken hearted man. Before the afternoon had passed several of the city banks had come to the aid of the subtreasury with deposits of gold made in exchange for greenbacks. Explanations had been made by members of the syndicate and the firm which started the panic, and quiet had been restored when the moneyed institu-tions closed their doors for the day. The gold deposits made by the banks will offset the shipments of tomorrow. The Hanover National bank set the example with a de-posit of $500,000. That made $3,400,000 in gold that the bank has paid in, Presiden Howard said, since the last loan was made and the American Exchange National bank The sergeant led the way into the back room, where Mr. Tardy was making frantic efforts to touch the tip of his nose with his with another $200,000. With reference to this deposit President Sherman said that the $200,000 represented one-third of his bank's gold holdings, and that if all the banks contributed gold in the same proportions would be no further difficulty. The known shipments to Europe tomorrow will be $2,500,000 by Lazard-Freeres, $1,000. 000 by Crossman & Bros., $600,000 by Hoskier, Wood & Co., $200,000 by Hard & Rand and $100,000 by Nesslage & Fuller, while Handy & Herman will forward between $150,000 and $200,000. This will make a total for the week of $7,200,000, the largest weekly outflow on record, except the $7,700,000 sent out in one week last January, when the drain upon the reserve reached its highest tide. Explanations of the position of the bond syndicate toward the treasury and of the reasons impelling Lazard-Freeres to combat the policy of their colleagues were secured by the Associated press.

The following statement was authorized by the syndicate tonight:
"The impression has been general that the members of the syndicate entered into an agreement with the United States treasury to maintain the $100,000,000 reserve until October 1, and that upon that date said obliga-tion will crase. Such is not the case.
"The bond syndicate fulfilled all its obligations to the government in June last has not since been bound in any way to the treasury. It is true it has from time to time since last June paid over various sums the same spirit and for the same motive. "So far as October 1 is concerned, it has no relation to the action of the syndicate, and it will continue to deposit gold till Novemnecessary, and if existing conditions make it feasible to do so. But neither the syndicate nor any one else can control the elements. But the idea that its relations to the treasury situation will be any different on or October 1 than they are now and have been all along is erroneous and should be cor

SYNDICATE STILL IN THE FIELD. J. Pierrepont Morgan, the head of the bond syndicate, spoke reassuringly of the outlook to a representative of the Associated press He said: "The bond syndicate is still in the field. There has been no rupture. The syndicate will continue to do all it can to help maintain the reserve at $100,000,000. The obligation of the syndicate expired, however, some time ago." Mr. Mor-gan expressed surprise at the slow movement of the cotton crop and the present scarcity of the bills against breadstuffs. He said that undoubtedly the offering of these bills would be daily increased in the next few weeks and thus a safeguard against exports.

The following statement was made in writing by Messrs. Lazard-Freeres: "Hoping that bills of exchange against merchandis exports would come in the market in fair exports would come in amounts during the first half of September, we continued for a long time to supply our customers with bills of exchange, for which we could not at the time find cover. A combination of circumstances leaves the marke bare of commercial bills and makes neces-sary the shipment of gold to cover part of the accumulated indebtedness and to tinue the daily demand of the trade. The reasons for these conditions are in part the late cotton crop and the slow movement thereof to Europe, which is holding large quantities of cotton at cheap prices and it indisposed to buy freely at quotations no Further reasons are the poor demand for our wheat and the low prices it brings, and the cheapness of money at this center, which makes it undesirable for European bankers to increase their loanable fund-

In reply to questions, a member of the firm said he desired to state there was no special significance in the shipment of gold, but that it had to go to meet a temporary emergency, and that with the moving cotton crop in a few weeks the whole difficulty would adjust itself.

NEWS CREATED SURPRISE. WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The news that $4,500,000 had been withdrawn today for export from the subtreasury at New York was received here with surprise, and the an-nouncement created, for the moment, something like a sensation in the Treasury de-partment. This feeling, however, was not shared by the high officials, who apparently regard the withdrawal as an incident to the speculative spirit that seems to pervade Wall street at this time. The heavy withdrawals that have been made recently are declared to have been warranted by the present legitimate business conditions, or the legitimate demands for gold abroad. By some officials it is thought that the with-drawals are made with the sole purpose of forcing another bond issue. It can be stated however, on excellent authority, that there will not be another issue of bonds. The reason given is that none will be needed. These officials state the Morgan-Belmont syndicate, under the terms of its contract, undoubtedly will protect the gold reserve against the inroads of speculators, and will see to it that a reasonable balance is maintained No doubt is expressed that as soon as the grain shipments from the northwest have fully set in there will be an abundant supply of foreign bills on the market to meet every demand, and the withdrawals, it is thought must necessarily cease.
Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, fisi,62,586; gold reserve, $95,568,574.

The announcement that New York banks had deposited $2,400,000 in gold with the promise of a considerable addition to that amount was quite as much a surprise at the Treasury department as the earlier news of the withdrawals. This prompt action of the banks was favorably commented upon, relieving a depression and anxiety that pervaded the department this morning. Even those who, by reason of their long experience, are best able to judge of the situation, express themselves at a loss to account for express themselves at a loss to account for the continued and apparently increasing de-mands for gold. Never before in the his-tory of the department, they say, has the financial condition of the country contained so many contradictory situations, and never before have the officials been unable to give an intelligent forecast of what was likely to result from the next conditions. At this time, they add, everything seems going counter to the general expectations.

Several months ago it was stated that the supply of whisky withdrawn from bond just before the anticipated increase in the internal ternal revenue tax was about exhausted, and that the next few weeks would see a material increase in the revenues from that source. But the receipts have fallen below expectations, with no prospect of an advance. The receipts from customs sources were also confidently expected to advance at a rapid rate. It was argued the stocks of merchandise the country were practically exhausted, and that of necessity importations would show a marked improvement. It was predicted als marked improvement. It was predicted also that as the canning season approached the sugar importations would add materially to the receipts, and yet none of those expecta-tions have been fully realized. Though the receipts from internal revenue and customs show some improvement, there is a wide difference between the actual figures and confident expectations of the officials. Whether the acticipated cotton and grain shipments will relieve the situation so far as gold ex-ports are concerned remains to be seen. The amount of the exportations of gold during the last twenty months is unprecedented Since January 1 of last year the gold coin and bullion experted from the United States aggregates about $169,284,300, while the im-portations during the same period amount to only $48,813,500, which leaves the excess of exports over imports about $120,470,800.

In response to a call issued by four mem bers of the republican central committee for a mass meeting, about 200 persons gathered at Pivonka's hall to form a South Omaha republican club.

J. H. Van Duzen was chosen chairman and Sam Christie secretary.

The organization of a club seemed at last to have been entirely forgotten, as no one was asked to sign a membership roll, neither were the temporary officers made permanent The speakers were Judge Scott, W. J. Broatch, John T. Yates, Ike Hascall and Mr. Holmes. Judge Scott's speech was solely an abuse of The Bee and its editor. Mr. Broatch said he came down merely in the wake of Judge Scott, who he said had spoken truly from beginning to end. Holmes gave his reasons why the people should make him district judge. Mr. Yates advocated his candidacy for the clerkship of the district court, and Mr. Hascall repeated the speech he has so often delivered.

School Board Will Investigate. At present the gambling houses are not licensed, but they pay $50 per month each into the city treasury. This money goes into what is known as the emergency fund.
