HAVENS' ACCOUNT WAS OVERDRAWN

Half the Money He Deposited Was Due the Bank-Isane Dickerson's Part in the Concern's Management.

The defense got very much the best of it in the trial of the Dickerson case yesterday, and the evidence was secured from a witness for the state.

The complainant in the present case against Mr. Dickerson is S. N. Havens, a baker at Atlantic, who deposited $71 with the Cass County bank on the day before the announcement of a receiver was made. In the pro-ceedings yesterday the bookkeeper of the bank, O. S. Montgomery, testified to the making of the deposit by Mr. Havens. That was most heartly enjoyed by all present, opened the way for the defense to inquire A general open house was kept during the day, and it developed that his account was overdrawn and that he was indebted to the distributions and other substantial tokens of their esteem. The presents were handsome bank in the sum of $37. The state made an and numerous. effort to get the evidence refused, but Judge identification of a cartload of books that were the property of the bank. These were dentified by Mr. Montgomery. He identified ledger No. 2, showing the deposits from May 29 to December 27, 1893. Entries in red ink showed liabilities to the bank, and those in black ink liabilities of the bank. The witness also identified the directors' book, a number of cash journals, letter copy books in use in the bank for several years before the allure, the stub draft book used in the bank, containing memoranda of drafts issued. On the inside of the cover of this stub book was pasted a statement of the amount of drafts of the bank outstanding, made by the witness for the receiver after the latter's appointment from an examination of the stubs.

INSIDE WORKINGS OF THE BANK. Mr. Montgomery testified that the first rafts of the bank that were not honored by other banks began to be returned in Sep-tember and that the number increased in October and on until the failure of the bank in December. Attorneys Bruce and Boorman taxed their artist abilities in the preparation of a diagram of the bank building, which was presented to the witness for his approval. Mr. Montgomery had some diffi-mitted that the rear room of the bank was known usually as the "back room" and not as the "directors' room." It was used for stowed their congratulations and left many the meetings of the directors and was used substantial tokens of their esteem in the law end has been selling whisky without the formality of a license. He was brought to the city yesterday in charge of a federal officer, and a charge of bottlegging lodged against him. He was arrainged before Commissioner Bicadman, and his case continued until Mon-thank was transacted by the cashier, an as-tone of the brookkeepers. It contained a drinking fountain and wash sink and was used by chapter of the bride's minted to the chapter of the bride's minted a chapter of the bride's minted and the chapter of the bride's minted a chapter of the bride's minted and the chapter room. He stated that the business of the bank was transacted by the cashier, an assistant cashier and a bookkeeper. The witday under a nominal bond.

Mr. Montgomery testified that the same books had been offered in evidence in the trial of the case against Mr. Dickerson at Glenwood which resulted in an acquittal.

Turning to the account of Mr. Havens, on whose complaint this action was brought against Mr. Dickerson, the witness testified that Havens had deposited $71 in the bank er 27, 1893, the day before the fallure. He also testified that at the time of the deposit Mr. Havens' account had been verdrawn $37.67. The state objected to the introduction of this evidence, but the court ruled that there could be no question on the admission of the evidence. If the defense could show that Havens was indebted to the bank there could be no doubt but that the is to afford a place where the workingmen bank would be allowed to receive its own can gather and mest each other that will

HAD LITTLE TO DO WITH IT. All of the witnesses for the state, thus far, have testified that, to their knowledge, Isaac Dickerson had but little if anything to do with the management of the affairs of the bank.

Mr. Montgomery, who was in the bank all of the time during working hours, added his testimony to that effect. He testified that the defendant frequently dropped into the bank in the morning and read the mo wise some honey and undercioning, the prisoners were innocent martyrs and most exemplary citizens. Night came on before the trials were concluded, and the cases were the trials were concluded, and the cases were continued until Monday, defendants giving continued until Monday, defendants giving Montgomery also stated that Isaac Dickerson was not in Atlantic very often during the year prior to the failure of the bank. Another point was scored for the defense just before the adjournment of court. In response to a question by Mr. Bruce, the witness testified that a part of the writing in the journal of the directors was that of Mr. Dickerson, and the rest that of another director of the bank. This had reference to the writing on pages 38 to 40 of the book in evidence. On cross-examination Mr. Montgomery stated that the writing refer-red to was that of Mr. A. W. Dickerson, and not that of Isaac Dickerson, and that there was not a line of Isaac Dickerson's writing in the book in question. It was shown that while other directors had written in the book, Isaac Dickerson had taken no such part in the bank's proceedings. At 4 c'clock the court adjourned until

WORK FOR A CANNING FACTORY. Grape Growers' Plan for a Means of

Using Surplus Product. At their annual meeting yesterday the Council Bluffs Grape Growers' Shipping assoclation took the initial steps looking to the construction of a factory for the canning and preserving of their surplus product.

The question has been up for consideration before, but no action has been taken, owing to the financial conditions, but the necessity Mr. and Mrs. George White celebrated their tin welding on Monday evening in their pretty little cottage home on Bond street, the season's crop next fall. A resolution the evening was very pleasantly passed, was adopted at the meeting yesterday instructing President Hess, Secretary Keeline Alexander Wood to ascertain the cost and Alexander Wood to ascertain the cost of constructing a canning plant and the expense of an evaporator of sufficient capscity to take care of the surplus stock in the hands of the association each year. A large number of the members joined in the discussion of the proposition and all were de-cidedly in favor of such action.

Reports of the president, secretary and treasurer were received and referred to a committee consisting of A. C. Rank, H. Kingston and E. B. Crandall for examination. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, J. P. Hess; vice president, Peter Weis; secretary, W. S. Keeline; treasurer, James R. Herald; directors, R. McKinzie, Alexander Wood, M. G. Edweide, Peter Weis, George R. Wheeler and Frank Hall.

In fact, men who are elected by the people to hold places of responsibility and trust are usually capable, clean-handed, sincere and esgram.)-George G. Wright, ex-United States timable men. Such is Judge Eugene Criss. Judge Criss has been an invalid himself. His health had been broken and blasted by the poisons of catarrh, affecting his head and throat for almost twenty years. As a natural result of neglect and improper treatment his ears and hearing became in volved. Read what he says of a two months' course of treatment by the new and effective method employed by Drs

Copeland and Shepard:

"Gentlemen: I feel proud to say to you that with two months' treatment I have received great benefit in my catarrh, and have not obeyed your instructions, either, as I should have done. I have spent hundreds of dollars and have taken more than one dozen kinds of remedies for catarrh, and have received more benefit from those two months with you than all the rest combined, and recommend all sufferers from catarrh to try your treatment. Yours truly,

Otto Berger, Long Pine, Neb.

"When I wrote you about my case of eczema I did not expect to find a cure, nor even any relief. I had been tormented with this terrible skin trouble for six or seven years and had used all sorts and kinds of medicines, but with no good results. I simply decided in my own mind that eczema was incurable. I continued to suffer from the intolerable itching, burning and disfigurement of this wretched affliction until I was finally persuaded by my wife to givey our remedies a trial. I wrote for your Symptom Blank, and after describing my case you sent me a supply of medicines that has entirely cured me. It
