OUT IN THE SOCIAL WHIRL

Ak-Sar-Ben Ball the Coming Event of the Season.

FORECAST FOR THE BRILLIANT GATHERING

Nebraska's Youth and Beauty to Be There to Pay Honor to the Mystic King—Caught in Society's Realm.

The Ak-Sar-Ben ball, which is now being discussed freely on all sides, will no doubt be the most brilliant and the greatest event socially which has ever occurred in Omaha. It will be to us what the Mardi Gras ball is to New Orleans and what the Veiled Prophets ball is to St. Louis. Nothing has ever approached it in its magnificence or kind. The Coliseum, which the knights have secured for their den, has been remodeled so as to utilize all of the space. The transformation has been so great that one would scarce recognize the immense hall. It has been painted white and the 6,000 yards of red, green and yellow bunting have been most artistically and tastefully used by experts in decorating. The place has an attractive air about it. The ground floor is to be used solely for the knights, maids of honor, ladies of the court and ladies in waiting and the dancers, and the south entrance is to be used exclusively by them. It has been divided off into a large space for the dancing and the floor has been relaid and a layer of cardboard put down and on this will be canvas, which will make it elastic and most suitable for dancing and will accommodate 500 couples. At either end of the main floor spaces will be railed off, carpeted in red and fitted up with divans and settees. Numberless potted palms and plants will be used to enhance the beauty and charm the eye. These will be used as a retreat by the dancers. Around the entire interior of the building will be a promenade. There will be two raised boxes—one for the king, the other for the ladies of the court, the maids of honor, among whom will be the queen, and the ladies in waiting. The dressing rooms will be most complete, containing all those things most essential to both a woman or a man's toilet; anything may be found, from a pin to a button-hook, or from a shoeblacking outfit to a razor. The upper part of the building has been cut into spaces and reserved seats are being sold for either side. There are to be two bands stationed in the gallery of the Coliseum. At the south end will be the First Regiment band, which will play concert music during the intervals between the dances. The Second Infantry band at the north end will play the dance music.

The identity of the queen will remain a mystery until the king appears at the head of his knights on a float embowered in roses. His page will present a beautiful bouquet of red and yellow roses and green foliage to the queen and then she will rise and acknowledge it and after a little ceremony she will be crowned queen. The crown, which is being made by one of the Omaha jewelers, contains a ruby, an emerald and a topaz. The sides are filled with Rhinestones. Surmounting the crown is a beautiful star, which can be used for a pendant, containing a large diamond surrounded by pearls. This will be a beautiful souvenir for the fortunate young woman who is to be the queen.

The grand march of the knights will be led by the king and queen, after which the royal lancers will be danced in the center of the floor. Then follows the dancing, which will continue until an early hour Friday morning.

The identity of the king will remain unrevealed until midnight, when he will unmask.

Although one is not supposed to know who are to fill these exulted positions, many flatter themselves by thinking they know. Many conflicting rumors have been heard. The knights are very enthusiastic about this ball, feeling confident of its success, as many of the best known society men have become its able and willing advocates.

The committee in charge of the ball is pushing the arrangements to make it a great social feature. It has been announced that no one will be admitted to the dancing floor unless in full evening dress. This is intended to apply, not only to the men, but also to the women. Every gentleman who wishes to dance will be expected to appear in the regulation evening dress, and every woman who wishes to dance will be expected to at least doff her bonnet and approach as closely as possible to what the social rules for such occasions prescribe.

The following is an interesting confession that has found its way into the society editor's mail:

"Do you know I was just thinking yesterday that it would be a very interesting experiment to behave in a perfectly natural manner—to follow one's inclinations, supposing them, of course, to be healthy, normal inclinations, for—say a month. Take a man, for instance. Now, I know several men whom I admire for different and various qualities, and am really and sincerely fond of—in degrees which I admit vary with the days, and do not at all correspond with my admiration of their individual attributes. Well, I should like to be myself for a period of thirty days or so with these men friends of mine. I should like occasionally to put my hands on the broad shoulders of one and say: 'My! but you're looking handsome today!' or I should like to tuck my arm through the arm of another and say, 'Come on. Let's run away for the morning and go out into the fields and get this glorious air, and—not talk if we don't want to.'

I should even enjoy saying once in a long while to one of them (of course it wouldn't always be the same one), 'I'm very fond of you.' I might even like to accent the 'very' and give his hand an affectionate little squeeze, or just pat his shoulder a bit—no more.

But, shades of Mrs. Grundy and our grandmothers! What would people say? What would the men themselves say (behind my back)?

I'm always wavering between a desire to be my own self, give way to my natural tendencies and make friends with men in a jolly, unaffected manner and the knowledge that unless I adopt a demure, Priscilla, violet-like air, I'll—nine chances to one—be termed forward. I am sure I should not be popular if I followed the bent of my inclinations, for I should develop what people would call personality, and you, I am sure, will back me up in the assertion that the popular girl, so to speak, has no personality. Still, the experiment I mention would be interesting, if not dangerous—or perhaps I might have put it more truthfully—interesting because dangerous."

Wheel Club Theater Party.

On Tuesday evening members of the Omaha Wheel club formed a theater party at Boyd's to hear Miss Pauline Hall in "Dorcas." Miss Hall is an enthusiastic rider and during her engagement in Omaha met a number of the wheelmen and women. One of the features of the party Tuesday night was the presentation of a huge bouquet in the form of the emblem of the Omaha Wheel club—a feathered "O"—in the club colors, cherry and black. Miss Hall displayed this prominently during the evening. Those who made up the party were: Mr. F. H. Siefkin and Miss Thomas, Mr. C. L. Mather and Miss Metcalf, Mr. F. H. Schwalenburg, jr., and Miss Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Turner, Mr. Arthur Angel and Miss Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lytle, Mr. Lon Root and Miss Battreall, Mr. E. M. Cox and Miss Gore, Mr. F. E. A Delightful Surprise.

A delightful surprise party was given Mr. Thomas Murphy, 2623 Dodge street, last Thursday evening. About 8 o'clock Mr. Murphy came home and found a merry throng awaiting him, who at once inaugurated a series of games, in which the entire company enjoyed themselves until about 11 o'clock, when an elegant repast was spread and partaken of. It was a complete surprise to Mr. Murphy, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by the following: Misses Marie Vom-Weg, Julia Lang, Katie Brudie, Jennie Centon, Agnes O'Malley, Susie Griffiths, Nell Burt, May Huse, Bertha Nehligh, Josia Groves, Ida Moore, Edith Kratz, Maria Stafford, Annie Richardson, Edith Stafford and Messrs. L. Vern Coy, F. Gross, O. Denison, J. Haegen, J. Dineen, F. M. Besen, J. O'Malley, J. Murry, L. Murphy, H. Burnett, Harry Wallace, Carl E. Long, Will Falconer, W. Bedford, H. E. Krebbs, D. Kenney, R. Krebbs, H. Coppach, P. Bryant, Thomas Murphy.

Where They Will Study.

Already trunks are being packed and our boys and girls, who have helped to enliven and brighten the hot summer days, are beginning to think of leaving for their schools and colleges, which are about to reopen. After their summer's rest and recreation they will be more fit to encounter the struggle of the coming year. Quite a number have gone already and others are taking their departure daily.

An Enjoyable Dance.

At the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barker was given one of the prettiest dances of the summer season in honor of their son Joseph, who is so soon to leave for school. The house was prettily decorated and the spacious rooms which are so well adapted for dancing were well canvased and filled with a happy throng of young people who were: Miss Barker, Miss Bennett, Miss Colpetzer, Miss Cowin, Mr. Drake, Miss Dickinson, Miss Anderson, Miss Dougherty, Miss Farnsworth, Miss Hoagland, Miss Hamilton, Miss Mae Hamilton, the Misses Morse, Miss Nash, Miss Adeline Nash, the Misses Peck, Miss Louise Squires, Miss Taylor, Miss Allen, Mr. Wallace, Mr. Connell, Mr. Allen, Mr. Samuel Burns, Mr. Caldwell, Mr. Creigh, Mr. Will Cowin, Mr. Larry Denise, Mr. Everett, Mr. Paul Hoagland, Mr. Hughes, Mr. Fred Lake, Mr. Paul Ludington, Mr. Wallace Lyman, Mr. Frank Morsman, Mr. Fred Nash, Mr. George Palmer, Mr. Pratt, Mr. Ralph Richardson, Mr. Herbert Rogers, Mr. Will Rogers, Mr. Green, Mr. Smith, Mr. Russell Wilbur, Mr. Hal Yates, Mr. Dwight Swobe, Mr. Swobe, Mr. and Mrs. William Redick, Mrs. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. George Barker and Mrs. Belden.

Dance at Hamilton Place.

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Hamilton was the scene of an unusually attractive dance on Wednesday evening, when the members of the Merry Moment club had their farewell meeting. Those present were: Misses Helen Hoagland, Louise Squires, Mae Hamilton, Mabel Taylor, Lorna Morse, Florence Morse, Ethel Morse, Anna Shiverick, Edna Cowin, Adeline Nash, Bessie Peck, Helen Peck, Miss Marshal of Lincoln, Miss How of New York, Mr. Fred Lake, Will Cowin, Fred Nash, Asa Shiverick, Russell Wilbur, Paul Hoagland, Joe Barker, Charlie Pratt, Sam Caldwell, Larimore Denise, Henry Allan, Will Rogers, Herbert Rogers, Mr. Green of Trenton, and Mr. Frank Hamilton.

A Pleasant Party.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Schroeder gave a farewell party Friday evening at their residence on South Tenth street for their son, Ernest, who leaves shortly for the east to continue his studies. Music, games and songs were indulged in and the evening was most delightfully spent. The farewell speech was rendered in a most satisfactory manner by Mr. John Hochstrasser, jr. Those present were: Misses Anna Pomy, Dora Pomy, Rose Hickstein, Minnie Hickstein, Clara Snyder, Dora Helmrod, Anna Fall, Anna Shroeder, Louise Schroeder, Pauline Schroeder. Messrs. John Hochstrasser, Frank Drexel, George Helmrod, G. A. Rehm, Henry Pomy, William Eck, Henry Eck, E. H. Schroeder.

A Tally-Ho Party.

On Monday evening last Mr. and Mrs. Hill chaperoned a jolly crowd of young folks to Waterloo, Neb., in a tally-ho party. On arriving at Waterloo they were met by thirty or more couples, and it was soon turned into a dancing party by invitations of Miss Sadie Hill. At 11:30 Miss Mayhew, Miss Smith and Miss Lange served a most delicious supper. Those from Omaha were: Misses Sadie and May Hill, Leona Felber, Lyda Burn, Nora Williams, Olive Sheldon, Ethel Seaver, Mable Emerson and Miss Rean. Messrs. Frank Drake, J. E. Van Dorn, C. Trussel, Fred Perry, Paul Vandervoort, jr., Dr. Ireland and John Gosney.

A Farewell Surprise Party.

Last Tuesday evening a farewell surprise party was given in honor of Mrs. Snider and Miss Emma Snider, at their home, Thirty-fourth and Blondo streets. Mrs. Snider and daughter leave soon for Des Moines, Ia. Those present were Misses Julie Bressman, Stella Wilson, Laura Platt, Ella Lindblad, Louisa Born, Verna Shrapshire, Phrylliis Born, Phebe Colwell, Bertha Ellis, Emma Snider, Mrs. Snider; Messrs. Lee Darter, Albert Lindblad, Dorcy Hughes, Fred Stiles, Bruce Phelps, William Baxter, Gus Bressman, Charlie Baldwin, Otto Born, Fred Anthony, Fred Martin, Arthur Ellis, Albert Mackey, Sam Ochenbein.

Took a Jolly Swim.

The young women and men of Clifton Hill gave their annual bathing party at the Natatorium Monday evening, and as usual the occasion was a jolly one. Those participating were: the Misses Epeneter, Miss Edith Van Buren, Miss Edith Gywnne, Miss Durkee, the Misses Gard, Miss Edith Howe, Mrs. Francis Lavidge, Mrs. Esse Burner and Mrs. Froom, Messrs. H. Percy Silver.

Echoes from the Rifles' Camp.

Except on a few special occasions the company drills were discontinued during the summer months and as soon as their engagement in the "Storming of Vicksburg" cranes and the festivities of fair week are things of the past the drills will again be resumed and until the national encampment next spring the men will devote their utmost efforts in perfecting themselves in military science in order to make another excellent showing and maintain their national reputation when the time comes to defend the Galveston cup.

It is the intention of the company to inaugurate their social season in the near future with a grand military hop, and if their social functions of the past can count for anything the holders of the national cup may look forward to another gay season of terpsichorean pleasure.

The principal event at the new armory last Monday evening was the third individual competitive contest for the Thurston medal for the best drilled soldier in the company. While the contest was close, Corporal Coverdale stood up the longest and was proclaimed the winner amid the loud applause of his comrades and friends.

The new lockers, gun rack and quartermaster sergeant's office are all complete, and in a few days the parlors and reception room will be furnished with the latest styles of draperies and furniture, which will make one of the most luxuriant and home-like quarters to be desired.

On the afternoon of Jubilee day the Thurston Rifles made an excellent showing under the able command of Lieutenant Will J. Foye, and appeared before the largest audience since the day they won their brilliant victory on the sunny soil of fair Tennessee. While the program was short, owing to other events, Omaha thus appreciated the well executed movements of her proud citizen-soldiery by the ovation given them as they left the field.

Private Bert Nason, who was so unfortunate as to break one of his limbs prior to departing for the state encampment of the Nebraska National Guard, is greatly improved and will be able to take his place in the ranks in a few weeks. The removal of Privates Frank Wallace and Archie Short to Chicago, and Privates W. B. Betty and Paul McCullough to St. Louis, deprives the company of a number of its best members.

Surprised by Friends.

A number of the members of Ruth Rebekah and Iva Rebekah Degree lodge No. 33, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, tendered Mr. and Mrs. James W. Bouk a pleasant surprise last Tuesday evening. Without warning the party appeared in a body and took possession of their home at 118 South Fifteenth street, where they proceeded to enjoy themselves. Mrs. Bouk was invited to the home of a friend, only to find upon her return her home filled with a merry party. The evening was very pleasantly spent with cards. Refreshments were served and all had a very enjoyable time.

Y. M. I. Socials.

Carroll council of the Young Men's Institute has arranged to give a series of six socials in the new Creighton hall. The first will be given on Wednesday evening, the 25th inst., and will be followed by one in each of the succeeding five months. It is the purpose of the institute to make this season's series of socials as select and enjoyable as its predecessors, and with larger and more desirable quarters the managers are reasonably sure of success. About 200 invitations have been issued to the inaugural social.

A Dainty Supper.

Miss Mary Hall of Sherman avenue gave a daintily served supper on Thursday evening, when her guests were seated at six small carnation decked tables. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Schneider, Miss Homans, Miss Montgomery, Miss Bates, Miss Genie Brown, Miss Parmentier, Miss Emminger, Miss Crowell, Miss Hutchinson, Miss Blessing, Miss Lehmer, Miss Fowler, Miss Althaus, Mr. Dodge, Mr. Colt, Mr. Tate, Mr. Cooley, Mr. Randall Brown, Mr. C. H. Wilson, Mr. Bauman, Mr. Haskel, Mr. Jones, Mr. Lawler.

A Charming Musicale.

On Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lehmer gave a most delightful musicale in honor of their neices, the Misses Morse. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Estabrook, Mr. and Mrs. William Redick, Mr. and Mrs. Whinnery, Mr. and Mrs. Congdon, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Wheeler, Miss Louise Squires, Miss Bell, Miss Keyes, Miss Marshall, the Misses Morse, Mr. Russell Wilbur, Mr. Herbert Rogers, Mr. Will Rogers.

Informal Entertainments.

On Tuesday evening a number of friends gave Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Whitney of South Twentieth street a surprise party in honor of Mrs. Whitney's 28th birthday. All had a pleasant time and those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Theil, Mr. and Mrs. New, Misses Annie Schultz, Albice Maestrich, Lottie Hughe, Gretchen Theil and Annie Damon, Messrs. Herman Schultz, John Schultz, George and Frank Hughe.

Willard Scott officiating. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Talmage will be at home after October 1, at 2552 Jones street.

Wednesday afternoon, September 10, a very pretty wedding occurred at St. Barnabas' church, Father Williams officiating, the parties being Mr. George Ploof and Miss Nellie Davis. Only the immediate relatives were present. Mr. Ploof is an Omaha boy, well known in business circles, being the popular city salesman of Paxton & Gallagher. Miss Davis has for several years made her home with Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Bryant. She is recognized among a host of friends as a lovely character and is one of the most promising young musicians of the city. Mr. and Mrs. Ploof left on the afternoon train for an extended wedding trip through the southern states and will be at home to their friends after October 1, at 3851 Charles street. No cards.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Eaton at Central City, where their daughter, Jennie Olivia, was united in marriage to Mr. Elmer C. Barge of that city. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple repaired to their own home where they will begin housekeeping. Miss Eaton will be remembered as having spent one season in this city.

The following card was received in town this week: Mr. and Mrs. George Bushnell Martin request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Corinne, to Mr. Dean Belden Lyman, on Wednesday, October 2, at 6 o'clock, at Trinity church, New Haven, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. Lyman will spend their honeymoon in Omaha, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lyman.

Mr. Edward Gilbert, son of Mr. James Gilbert, is home from the training ship St. Mary's of the Merchants' marine service.

Dr. Baetens received a cable from Cuthaven informing him of the safe arrival of his wife and party on German soil. Mr. and Mrs. Butler, Miss Mamie Munchoff and Miss Helen Mackin are with her, and all are well.

HE NEVER WROTE THE TENTH

Dr. Baetens Discusses the Musical Work of Beethoven.

SOME PLANS OF THE GREAT COMPOSER

With the Ninth Symphony His Efforts Ceased—Carried Out the Idea of Using Voices with Instruments.

In continuing the discussion upon the subject of Beethoven's ninth symphony, Dr. Baetens says:

The conversation turned on Goethe, and after Beethoven had described his sojourn with the poet at Carlsbad, Rochlitz spoke of his poetry and the inspiration it ought to produce in the mind of the musician.

"I know it—I know it," Beethoven interrupted. "Since that delightful summer at Carlsbad I read Goethe every day—every day that I do read. He has destroyed Klopstock for me. Does that astonish you? You laugh at the idea of my reading Klopstock? Well, I must confess that I have read him for many years during my walks in the country. Did I always understand him? No. He commences too low; always in maestoso; always in D flat. But he is grand, he elevates the soul, and if I do not altogether comprehend him I can divine him pretty nearly. Only he is always wishing to die, as if death did not come quickly enough. But that is all very well in poetry. But Goethe—he sees, and all his readers see with him. That is why one can put his words to music. I will say no more. No one writes better for music than he."

"I seized this fortuitous opportunity," says Rochlitz, "and without more ado wrote my proposition on his slate (for the poor grand old man couldn't hear any more). My heart beat rapidly when I handed it to him. He read it gravely—thoughtfully. 'Ha,' he cried, 'that would be a piece of work! Something might come from that!' And then, after a pause: 'But for some time I have busied myself with three other great works. Much is already hatched out—that is, in my mind. I must first rid myself of them—two symphonies differing from each other and both differing from my others, and an oratorio. All this will take much time. You see, for some time past I have not been able to write readily. I sit and think, and think, and get it all settled, but it won't go onto the paper. A great work troubles me immensely at the outset; once into it and it's smooth sailing.'"

FIRST USE OF VOICES.

And now for evidence as to the character of the two symphonies which Beethoven says were in his mind. Upon a page of the sketch book used in 1818 was found this memorandum in Beethoven's handwriting. He plans an "Adagio Cantigue," to be introduced as a pious song in a symphony in the ancient keys, or modes. There is a suggestion of the test in the beginning of a choral, "Lord God, We Praise Thee! Hallelujah!" The number is to be complete in itself, or is to serve as an introduction (or theme—"preposta") to a fugue. Then comes the suggestion (and it is noted for reflection) that perhaps the entire second symphony might be characterized by the introduction of voices, either in the last movement or already in the Adagio. In the finale the orchestra, violins, etc., should be increased ten fold. Or, another plan, the Adagio might be repeated in some manner in the last movement when the voices could enter gradually in succession. For the test of the Adagio, he suggested a temple hymn from Greek mythology, and for the subject of the allegro a festival of Bacchus. Had this scheme been put into effect it would most assuredly have resulted in a work different from his other symphonies. In this memorandum we find the first intimation of his intended use of voices in a symphony, but even here the uncertainty whether to introduce them in the Adagio (usually the second number of a symphony) or the finale; whether to use them as a vocal introduction to an instrumental fugue, or in an independent piece, shows that his plans were by no means ripe. The inference is plain that the first of the two symphonies, that is, the one which we now call the ninth, was designed as a purely instrumental work, and not alone the introduction of the "Ode to Joy," but the introduction of a choral part in any shape was an after thought. And now, for the nonce, we will leave this as the character it was designed. The tenth symphony should assume and watch the development of the ninth. During the four years following 1817 the work seems to have been almost entirely neglected, the time being taken up with the composition of three piano forte sonatas (op. 109, 110, and 111), the solemn mass in D, and the overture, "Consecration of the House." (Op. 124.)

In the summer or fall of 1822 the work was again taken up and great progress is shown by the sketches on the first movement. The appearance, however, of one marked "Finale" shows that meanwhile the idea had occurred to him of using the "Ode" in the final movement. But it is not fixed, nor is even the melody itself, for shortly afterward the words appeared with a new setting.
