Rather Heavy Wheat Market The Feature of Trade.
CORN AND OATS WERE FIRMER
Continued Cold Weather Caused Some Apprehension that the Growing Crop Had Been Damaged.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—The uncertainty regarding the effect of the cold weather upon winter wheat and the unwillingness of traders to carry stocks over the holiday created a rather heavy wheat market today and prices at the close showed about 1/2 cent decline. The market was firm and advanced 1/2 cent and 1/4 cent respectively. Provisions also made slight advances.

Wheat, which closed weak yesterday, was even weaker today, and in the face of conditions which called for steadiness at the very least. Minneapolis and Duluth receipts of 350 cars were again smaller than on the similar day of last week.

Continued cold weather caused some apprehension and a tendency to hold short sellers in check and encouraged many long holders to buy into the market.

Wheat market was slightly affected by wheat receiving fair support, and smaller receipts also caused some steady holders to play. May opened 1/2 cent lower at 2 1/2, but this loss was soon overcome, the price closing at 2 1/2.

Oats were quiet and uninteresting, but held firm in sympathy with corn. The market was slightly weaker and closed at 2 1/2. Provisions were quiet and uninteresting.
