Witnesses Called 'At the Last Trial of

Hill's Case to Be Heard by Record. MATTER FORMALLY PRESENTED TO JURY

Attorneys Set Out What They Expect to Establish by Testimony and Call Three New Witnesses to the Stand.

LINCOLN, Dec. 3 .- (Special.)-It is evident that the trial proper of the case of the state against ex-Treasurer Hill will not occupy so much time as the former one of last May. The evidence in the last trial will be read to the jury instead of being presented orally. But in the present trial the supreme court but took it to the accretary of state and commissioners have been called in to sit delivered it to him. But in the present trial the supreme court with the three fustices of the supreme court These commissioners have heard none of the argument presented before on the legal points involved in the case. Consequently the proceedings may be prolonged beyond the present

Attorney General Churchill opened for the his remarks was addressed to attacking the point set up by the defense, that Hill's official bond was not a valid one. It is claimed by the defense that it had been signed by the bondemen with the understanding that it should also be signed by Principal Hill, The latter had neglected to sign the bond, hence, the bondsmen were not held. The attorney general said that there was no doubt in hi mind that when the bond had been duly sign y all the bondsmen, when Hill had, himself taken it into the rooms of the supreme cour and there affixed his name to the oath of office, subsequently carrying it to Governor Thaver and giving it to him that was a signing and delivery of Hill's official bond for $2,000,000. The attorney general was followed by Mr. Rinaker for the defense. He said that the lefendants denied that there had been file legal bond, and contended that ex-Treasurer Hill had faithfully performed the duties of his office for four years, and had, at the ermination of his four years' of office, made complete and legal transfer of all the state noney in his possession to his successor Joseph S. Bartley. Mr. Rinaker explained why Hill had not up to the time of the delivery of the bond, signed it. He said that Hill had purposely left off his signature for the purpose of rendering it null and void as against a portion of the bondsmen until all ad signed. In this way he accounted for the inadvertency in leaving off his signature.

DEFENDS HILL'S COURSE. Reverting to the customary practice of handling state funds, Mr. Rinaker said that since the beginning of the history of Nebrask as a state it had been the rule to transact the tate's business with checks, drafts and cer ficates of deposit. No safe place had eve seen provided by the state for locking up the money away from the people. All the money had been placed in banks. According to showing made by the attorney the transfer of the certificates of deposit for $285,000 from Hill to Bartley was a literal cash transaction throughout, for the reason that the Capital National bank gave the state a cash credi

Then Mr. Rinaker brought up the matter of the aminded answer of defendants setting up that subsequent to the commencement of suit, the present state treasurer, Bartley had begun another action in the federal dis rict court for the recovery of this identical $236,000. That point was a question of law to be argued further on, but it was a fact, it connection with the case, that such a suhad been flied.

Judge Broady, who appears as special counsel for Captain Hill, told the jury that in reality there were no issues involved in this case attacking the honesty or good char-acter of the defendant. The whole contention of the state was based, as he believed, on a technicallity. None of the money had gone to benefit Captain Hill. Everybody knew where it had gone, and what become of it. For a week after he had settled with his successor in office and the state auditor, the state had gone on doing business and chack ing the cash out of the Capital National The state knew where the money was. The state was going after it by a sult in the federal court, the logical course which should have been taken in the first place. Hill had made no unlawful conversion of the state's funds to his own use. Broady's argument occupied the time till well on toward the noon adjournment

WHEN THE BOND WAS APPROVED. At the opening of the afternoon session ex-At the opening of the afternoon session ex-Governor James E. Boyd was called to the stand. He is the first new witness, not hav-ing testified in the previous trial. He was called to detail the incidents connected with the approval of the efficial bonds of the state officers elected with him at the time he assumed the office of governor. He identified his signature on the back of ex-State Treas-Hill's bond, which was approved by him. Below this name was also the signature of Governor Thayer, both governors having approved the bond. At the time Hill was in the room.

Examined by Judge Wakeley, he said the bonds were all handed to Secretary of State Allen. Captain Hill had handed witness his bond personally. Q.-Was Captain Hill's signature at the Objected to by General Cowin and objection

A .- I did not notice the absence of Hill's gnature clse I should not have approved i Q.—Did you know that any of the bonds nen had signed this bond conditionally? Objected to on the ground that it was opening a new line of evidence. Objection overruled. A .- No; I did not know that such was the CRES. Q .- Had anything been said to you on the subject?

A.—Nothing; not a word.

After some skirmishing between the attor-neys witness was permitted to testify that he had taken the eath of office as governor before a netary public in the capitol building. Others had gone with him and their purpose was to forestall objections to their incum bency, as it was rumored at the time that the legislature might not immediately canvass the vote of the state. Subsequently the offi-cers-elect had taken the eath of office in the presence of the members of the supreme urt, Chief Justice Cobb and Justices Norval This was brought out on crossexamination by General Cowin. Ex-Attorney General Hustings followed Governor Boyd on His shad. The newly elected officers, he testified, had first as-

REPORT OF RELIEF COMMISSION

Bound Volumes of the Secretary Statement Received at the Capitol. LINCOLN, Dec. 3 .- (Special Telegram.)-L. P. Ludden, secretary of the State Relief commission, today delivered the first installment of the bound copies of the final report of the commission. The names of twenty-four employes of the commission, headed by W. E. (A. P. A.) Jones, appear in the front part of the report. From an examination of the total cash exhibit it appears that the office expenses amounted $8,449.82. The cash donations from private sources foot up $28,999.38. Of this sum $6,573.11 was spent for transportation. The cash appropriation by the state legis-lature was $50,000. Of this $23,608.56, or nearly one-half, was expended in transportation. In addition to this, $4,327.57 was paid for freight from eastern cities. Of the cash donations $148.87 remains on hand, and $878.53 remains of the legislative ap propriation. The cost of printing the re port is $690, or $594 with discount on war-rant. Of the cash donations $2,299.79 was paid for freight from outside the state.

Other printing bills figure $675.50, and travel-ing expenses $514.77. Recapitulation: Received from state and other Paid for provisions, coal and cloth-Paid for transportation, office expenses, printing and traveling expenses 46,460 62

The Bostonians showed the wisdom their generation, from the box office standpoint, in opening their present engagement with so secure a favorite as "Robin Hood." Nevertheless, a large if not an overflowing house greeted the initial production in Omaha of "Prince Ananias" at Boyd's last night, and received Mr. Herbert's sprightly music and Mr. Nellson's no less sprightly lines with as many marks of approval as could be expected from an Omaha audience in its first hearing of a piece.

The somewhat difficult score was a severe tax upon the resources of the local orchestra, which still struggled manfully through and should not be denied all credit for results achieved under trying circumstances. Mr. Herbert's work is coming to be well known and generally liked, both by musicians and by the uncritical public. "Prince Ananias" is particularly strong in concerted numbers, giving abundant opportunities for the intro-duction of the Bostonians' excellent chorus and for many agreeable and well written combinations of two, three, four and five voices. There is only one solo for bass, which Cowles delivers with fine effect immediately after the opening chorus, but his noble voice is often heard with others, notably in the grotesque quartet in the last act, which gives Harry Dale a chance to be very funny indeed as the Prime Minister. Jessie Bartlett Davis, in gowns which detract not n whit from her growing exuberance of figure, has two beautiful solos, one of which, "The Hamlet of Fancy," comes near to being the gem of the opera, and a charming duet with MacDonald, which occurs soon after. Harold Blake got a merited recall for his solo, and Helen Bertram fared as well for hers. Besides these numbers, there is a Trio of Liars, sung by Barnaber, Cowles and MacDonald, a chorus by the actors with Barnabee in the second act, a dainty minuet danced by shepherds and shepherdesses, an exceedingly well constructed quintet and chorus toward the close, and a solo by Frothingham, which, with its accompaniment, is a curiosity of exceptiony. Mr. Nielson's book is informed with the spirit of the time. It fairly bristles with puns and would seem to be in the nature of a gentle satire on the present condition of the stage. Certain technical allusions, it is feared, got away from most of the au-dience last night, but the house cannot be called a cold or unappreciative one. With the lugubrious entrance of Frothing-ham the fun waxed fast and furious, and the departure of Barnabee for the torture chamber, "another fond hope blasted," where his sufferings would have been lightened could he have seen the four-armed supes behind him, was a genuinely amusing bit. The final curtain shut out a hilariou, king, whose reign beneeforth was to b enlivened by "continuous performances, and whose favorites were to be rewards with all the Koh-i-noors in the woodshed. "Prince Ananias" will be sung again to-night, "Robin Hood" being repeated at the matinee this afternoon, and the engagement closing tomorrow evening with "A Time Wedding.

"Down in Dixie" closes its engagement at the Creighton with the usual matinee and evening performance today. This really ex-cellent melo-drama, with its atmosphere of the cotton field and magnolia bloom, not met with the patronage it deserves during the present engagement, and it is hoped that the public will not neglect the two re-maining opportunities to see one of the best melo-dramas presented this season.

CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

tee Company Bond.

REFERRED FOR ACTION THIS EVENING

Strict Inquiry Into the Legal and Financial Standing of Company Suggested - Less Insurnnce on City Hall.

The bond of A. G. Edwards as city treasurer was submitted to the council at the regular meeting last night. As was stated in yesterday's Bee, the document proved to be a guarantee bond by the Fidelity and Deposit company of Baltimore for the full sum of $400,000. In accordance with a caucus 'Incorporate the club with a capital stock finance committee with instructions to reof, say, $100,000. Embody in the general pert at a special meeting, to be held this arrangement, the bond was referred to the evening. The council convened at 7 o'clock, but the proceedings were had in the private room of President Edwards, which was carefully guarded from outside interference. The members were closeted with Mr. Edwards, who displayed for their edification statements from the officials which were intended to show that the organization was financially sound. Several members were unwilling to vote to approve the bond without further investigation, and the proposal to hold a special session was agreed on as a compromise At 8:30 o'clock the members filed out into the council chamber, the motion that the adjournment be to Wednesday night was put and carried, and City Clerk Higby read the signatures on the bend, which were those of Edwin Warfield and Herman E. Bosler, resident and secretary respectively of the guarantee company.

Howell moved the reference to the finance committee. He explained his position by saying that the presentation of such a bond as this was something out of the usual order in Omaha. There were a few practical points on which he wished the committee to base its investigations. Section 9 of chapter x of the Compiled Statutes clearly provided that any surely company must own any surely company must own property in the state to the extent of double the amount the guarantee company was actually paid up, and to thoroughly inform itself as to its standing and reliability. The motion to refer was carried without opposition.

According to the statements submitted, the capital stock of the Fidelity and Deposit company is $750,000; "additional liability of stockholders," $750,000, and surplus and undivided profits, $587,767,30.

Assistant City Attorney Cornish informed the council that the Martin Shields special police case had been decided in favor of the city. He added a recommendation that the special policemen be paid, as they had performed the services in good faith. The mat-ter was referred to the finance committee. Kennard created a stir among the councilmanic insurance agents by introducing a resolution by which the comptroller was directed to cancel $150,000 insurance on the city hall, $25,000 on the furniture and $25,000 on the boilers.

Howell objected on the ground that at the time the insurance was taken out the companies made a rate of 1½ per cent on condition that policies amounting to $400,000 be taken Kennard defended his resolution by declaring that the city hall was a fireproof building and that to pay for such an amount was a downright robbery of the taxpayers. Since 1892 the city had paid $4,477.68 in premiums. A motion to suspend the rules was lost and the resolution went to the committee on public property and buildings. Ordinances providing for placing the fire trol of the city electrician were read and referred to the finance committee, with instruc-tions to confer with the members of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners. The committee on police presented a favor able report on the recommendation of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners that the city jail and police court room be re-moved to the basement of the city hall. The committees on police and public property and buildings with the building inspector were directed to prepare plans and estimates pre-ilminary to the proposed change.

An ordinance was passed which amends the present ordinance to allow the city treasurer to furnish a guarantee company bond.
