Probably the event of the sesson, socially, musically and dramatically, will be the German opera, to which all music lovers are anxiously looking forward. Dame rumor says that another one of Omaha's charming society girls is engaged. The wedding may occur in the spring.

Poverty parties are the latest fads in the cast, and ere long it is expected that they will be held in this city. Unlike our Cinderella dances, there is no limit of time, but of adornment. The company is attired like Cinderella, on an off night, when she is not at a ball. Any guest who puts on jewelry (gorgeous apparel is fined, and the money devoted to charity. One is afraid that the male element would predominate at these parties, for even the most Quaker-like ung ladles "love their clothes," by which they mean their best clothes. The majority of mankind, on the other hand, willingly dispense with their "go-to-meeting" garments and find it a great relief where the "regularespecting evening dress are surseem to be almost unnecessarily thorough, since even the invitations are printed on coarse brown paper. Though poverty is salto be no crime, it has a close relation to it, and perhaps fachion will some day have her crime paries. To have everything in har-mony the invitation cards (originally stolen) should have (in forged handwriting) the in-

One reason why afternoon teas are becoming so popular is because, when men are excluded, women can talk of their dress and their neighbors to their hearts' content.

A party of three, consisting of Luther Drake, Mr. Frank Hamilton and Lieutenant Hutchison, enjoyed the first night performance of Crane with unusual zest. The fact that the young hero of the play assumed the name of one of the trio made the amusing incidents of the evening particularly entertaining to this part of the audience. When Buchanan Billings wrote out the telegram to the hotel proprietor, asking him to reserve a room as near as possible to that occupie by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamilton, enroute on their wedding tour, the enthusiasm of this group apparently knew no bounds. After witnessing the wedded bliss of his stage counterpart, the friends of the Omaha verity be surprised if he should attempt to go and do likewise

Last Tuesday evening the pupils of Mr. Lee G. Kratz gave a most enjoyable and intersting recital in Commercial college hall o a large and appreciative audience. The program opened with a composition of considerable merit by Mr. Kratz, entitled erryices this year in Boyd's theater, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. William F. Gurley In Days of Old," sung with good taste by Mr. H. Wallace, Mascheroni's "For All Eternity" and Eckert's brilliant Swiss song were sung by Miss Mildred Timme in a decidedly artistic manner, which won for her well merited praise. Miss Timms also gave with Curtiss a duo by Mosenthal Myron an acceptable manner. Mr. W. Johnson Wheeler, gene B. Mariner's Home, the Sea," and Mr. Roy Penfold was excellent in "The Pirate," by Gumbert. Cowen's dainty "Love in the W. Johnson Meadow" was charmingly sung by Miss Allce Daniels.

One of the finest numbers on the program, Kucken's due, "Onward Through the Water, was sung by Miss Daniels and Miss Sword both voices giving evidence of rare talent and fine training. Miss M. Olyer, Messrs. Pen-fold, Cartiss. McMahon and E. H. Wedge contributed largely to the pleasure and suc cess of the evening.

OMAHA AT ATLANTA.

This tity Receives Honors Through

While the cities of the north, and, indeed, Salat-Saens the commercial centers of the world, are sending delegations, committees and repressolitatives of various frade organizations to Atlanta, Ga., to cuttivate the ampulmanes and altract the attention of the area; new youth, the individual effort of a single local firm has done more, perbaps, to make Omaha known at the great Cotton States and Interretional exposition than any number of delegations could have done. For within the past week the telegraph has announced to the world the awarding of the highest horors to the G. H. Hammand company, whose plant was the first of the great packing industries to be located in South Omaha. This award of the silver medal for having as exhibition of the finest quality of meat products must be a source of just pride to in consequence the veremony was one of the Noyes, more especially as nearly all the leading packers of the continent were competitors for the honor. Over three carloads of hams, breakfast bacon, lard, beef extracts and among them was one which was de- and innumerable cannot goods and other outputs, including their new cooking product, "Ccokine," were placed on exhibition. And an award by this committee of careful judges will add to the already widely known Hamnever before been witnessed, or rather, heard mond products, an additional celebrity that of in this city. This consisted of a telephone will not only be to the advantage of the fire will not only be to the advantage of the firm, but to the city of Omaha and the entire state of Nebraska. Not alone are goods sent to every state in the union, but shipments are also made to England, Scotland, Germany, France, Holland and other European coun-

The causes of success in business life are primarily painstaking care and a strict atention to details, and there is probably no branch of production in which care is more necessary in every process than in the providing of meats and the manifold products btained from live stock. To the admirable system and the utilization of every modern ppliance, material and device is due the great success of the G. H. Hammond company. Under the efficient management of Mr Noves the South Omaha establishment of this firm has obtained a position unapproached by any of the similar enterprises in the world. It is claimed that there is greater care used in the preparing and preserving of canned meats by this firm than in any canning concern in existence, and the grade of stock used in this department is matte of common notoriety on the markets.

A visit to the collossal plant at South Smaha will show the best arranged packing house in the world. It would seem to the ordinary observer that no detail, either with reference to facility or cleanliness could be added. And when the Cotton States and International exposition passes into history on December 31, that evidence of a new awakening in the south may be recalled by Omaha people with the pleasant knowledge that one of the city's chief industries received a well deserved honor at the hands of our brothers of the south.
