George F. Wright, William Moore, J. P.

Weaver and Charles Gregory appeared before the council and asked for the remission of taxes on the Driving park for this year. Mr. Wright acted as spokesman for the crowd. He said the company had always paid its taxes excepting during the years when meet-ings were held, and then, as the meetings were uniformly financial failures, the city council had remitted the taxes. Last spring an assessment of $125 was levied on each member of the company, and it was all lost At the trotting meeting there was a loss of 3,000, which fell on the men who engineered the meeting, so that the park was evidently not a financial success.

Alderman Brewick thought if the taxes or everything were remitted there might become difficulty about finding money to carry n the city government. Clear Downed the Dog. Officer Claar of the police force was compelled to exert a great deal of muscular energy and sole leather last evening in order o slay a little dog that might possibly veigh four pounds. The animal had evidently seen poisoned, or else had a case of the blind taggers. It ran into a motor, which knocked from the track, and then collided with several teams without serious damage to sther the team or the dog. Clear came along about that time and seeing the emer-gency, took in his hand the cane with which he has inflicted so many headaches and heartaches and beat the little animal several times over the head. Then he jumped on its head with his big feet and it was not many minutes until life was extinct. Sev-eral ladies and children watched the not very edifying sight and the ladies did not hesitate to say that the officer might have used a little less brutal method of doing the killing, if it had to be done. The Guild of St. Paul's will give an enter tainment of living pictures at Chambers' hall Wednesday evening, November 13, 1895. Ad-

look a Necessary Formality. Three times in succession the clerks in the First precinct of the Third ward have men being in their places. It took a lot of falled to fill out their election returns proptalk to decide just how much should be paid erly. The first time their neglect almost special policemen who served election day, cost the man who was rightly elected his position, and the voters congratulated upon and the auditor was instructed to pay | themselves that it would teach future clerks and Judges a lesson. A second time the same thing happened, but without any serious results. The third time was last Tues-

ous results. The third time was last Tuesday, when, it was developed yesterday, the clerks failed to fill out the blanks in the back part of the poil book, showing the total number of votes cast for each candidate.

The Board of Supervisors made the discovery when the poil book was opened. After discussing the matter a little, it was decided that the clerks had not complied with the law, and the returns, if such they could be called, must be rejected. Under the circumstances, the failure of the men to comply with the law, works no hardship to any of the candidates, for the republicans had enough votes to carry the entire county and township without the aid of the Third ward. If the election had been as close as some previous ones, however, it might have caused the winner no end of trouble and a good deal of expense to prove his title to the position to which he was rightfully elected. It only emphasizes the fact that care should be taken by the chart of expense to the fact that care should be taken. emphasizes the fact that care should be taken by the presiding geniuses of the ballot bex to earn all their salary. The clerks in this precinct were W. M. McCrary and Thomas McLaughlin, while the judges were L. Zurmuchlen, fr., F. O. Gleason and Charles Gregory, jr.

REFUSED TO REDUCE GRAIN RATES. Iowa Railroad Commissioners Think

Present Sente Fair to All. DES MOINES, Nov. 11 .- (Special Telegram.)-Some time ago a large number of petitions were filed with the State Railroad commission asking that rates on grain be reduced. It was represented by the petitioners that at present prices about one-third the value of grain was absorbed in paying the freight to Chicago, and it was asked that the rates be reduced to make them in some measure conform to the current prices on grain. Like petitions have been circulated all over the state, and the matter has attracted wide attention.

The commissioners today rendered an onlinton in the matter, in which it is held that grain rates, or at least the rates which it has been asked to change, are an interstate affair and cannot be changed by the state unthorities. As to the local rates within the state, it is held that these have been proved air in former hearings, and unless the petitioners have new evidence to produce no hearing can be granted. The petitioners are tendered the services of the stats comaission in getting the interstate matter before the interstate commerce commissioners.
