How to Prevent Croup.

Some reading that will prove interesting young mothers. How to guard against disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symp-toms and treatment is the object of this item. toms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup 's almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be lorgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy, for it conno danger in giving this remedy, for it con-tains nothing injurious.

PROMISE OF RICH DEVELOPMENTS. WILL CUT DOWN CITY EXPENSES George A. Holmes Tells Some Interest- All Departments Will Feel Effects of

ing Things He Expects to Prove. The prospects for the introduction of some racy testimony in the case of Mollie Graham Ing, the principal item of interest being the against the estate of Fred Leutzinger are report of the retrenchment committee apgrowing brighter. Some little trouble was pointed some time ago by the mayor, Confound yesterday in getting a jury together, it siderable interest was felt in the report of being necessary to draw forty names out of the talesmen's box. The jury was finally the talesmen's box. The jury was finally secured, and then the opening speeches of the attorneys were made. When George Holmes' turn came to tell what he expected to prove for the defense, he stated they would introduce evidence to show that the plaintiff had a reputation for chastity below par, and that her record in Neligh. Neb., where she lived previous to coming here, was somewhat stained by an accusation of murder. He also charged that he would prove that she had charged that he would prove that she had three husbands living, having secured a divorce from none of them, and was apparently on the track of a fourth when Leutzinger was keeping company with her.

Several witnesses are on the ground from Nellgh, Neb., who are conversant with the facts in the case of alleged murder. According to the story told a Bee reporter yester-day by one of them, when in that town she went by the name of Mary Anderson. One went by the name of Mary Anderson. One winter day some boys were skating on the river half a mile from town and found the body of a new born babe, bearing evidences of having been murdered. They reported the case to the authorities, and an investigation was made to discover who could be the mother. Suspicion fell upon Mary Anderson was made to discover who could be the mother. Suspicion fell upon Mary Anderson, or Mollie Graham, as she is now known. An indictment was returned against her, but she was acquitted. She alleged that Forest L. Putney, with whom she asserted she had been intimate, and whom she charged with being the father of the child, had taken the way from her at the black had been at the being the father of the child, had taken the Putney was indicted on her testimony and subsequently tried and acquitted of the charge of murder. His defease was an alibit and also that there was no sure thing that he was even responsible for bringing the child into the world, and therefore no incentive for him to get it out of the way.

Moilie Graham, alias Moilie Thorne, alias Moilie Anderson, was in the court room yesterday afternoon by her attorneys, Jacob Sims and Colonel D. B. Dailey. She was clad in a black slik dress answering the description of the one which Leutzinger, before his death, admitted having bought for her in St. leath, admitted having bought for her in St Louis. The court room was well filled with sensation lovers, entirely of the male per-suasion. The Leutzinger estate is represented by Thomas Maloney, one of the administra-tors, and Emmett Tinley and George A.

Holmes as attorneys.

Justice H. O. Cook was one of the first witnesses to be put upon the stand. He detailed the evidence brought forward in his court several months ago in a case in which Mollie was charged with assault with intent to commit murder. The evidence showed that she came up to Leutzinger's residence. armed with a revolver, and had threatened to take his life. He sought safety in flight, and had her arrested. The case was afterward dismissed, Leutzinger refusing to prose Another witness was Justice Ovide Vien.

He had heard the evidence in the case in which Leutzinger was trying to get the Graham woman out of the house he had rented her. He refreshed his memory from time to time with the notes which he had made at the time of the trial, and testified that while upon the stand Leutzinger had admitted giving the Graham woman a beaded cape belonging to his deceased wife. He also admitted buying her a black silk dress, also admitted buying her a black silk dress, paying her attorney for publishing the notice in her divorce proceeding, opening a bank account in her name, buying her a bedroom set, piano, carpets, curtains and household supplies. He denied, however, having ever stayed at the house all night, or eaten a meal in the house. He said the reason be had bought all these things for the woman was that she asked him to, and not because he particularly wanted to. He also presented her a gold ring with his intitals engraved inside.

Charles White, whose absence the other day was the basis of the Graham woman's day was the basis of the Graham woman's motion for a continuance, turned up in court as though nothing had been happened. He denied having been out of the city at all, although he admits that he would like to might materialize at any time. Although he was supposed to be the woman's chief witness, the fact is that the defense was the first to serve him with a subpoens. He r ceived one later on from the plaintiff also.

The trial is likely to occupy the next three or fourd ays. The petit jurors not engaged n the trial of this case were discharged yesterday afternoon until Friday morning.

Will Not Trouble Insurance Compales DES MOINES, Nov. 25 .- (Special Telegram.)-State Auditor McCarthy says a general misapprehension has gone abroad as to the import of a recent decision of the supreme court, in which it was held that fraternal societies must comply with the in-surance laws of the state. From this it has been understood that the intention was to compel all such companies to establish re-serve funds, and if necessary, to require them to increase their rates in order that they could do this. McCarthy says this is not the meaning of the decision. On the other hand, he says that no company or associa-tion whose plan of business does not involve the maintenance of a reserve fund will be required to establish one. Those which con-template the reserve fund feature will be required to make deposits of securities with the state auditor, as required of all com-panies. But the decision will not have the effect of driving any companies out of the business or seriously hampering them.

In the last year there have been 525 inmates of the home. This is 25 per cant more than the year before, when the number was 16 per cent larger than for the previous year. The authorities of the home sa he next eight or ten years will see the greatest demands on it, and they urge important extensions of its facilities. Appropriations aggregating $100,000 are asked, which includes $40,000 for a new hospital and $30,000 for a new building for old people. It is recommended that a plan be adopted to hold back from pensioners all amounts pai them in excess of $3 per month.

W. A. Belknap, Webster Street Depot.

"When Dr. Shepard began treating me I had been pestered for about 10 years with a catarrh that did great damage to my head and stomach. The usuar nose and throat symptoms of the disease were aggravated by a soreness through the head, making me feel that this part of the system was affected through and through. More or less mucus from the throat was swallowed, especially in sleep, and soon the stomach suffered from a sort of slow catarrhal infection. Among the resulting symptoms were belehing of gas, bloating and sourness. I had what the doctors called acid dyspepsia and constipation. My food seemed to lie on the stomach without proper digestion until fermentation and distress came on. "My course of treatment has brought me excellent results. The stomach trouble and constipation have been mastered, so that I enjoy a splendid appetite and digestion. The same good has been accomplished in handling the catarrhal affection of the head. So that I have no hesitation in endorsing strongly the doctors, who have been highly successful in my case."
