VERDICT AGAINST DURRANT

Jury Only Required Twenty Minutes to Settle His Fate.

WILD SCENE IN THE COURT ROOM

Crowd Loudly Cheered the Verdiet-Mother of the Convicted Man Completely Overcome by the Shock-Will Be Sentenced Friday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1 .- Theodore Durtrial since July 22 last. The jury was out twenty minutes and arrived at the verdict on the first ballot. As there was no recommendation of mercy the punishment was fixed at death. The scene in the court room when the verdict was announced will never be forgotten by those who were present. Judge Murphy finished his charge at 3:30, and the jury at once retired. Although there was supposed to be little prospect of a verdict being returned before 7 or 8 o'clock in the evening, the throng of spectators who had remained in the overcrowded court room all the afternoon to hear the judge's charge settlad themselves back in their seats to await the return of the jury.

Mrs. Durrant and the prisoner talked and laughed together, as if an acquittal were a foregone conclusion. They were joined by half a dozen friends, and the conversation was becoming animated when it became whis pered about that the jury had agreed upon a verdict. In an instant a hush fell upon the little circle that had gathered around the prisoner. Durrant's face, always pailld, asgumed a ghastly bue, and his mother was speechless. Then the big doors at the rear of the room opened and the jury filed in and took their scate in the box. Intense excitement followed, but the room, although filled to its utmost capacity, was almost as quiet as if it had been vacant. Judge Murphy, who had retired to his chambers, was summoned and took his place upon the bench. Clerk Morris asked the usual question as to whether the jury had agreed upon a verdict. Fore-

MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE. "We, the jury," said he, "find the defendant, William Henry Theodore Durrant, guilty of murder in the first degree."

As the aged foreman, pale and trembling, read the words that fixed Durrant's fate, a low rumbling noise like the roar of a mcb arose from the rear of the court room. The next moment men were cheering widly, while women wept hysterically in excitement. The bailiff rapped loudly for order, but the tumult continued for a moment before anything like quiet could be brought out of the disorder.

Then District Attorney Barnes arose and asked that a day be set upon which the senasked that a day be set upon which the sentence of death be passed upon the prisoner.

Judge Murphy said that sentence would be passed next Friday, upon which day he would also set the day for the trial of Durrant on the charge of murdering Minnie Williams. During the tumult that followed the appropriate of the verdict Durrant and amouncement of the verdict Durrant and his mother were lost sight of, except by the fow who sat nearest to them. As the last words of the verdict were uttered Durrant made a spasmodic effort to arise to his feet, but before he could do so his mother, with half sigh, half moan, threw her arms around his neck and sunk back into her chair. His mother's grief seemed to make Durrant for-get his own position, and for the next few minutes he sat with his arms around her neck trying to soothe her. The long strain of the trial, however, had completely shat-tered her self-control, and it was some time before Mrs. Durrant could leave the court

Durrant's father was not in the room when the verdict was returned. As soon as the jury retired he went out into the corridors, not believing that the jury would return for several hours, and he first learned that hi sen had been convicted when a cheer went up from the crowd in the building as the CONDEMNED MAN UNCONCERNED. Durrant recovered his old-time composure as soon as he left his mother and prepared to return to the county jail. With his overcoat swung carelessly over his arm, he walked leisurely out of the room, twirling his slight moustache with apparently as littl concern as if he were merely a spectator of instead of the principal figure in the excit ing scene. Aside from spectators, Mrs. Noble Blanche Lamont's aunt, and Maude Lamont, the dead girl's sister, were apparently the happiest persons in the room. When the verdict was announced Maule Lamont sprang from her seat, clapped her hands and then cried of sheer excitement. Mrs. Noble mixed smiles with tears and shook hands with a number of friends who crowded around to congratulate her.

soon as Durrant left the building the crowd surged out of the room and gathered around the door out of which the prisoner usually came to reach the prison van. Fear-ing that some violence might be offered the prisoner, he was taken out of another door and driven by a circuitous route to the county rant and his family, who had banked all their hopes on a disagreement. While Mrs. Durrant knew that it was not among th possibilities that her son would be acquitted her friends said she steadfastly maintained that a shadow of doubt would rest in the mind of one of the jurers and that her son would not be convicted. She was, therefore, totally unprepared for the jury to find he son guilty in twenty minutes. When the verdict was announced the whole weight her sorrow seemed to fall upon her and she gave way to uncontrollable grief. But once during the whole trial had she shown any anxiety or feeling. When District Attorney Barnes was yesterday in the midst of his most bitter arraignment of the prisoner whom he characterized as the most bruta murderer in the history of American juris-prudence, Mrs. Durrant threw her arms around the neck of her son and wept. A recess of five minutes was taken to give Mrs Durrant an opportunity to recover her com

By common consent District Attorney Barnes is given most of the credit for convicting the greatest murderer that was ever tried in California. While the police depart-ment did excellent work, it is believed Mr. Barnes' address, which consumed two days and a half in its delivery, had much to do with removing any lingering doubt from the minds of the jurors, if at any time there was a juror who was not convinced of Durrant's a juror who was not convinced of Durrant's fully descrated and illuminated, as was the guilt. Barnes' address is considered one of the most logical and eloquent efforts that was ever made before a California jury. He is torches. General Dickin son took exception to three features of the district attorney's argument today. He also took an exception to the judge's charge.

The people of the city are almost as much excited tonight over the verdict in the Durrant case as they were when the borrible Emanuel church murders were first discovered. For months the Durrant case has been the all absorbing topic here, and every phase of the most sensational trial in the history of the Pacific coast has been followed with close of the most sensational trial in the history of the Pacific coast has been followed with close attention. While some few of Durrant's friends profess to believe that it was impossible for him to commit the crimes, the general verdict is that he is guilty and should hang. The verdict of the jury was announced just in time for the evening papers and in an incredibly short time extra editions were on the atreets. Crowds gathered about builetin boards in various parts of the city and general satisfaction was expressed that the arch criminal of the century had been convicted. HEAR OMAHA'S COMPLAINTS criminal of the century had been convicted. MISS CUNNINGHAM'S STORY.

A similar communication was received from the lawyers and business men of Pauls Val-

When questioned today as to what course he would pursue in the matter of Mr. Davis's charges against Judge Kilgore, Judge Harmon declined to express himself, but there are very good reasons for believing that the judge's answer and the unqualified endorsement of him and his administration by the bar and many of the most prominent citizens of the territory are eminently satis-factory, and that there will be no investiga-tion or other steps taken in the matter.

If any doubt has existed that the action of the council Wednesday night in rejecting in the damnable plot, and in defiance of the law and of the authority vested exclusively the power to appoint the special policemen to serve at the booths on election day. That these men have been designated for the express purpose of furthering the political ambitions of W. J. Broatch and his highbinders is not denied. The fact that these men were appointed a week before election and that their appointment was kept a profound secret until this time is enough to indicate the motives of the conspirators.

exclusive right to appoint special policemen subject to the confirmation of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners. Section 134

THEY DEFIED ALL LAW. Sec. 134. The mayor shall be the chief executive officer and conservator of the peace throughout the city, and shall have Police Commissioners to appoint any number of special policemen which he shall deem necessary to preserve the peace of the city and to dismiss the same at his pleasure, Assistant City Attorney Cornish gave his spinion yesterday to the effect that under the existing laws the Board of Fire and Po-lice Commissioners had no authority to appoint any special policemen whatever. That power was vested solely in the mayor and while the commissioners held the power of onfirmation they had no right to arrogate to themselves the appointing power. The fact that a list was submitted to the mayor indicates that the members of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners were aware of the fact that the appointing power was vested in the mayor. The fact that they secretly made the appointments on the following day, before the mayor had an op-portunity to submit his appointments, shows that it was the deliberate intention of the board to evade the plain provision of the law and pack the booths with men who could be depended on for any criminal act by the dervish gang could be continued in its control of the city and county offices.

In order to appear to conform to the law which they practically nullified, the board has designated the men appointed as patrolmen, instead of specia; policemen. According to the section of the charter which is referred to in the letter of Chief Sigwart, the members of the Board of Fire and Police Com missioners have the authority to appoint patrolmen as the funds furnished by the city council will admit. Instead of making thei appointments as special police, they hav added twenty-four patrolmen to the regular force. These men will be assigned to duty on the day before election and then dismissed at the pleasure of the board. On this techni callty the board expects to be able to defy the law and carry out the infamous schemes remitting toil, day and night, to complete the time allowed by congress for its submission.

The authority for the statement that the extra "patroline" were appointed on Tuescentral Tuescentral Congression. day night, is Secretary Brownies of the board. No report of any such action was given out at the time, either to the repre-sentatives of the press or to the mayor. cretary Brownlee further explains that the extra police are to be assigned to regular duty, while the regulars will be put on duty at the booths. In this manner Broatch will make it certain that every man who is on duty at an election booth is one who is de-pendent on him for his bread and butter.

EVIDENCE CONTINUES TO PILE UP

Motives that Induced the Council to Reject Judges and Clerks. Evidence of the motives which induced the ouncil to turn down the appointments of Mayor Bemis of judges and clerks of election continues to accumulate. James L. Green was recommended by the mayor for the election board of the Fourth district of the Third ward. Green is a young man who is the sole support of a widowed and invalid mother. He has been out of work for nearly a year past, and the family is in destitute circui stances. He has been an applicant for at the office of the Board of Park Commissioners, and President Tukey is well ac-quainted with the family. He says Green is a most deserving young man, who has been unable to get work for a long time. Green lives with his mother at 1514 Cass street. He was one of those who were rejected by Saunders for fear that he could not be depended on to carry out the plans of the gang.

James Steele was also turned down. Saunders said he didn't know him, and that settled it. Steele lives at 2101 North Twenty-seventh street and has lived there for the past twelve years. He is 55 years old, and a republican. He was one of those who an-swered President Lincoln's first call for 75,000 men, and he never asked for his dis-charge until the sunset of the rebellion at Supreme Court Takes a Recess.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The United States supreme court, after sitting for three weeks, today took a recess until Monday, the 11th publicanism was in doubt.

If outward demonstrations can by held to gister the pulsations of the awakened sentini of a community, the mass meeting watch was held at the Collseum last night in the interest of the Citizens' movement was an suphatic declaration that the people of Omaha are aroused to the necessity of a determined effort to redeem their city from ring rule and sectarian domination. It was the manifestation of a popular sentiment that had tion? Do the decent people in this city its birth in four years of misrule and public really think it pays to be decent? Hundre's debauchery. It had gathered strength and volume while secret conspirators struck blow after blow at the first principle of American liberty, and it burst last night in such a tempest of public feeling as betokened a mighty uprising of the people.

It was such a convocation of the masses as was never before seen at a political meeting in Omaha. Its significance was not alone in the vast throng of human faces that covered the entire area of the immense building. Nor was it altogether in the tumultuous enthuslasm which greeted the centiments of the speakers and broke again and again at intervals into cheers. But there was something uncommon in the character of the audience the victory of '94, quadruple the ground of mutual congratulation and devout thanks-which indicated that the movement for regiving, and communicate a new impulse to form was not the creation of a man or a set of men, but the purpose and inspiration of all government. This was an audience representative at nce of the brains, the business, the muscle and the integrity of Omaha. It was composed of the most prominent members of every profession, of the most enterprising and successful representatives of every branch of business life, and of hundreds of men who bore the marks of their daily toil. It was not a collection of office seekers and political wirepullers, but of men whose McLaughlin, who shot and killed his mother, Mrs. McDole, at Olneysville last night, is still alive, but his death is only a question of a short time. In telling the story of the shooting today he said his only intention was to commit suicide. When he reached his mother's house he went to her, intending to tell her that he would no longer bother her. He put the pistol to his head and fired, the shot not taking effect. His mother grabbed his arm and the second shot went wide. As he recocked the pistol his mother pulled his hand and the ball went into her head. There were business men who had not voted at a primary in years, and whose conception of a campaign meeting was that it was something to be read about in the morning paper. There were lawyers and physicians whose only political duty had heretofore been to cast a ballot on election day, there were clerks and students, mechanics and day laborers. And they all came, 5,000 strong, not as politicians, but as citizens, not in hope of a place at the public crib, but a save the city which held their homes and children from a repetition of the misfor-

The fleet has not been as successful this year as it has at some other times, but the loss of vessels and men is below the average for the last twenty years. The figures show that eleven vessels, with a total valuation of $70,000, have been lost, while ninety men EVERY CLASS REPRESENTED. That the audience was to more than the isual extent composed of home owners was indicated by the number of men who brought their wives with them. This was alike characteristic of all classes.
