The maker of a promissory note died before its maturity and gave by will to his two sons the major portion of his estate, both real and personal, subject to the payment of the induction of the cancellation of the induction of such debt. The new note was a binding obligation upon them, and a party signing the first note as surety for the father and the second in the same capacity for the sons was entitled upon being obliged to pay the same by their failure to meet it to recover from the principal makers the sum paid, with logal interest.
The evidence examined and held sufficient to sustain a verdict in favor of the plaint fit in the action.

Rundolph Bunger, a German of means, engages himself to Mrs. Belle Dashington, a widow, and the match is broken off by Tom Ryan, a practical joker, who charges Bunger with being the father of an infant which is left at the door step of the boarding house. Much fun ensues in consequence of the storm raised by the widow at the supposed perfidy of her lover. George Farwell, alias Wallingford, is the villain of the play, and there is also his de-serted wife, Ellen Farwell, who is the mother of the child which causes so much trouble for the innocent Bunger and the Widow Dashington. Bernard Bryan, a wealthy, big-hearted Irishman, who is also paying attention to Mrs. Dashington, after making several bad blunders concerning Bunger and others in the piece, finally gets upon the right track and brings the villain to justice, and all ends well. In the company are Mr. Dan Mason, Her-schel Mayall, Archie Ailen, Tony Johnson, Thomas Walsh, Miss Kate Michelena, Miss Marie Leicester-Allen, Miss Madeline Wheeler and others.
