DISCHARGED

Reports to the Court that it Could Not Agree.

WAS OUT THREE AND A HALF DAYS

Equally Divided from the First and Remained that Way to the End-Jurors Will Not Talk.

At 9:30 o'clock yesterday Judge Keysor discharged the jury in the Ish case on its report that there was no likelihood that it would ever be able to agree upon a verdict. The court room was only comfortably filled when the twelve nen were brought in by the bailiffs in charge. No great interest was taken in the affeir, probably for the reason that it had been expected that the jury would report a disagreement. Ish, who was unaccompanied by his mother for the first time, did not wear as confident a look as he has shown herstofore since the case was put in the hands of the jury. When the report of the jury was received, it was evident that he was disappointed. When the men had taken their seats, Judge Keyeor inquired if they had decided on a verdict. On receiving a negative answer, he asked if there was any prospect that they would be able to do so. The answer was again in the negative. He was told that the jury was divided six and six, and had practically remained the same ever since it left the court room for its deliberations. On receiving this statemen: Judge Keysor said that it would evidently be of no use to keep the men longer and thereupon he discharged

While the members of the jury agreeamong themselves not to say anything about their deliberations, one of them has given an inkling of how they stood. It appears tha the jury had not been six to six since it went out on Thursday afternoon. In fact, it is said that at one time it stood eight to four and at another even nine to three in favor of conviction. It is understood that even when the jury went into the court room, if a mavote would have decided the verdict two of the six who reported for acquittal

The member of the jury was loath to say what degree of murder the six men stood out for. He intimated, however, that it was a verdict of murder in the first degree, despite the common opinion that if a verdict of conviction was found it would not be for more than manslaughter. He did not hesitate to say that for himself he was convinced that Ish was guilty of premeditated murder and that he would have stood out for a verdict of murder in the first degree for all time to

WOHLGREN MURDER TRIAL TODAY. Court Does Not Allow County Attor-

Several somewhat varied criminal matters were before Judge Scott yesterday. The court made the order and stuck to it against the protest of Mr. Baldrige that the trial of Fred Wohlgren, charged with murdering Augusta Maitland, should proceed this morn-

"I want to see a county attornsy," said Judge Scott, and Mr. Baldrige appeared in The case of the state against Fred Wahlgren, charged with murder, will be called tomorrow morning, Mr. Baldrige. Have your witnesses ready," announced the court. Mr. Baldrige wanted the case continued until next term, or until next week. He said that he was ill, and that the case was an important one, and he wanted to try it himself. He had been so busy with other cases that he had not had time to prepare the case. He had not talked with any of the witnesses, and knew nothing of the evidence in the case. Then he said he had a number of important civil cases up, and had some business with the county commis-sioners that had to be attended to.

"I can't help that," raplied Judge Scott.
"Mr. Slabaugh is not sick and he is perfectly able to take up this or any other case. I have announced time and again that these rder cases must be taken up and disposed of this term. There are four county attorand these matters must be taken up. This Wahlgren care will be called tomorrow and you must get ready to try the DuBois case. I am going to have these cases dis-poved of if I have to hold all-night sessions of the court to do it. No civil case shall be allowed to stand in the way of a case where a

"Will your honor try the Barney McGinn case next," asked Mr. Baldrige, "and allow this Wahlgren case to go over another week?" "I have set the Wahlgren case for tomorrow morning," replied the court, "and you must be ready to try it at that time."

Then the court took up the matter of the disbarment proceedings against J. M. Miller. The bar committee presented a voluminous report, reciting a dozen charges against Miller and placing his former partner, Joseph Jay J. John Jones, on the stand to prove them. Jones did not get along very well with the court. He had a lot of letters and some-body had told him more things about Miller than he had ever dreamed of.
"Now, hold on," said the court, after a half hour had been consumed in hearing the evidence of Jones. "If you don't know any-thing more about this case, Mr. Jones, than your evidence has indicated, you might just as well go back to Kansas. I am not going as well go back to Kansas. Fiam not going to disbar a lawyer on heareny evidence. You members of the committee, you have not got the case digested. You have a lot of material here, but you have no system about it. I will set this case down peremptorily for hearing on Saturday and I want you to prepare your case and be ready to go on with it at that time."

A motion for a new trial came up in the case against William Glasgow, who was con-victed of robbing a street car conductor. There was no county attorney present and the case went ever until Saturday, when it will be argued.

The entire afternoon was spent in Judge cott's court in the argument of a motion for a new trial in the Cummings case. Cummings was a bartender at Goldsmith's saloon, and on the night of September 19, after the Ak-Sar-Ben parade, became engaged in an altercation with Judd Vance of Plattsmouth over a game of pool. A fight resulted and Cummings struck Vance over the head with a billiard cue, inflicting a fatal injury. Cummings was indicted for murder in the second degree and was found guilty of manelaughter.

In the motion for a new trial the defense presented three proposition. First, that the obligation to retreat from an attacking party does not apply to a man engaged in the pursuit of his duties in his own place of business; second that the court erred in instructing the jury as to the ele-ments of murder in the first degree, when that crime was not charged; third, that it was error not to allow the defendant to testify as to his motive and intention in striking the blow. Judge Scott will pass upon the motion for a new trial this morn-

Albert Griswold, a colored boy, not yet 16 years of age, was before Judge Scott at the afternoon session of the court for sentence. He was convicted of being implicated in the burgiary of the vinegar works. He attorney made a strong plea that the lad be sent to the reform school. It was shown that the boy was sent to the reform school at the age of 12 years, and was released at the expiration of two years for good con-

Judge Scott refused to be influenced by the attorney's plea, and said he would not send a boy back to the reform school who send a boy back to the reform achool who had been given an opportunity to reform and had failed to improve it. The prisoner broke down completely when the court made the statement. When called before the court he hasteried positively that he had not broken into the vinegar works, and had nothing to do with the sale of the brass and metal stolen from the place. The boy said he was at work at the time and knew nothing of the burgiary until he was arrested for the

But just at that juncture a new phase was put on the case. Bailiff Savage stated that he knew of two boys who were willing to swear that at the time of the burglary young Griswold was at their father's store in North Omaha, five miles from the scene of the burglary. On this showing Judge Scott charged the entry on his docket, and

WILL CURTAIL BROATCH'S POWER. Council Proposes to Fill All of the First Ward Vacancies.

As the policy of the councilmanic majority now announced, the selection of successors to Judge Gordon and Samuel DuBols will be left to the new council. The ordinance now in the ban is of the judiciary committee, and YOU WON'T HAVE TO WAIT TOMORROW which provides that the council shall have power to fill the vacancies, will be reported for adoption, thus taking the appointing power out of the hands of the mayor. The principal reason for this action is said to be the re-luctance of the next mayor to get his fingers burned in the muddle. If he should be left the duty of making the appointments he could scarcely do so without offending one of the several factions. This he is not disposed to do at a time when his gubernatorial aspirations are budding into bloom. For in-stance, his friends say he could scarcely refuse o appoint Major Wheeler to the vacancy at large, but that in doing this he would compe the vigorous opposition of the First ward as pirants, who demand that the representation which they obtained at the election shall not be taken from them on account of the death of their candidate. This being the case it has been decided to leave the whole matter in the hands of the council and thus relieve Broatch from his embarrassment.

The sentiment in favor of filling the vacancy from the First ward is growing stronger, much to the disgust of Major Wheeler and other outside candidates. It is proposed that the council shall adopt a resolution previous to the new council comng into power declaring it to be the sense of the body that the appointments should go to the First ward. At this time enough votes are pledged to secure the adoption of this resolution. The First warders have been preparing to hold a sort of informal convention to select candidates to be recommended to the council, but it was stated yesterday that the leaders had got their heads together and decided that they would leave the whole matter in the discretion of This course was decided on on the council. the strength of the assurance that the resolution endorsing the claims of the First ward would be passed before the end of the year.
