CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Wheeler Elected to Fill Vacancies.

Lobby of First Ward People Retires In Disgust-City Hall Employes Named-Retrenchment Gets a Setback.

For Councilman-at-Large-DANIEL H. WHEELER Por First Ward Councilman-ISAAC S. HASCALL

That was the way it was fixed in a caucus which was held in committee room A in the city hall just before the regular council meeting last night. It required half a dozen ballots and then the members who had been fighting shy of the combination got into line and the two candidates named were declared

As soon as the council was called to order Allan moved that the selection of the two cornellmen to fill vacancies be immediately taken up. Kment and Bingham attempted to effect a postponement for one week, but the ways were all greased and Allan's motion went through with a rush, Kment, Bingham, Burkley, Benewa and Kennard voting in the negative. Kment declared that the council was trying to defeat the expressed wishes of the people of the First ward and Kennard contended that the First ward was fairly entitled to both vacancies. Taylor, Christie and others explained their vote by caucus obligations, which they regarded as

The vote on the election of the two counclimen was taken by roll call, President Saunders ruling that ten votes were necessary for an election. Allan, Burmeister, Christie, Jaynes, Lemly, Mercer, Prince, Taylor, Thomas and Saunders voted for the straight caucus ticket, which was Hascall for the ward vacancy and Wheeler for councilman-at-large. Axford voted for Hascall and Back, Benewa for Jordan and Stuht, Bingham for Stuht and Back, Kennard for Back and Jordan and Kment for Stuht and Hascall. Burkley refused to vote for any cardidate on the ground that there was no particular hurry about filling the vacancies. This gave Hascall eleven votes, Wheeler ten, Back three, Stuht three and Jordan two Hascall and Wheeler were then duly declared elected and Mayor Broatch reported that he had approved their bonds. Kment objected to the approval of the bonds. He said that he had been informed that Has-call was not a resident of the ward and he wanted action postponed in order to have the matter looked up. Hascall improved the opportunity to make a speech in which he thanked the council for his election and in-formed Kment that he had more friends in the south side than he had and he would it before he got through with him. The new members then took their seats. Wheeler taking the seat occupied by Councilman Howell last year and Hascall the one left vacant by Back. Wheeler also expressed his thanks to the council and declared that his best efforts would be given to a reduction in the expenses of the city and to the upholding of its financial and commercial prosperity.

This accomplished the council settled down to routine business and the big lobby of First warders who had dropped in to see that the purpose of the primaries was carried out dropped out again, wearing very

I also decline to approve this resolution for the reason that the law expressly provides that "all the terms of the district court shall be held at the county seat, in the county board." Until the county commissioners take action in the matter and provide for the holding of the equity court in the city hall, the passage of the proposed resolution would seem to be a useless proceeding. In addition, to transfer only one branch of the equity court into one of the rooms of the city hall and leave the other branch of the court in The Bee building would work much inconvenience to attorneys, litigants and witnesses.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONFERENCE

Meeting of the Omaha Association Last Evening.

Rector of All Saints' Would Have Number of Charges Made-"Bribe" System is Condemned.

The fourth conference of the Omaha Sunday School association was held last night at the First Christian church. About 100 members of the association were present. G. G. Wallace, presided. The meeting opened with a song service, led by J. J. Burns, followed by scripture reading and prayer by Rev. W. W. Everts of Beth Eden Baptist church. The feature of the meeting was a paper by Rev. T. J. Mackay of All Saints Episcopal church on the subject, "The Sunday School as a Nursery to the Church."

Mr. Mackay said he did not mean by nursery a place where children might be placed for safe keeping, where they would be out of the way, but he meant to compare the Sunday school with a nursery where plants and trees were nurtured and prepared for life in the open world. Some ministers, he said, opposed the Sunday school on the ground that there was a tendency to separate it from all vital connection with the church. While he did not think there was necessarily a tendency in this direction, he said that any guild or society that did not work in the inerest of the church and as a feeder to the church was a menace to the church. The Sunday school, he said, should not be regarded as a substitute for the church. He had found a tendency on the part of the pupils to think that attendance at Sunday school absolved them from attendance at church. This should be checked and both services made attractive to the younger generation. He favored making the service of the Sunday school the same as the church, and deprecated the idea of providing the Sunday school with jingles and rhymes as a substitute for music of an attractive nature.

WOULD LENGTHEN THE TIME. The speaker also thought the time of the Sunday school should be lengthened. With only one day in the week for religious instruction he thought one hour was too short to impart all that the pupil should learn. me means should also be devised to induce the pupils to study their lessons at home and to interest them in the work so that the Sunday school would become a broken. then dwelt for some time on the duties of the pastor to the Sunday school, and spoke of the difficulties under which the pastor labored in being expected to assume full charge and responsibility in the Sunday school. The importance of home instruction was then touched upon, the speaker reading from the prayer book and rubric of the Episcopalian church to illustrate his ideas as to the manner of imparting home instruction to all The plan of holding at least one children's service each month at the regular morning church hour was advocated by the speaker, and the advantages of such a plan her of instruction in the Sunday school was the next point touched on by the rector. He pronounced in favor of doctrinal teaching from the very beginning. The children is the reason that they were the reason that the reason that they were the reason that the reason that the reason that the reason that the reason the reason that the reason that the reason that the reason the reason that from the very beginning. The children should be equipped with the knowledge as well as the spirit of Christianity. It was just as easy, he said, to teach doctrine as to teach facts. In this connection the speaker read extracts from the Episcopal knowledge of doctrine during the earliest

THE TRUE SUNDAY SCHOOL He concluded his address by a brief statement of what constituted a true Sunday school, one with a Godly man for super-intendent, with true teachers and attentive scholars; a Sunday school in which it would At the conclusion of his address the president called for discussion, and a number spoke on the several points brought out in the paper, all endorsing one or more of the

The president then announced for discus sion the subject "The Advisability of Ever Selecting Teachers not Members of the Church. There was a general discussion of this subject, the weight of the argument be ing on the negative side of the question.

"The Merit System—Its Use and Abuse," was the next subject, and was quite gener ally discussed the concensus of opinion be-"bribe" system should not be tolerated. Several plans of encouraging, the children by giving them marks in a book kept for that purpose, showing their standing in point of attendance, lessons and con-tributions, were discussed, each seeming to have warm supporters. After discussing the question "What Shall We Do with the Disorderly Scholar?" several plans being suggested, such as placing the unruly pupil in a chair designated as the "naughty boy's chair," etc., the meeting was

> During the last campaign the candidates for judicial honors were besieged by would-be balliffs and asked to make promises to appoint the applicants, A certain political club, whose membership is restricted to voters of a particular nationality, exacted a premise from every candidate that he would appoint a bailiff to be named by that club. It is currently reported that nearly all of the candidates for the district bench made premises right and left, and if the legion of now seeking these appointments is to believel several of the judges had a balliff promised in every precinct in the county and city. However that may be, it is a fact that these men are following the judges night and day and are causing the members of the bench much annoyance.

> Du Maurier has made Paris studios familiar to every one. But not until the appearance of Mrs. E. Burke Collins' story of 'A Gilded God" did novel readers dream of the wealth of material ready for some gifted novelist's pen in the brilliant artist life of ur own New Orleans.

In a recent interview by a New Orleans paper she said: "Of course, to a certain extent my characters are drawn from life though never exact portraits. My favorite heroine is Mam'selle in my strry of a 'Modern Heathen.' No, I rarely urge as-pirants to take up a literary career. Success is obtained only at the price of the most exhausting labor."

Although Mrs. Collins' writing has alway been a labor of love, yet such incessant mental exertion could not fail to have its effect on her nervous system.

At one time she found herself tired out and weak from her unintercupted work; she became nervous and incapable of work; she even saw nervous prestration staring her in the face. The general toning up that her system needed so badly she found in Paine's celery compound. Today she is Paine's celery compound. perfectly well and strong again, ever with her brain and pen and grateful t Paine's celery compound for the timely help when failure and trouble and despair seemed about to close around her and shut her off

"I am careful to obey the laws of health and I am never without a supply of Paine's celery compound. I never enjoyed such bouy ancy of spirits and soundness of body be-fore I made the acquaintance of Paine's celery compound. Scarcely a day passes that I do not urge some friend to take it For neuralgia, indigestion, nervous prostration and blood disorders I am convinced that there is nothing like Paine's celery compound. I am not surprised that physicians paine's celery compound is found to best supply the great need of studious, sedentary people. Its extensive use by brain workers, both men and women, suffering from sleepdeficient nerve force, shows its ability to feed tired, emaclated, nervous tierues. Nothing else has ever possessed anything like the power of Paine's celery compound to re-store a healthy nervous tone to the entire body and to thoroughly cleanse the blood. School teachers, professional men, news-paper men, ministers, public officials, men where daily outlay of vitality, because of hard, trying, anxious work, is excessive, find renewed strength, not only of the nerves, but through this healthy action, of the entire body, in Paine's celery compound. Its use shortly dispels headaches, rheumatic paine, dyspepsia, heart trouble, general debility and languor and all other outward signs of the grave mischief that comes from disordered nerves and impure blood.
