RECOGNITION WOULD HELP LITTLE.

State Department Knows Little of Proposed Action Concerning Cuba. WASHINGTON, Sept. 17,-Save vague newspaper reports nothing is known at the State department of the intention of any of the governments of the other American republics to recognize the belligerency of the Cuban revolutionists, and it is quite certain that no formal application for such recogni-time from such recognition and the only comfort they would obtain would be from the moral tone which it would add to their power. During the previous revolution in Cuba several of the South and Central American republics did recognize the belig rent rights of the insurgents, but no benefit was derived therefrom. In the present case Mexico gave such recognition, as is reported, aside from the moral effect the practical result would be to stop the Spaniards from using Mexican soil or resources to operate against the insurgents. They could not buy any war vessels or equip any one with munitions of war in Mexican ports, and Mexico would simply stand exactly neutral feward both parties.

As it is reported that Spain is now fitting out some small craft in the United States to aid in the blockade of the Cuban coast this eding would have to be stopped at once proceeding would have to be stopped at once if the United States should extend recogni-tion to the insurgents. Either side could ship all the munitions of war they cared to buy in the United States to Cuba, provided go out as simple merchandise on merchant ships and are not accompanied by a force of men whose object is plainly to arm themselves therewith for hostile operations after leaving our waters, but as this can now be lawfully done at present. ognition would not extend any privilege now possessed by the insurgents in such cases. As far as the United States is concerned, however, it took such a pronounced stand in the case of the late Brazilian insurrection that it could scarcely recognize the insurgents in the case of Cuba at present without a correlate reversal of the next in the case of the same of the present in the case of the same of the present in the case of the present in the present in the case of the present in the case of the present in the present complete reversal of its position It has held that to entitle them to recogni-tion the insurgents must set up a seat of government and maintain it; that they must issue money, and must possess a navy to make effectual any blockade they wish to establish; in short, that they must have an actual defacto government. The State department is not informed that any of these requirements have been met by the

It has been known all the time that Mr. Paige advocated holding out for the full million and a half, with interest, which would have brought the claim up to about $2,200,000, but there were reasons which induced Mr. Olney to recommend the settlement of the claim upon the basis agreed upon. After this there is still the pawnbroker's

And after that is all over, the defense will begin the work of tearing the whole fabric to pleces; of rending the chain, link from link; in proving innecence in the face of an appearance of guilt, or of leaving the whole case to be clouded with doubt and conjecture. The lawyers for the defense, in the face of that no formal application for such recognition at the hands of the United States has

The thieves had monthly meetings at a rendez-vous and have at least once declared dividends. This is shown by the report of the treasurer. Woman Became Frantic a the Sight of a Cat.

It's a subject that is frequently talked ipathies between certain persons and certain nimals furnish fresh food for wonder and onjecture constantly. Every one knows well enough, says the New York Tribune, the aversion that the majority of people have for snakes—the horrifying dread that their presence excites. Many persons also "hate cats," as they term it. Their soft, stealthy movements excite a distrust that frequently amounts to aversion. It is seldom, however, that this is so pronounced as in a case which excited considerable comment uptown last It was of a young woman who live on Madison avenue. She had always had most unconquerable dread of the fell reatures, and she actually could not endure he presence of one in the room without osing control of herself completely. She was so sensitive in this particular that her amily declares that upon entering a room, if here was a cat concealed anywhere within it, she would at once detect its presence, and unless it were removed at once, would become hysterical. In fact it was a standing joke on er that on one occasion like this she became absolutely terrified, and, rushing up to a young man who was a total stranger to her, selzed him about the neck, sobbing desperately till the cat was taken away.

The girl was thoroughly ashamed of her weakness, as she called it, but declared she was absolutely powerless in the matter. Some instinct—it was no subtle odor—told her if a cat were anywhere near her, and the moment she detected it she straightway lost cholera was prevailing, and in two weeks there had been seventy-one cases and fiftyone deaths. The steamer did not go to the dock at Nagasalks, but everything that she took on board was transferred to her by boat. In a similar manner she took goods that had come by steamer from Shanghai. At Nagasalks it was stated that no whites had taken the chokers At Naghana. had taken the choicea. At Yokohama there was choicea, but according to the captain, it was not in the city, but inland. In two weeks there had been forty-seven cases and thirty-five deaths. The steamer took cargo at Yokohama, consisting of sliks and curies. No whites had suffered with cholera at Yokohama. On arrival at Honolulu every precaution was taken. The steamer anchored on the outer harbor and did not have any communication with the share except by boat. At the time cholers was increasing. The statement signed by Ellis Mills, the consul general, gives the number of cases as fifty-eight and the number of deaths as forty-four. The steamer did not use water from Honolulu even for washing the decks. While in the outer harbor the steerage was fumi-gated with sulphur. According to the statement of the city of R:o de Janeiro's sur-geon there was no case of quarantinable disease from the time she left Hong Kong. After listening to this statement and examining the papers offered in substantia-tion of it, Dr. Chambers gave it as his opinion that as more than seven days had elapsed since the steamer left Honolulu, there was no possibility of cholera being carried after all the fumigation and in spite of all the precautions taken. He went to see the Board of Health and was overruled by that body, which recommended the holding of the steamer and her fumigation at the island. The steamer went to Angel island at the quarantine station, where she delivered her mails.
