Chairman Kennard of the finance poses. committee is very positive in the assertion that the board is not entitled to any additional funds, and if it was, the city is a position to increase the levy. He says that like other municipal departments the board will be compelled to cut its expenses to meet its resources and assist in tiding over the present stringency in the municipal money market. If the board had arranged last year for an expense of $5,000 for an artesian well, to be paid for this year, that was its own bad management, for which the council is not responsible. It should have recognized the fact that this year was to be a period of the most strict economy. Other councilmen say that some provision ought to be made to assist the board out of its present predicament. Taylor is one of these. He says that there is no doubt but that the board is without the funds that are actually necessary and that in his opinion the council will decide to afford some relief if possible. He is opposed to making any addi-tional levy, as this would create a good deal of confusion. He thinks, however, that some provision could be made from the road fund to increase the emaciated fund of the board. The demand of the commissioners for addi-tional funds will probably be submitted to the council tomorrow night and referred to a committee for consideration. As the subject would naturally be referred to Kennard's ommittee, an adverse report is antici

CLAYCOMB IS BOUND OVER

His Preliminary Hearing in Justice Smith's

THE DMARS THE ARTER A TREETAY, MARRIE IN 1808.

Court. MAIN FACTS IN THE CASE BROUGHT OUT

hain of Evidence Implicating Him in the Robbery of Graves at Mount Hope-Bond Fixed nt $1,000.

The preliminary hearing of Stanley Claycomb, alias George Smith, charged with grave robbery, was had yesterday in the court of Justice of the Peace Smith. There were but few spectators, most of them being witnesses. Claycomb was bound over.

Claycomb was accompanied by his wife, who sat beside him. They listened to the testimony intently, but with composure. Before them, and on the opposite side of the table, stood the two trunks in which Claycomb is supposed to have shipped the bodies to Des Moines. Both trunks were open and were blood stained, inside and out. The straw in which the cadavers had been packed still filled them. There were two informations filed against the prisoner. One was issued against George Smith, this being the name Clay-body of Jacob Helin and removing it without the consent of the relatives. The other information was drawn against 'Stanley Claycomb," and charged him with stealing the body of Mrs. Hannah Larsen. This contained two counts, one charging the prisoner with unlawfully taking and removing the body without the consent of the relatives, and the other accused him of adding and assisting in removing the body for the purpose of dissection. The attorney for the defense moved to strike out the first information, but the motion was overruled. The state announced that it intended to proceed under both in-The first witness called was Frank Klinger, the baggage agent of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific ratiroad at Des Moines. He identified he two trunks in which the bodies were

The trunks arrived on a train late on the afternoon of February 21," he testified. "They at once attracted my attention, for bleed was flowing out of the ends of one of them. I looked at it closely and dis-covered a loose board on the bottom. It covered a hole, out of which a quantity of tay was sticking. I thrust my hand in and felt what I thought was the arm of a corpse." Klinger said that he notified the authorities and that consequently they were prepared when Expressman Weaver called for the trunks, shortly after 8 o'clock the next morning. The expressman showed two checks and at the same time showed a ticket which stated that excess baggage had been paid on the trunks. The trunks were turned over to Weaver in the presence of Detective Harding of the Des Moines force.

EXPRESSMAN'S PART IN IT. Klinger was followed by W. W. Weaver, the Des Moines expressman, who called for the trunks. Weaver testified that at 10 o'clock on the night of February 21 he noticed Claycomb passing his back stand and accosted him in the hope of getting a fare. He addressed him as Brown and a conversation ensued. Claycomb finally states that he had a couple of trunks to haul and

Weaver took the job."
"Did he say what the trunks contained?" asked Assistant County Attorney Winter. "He told me that he had a couple of stiffs to haul to the Drake Medical college," Weaver answered. I "He did not want me haul the trunks that night because he did not have the money to pay for it. He told me to get them in the morning, saying that he would get some money at Dr. Mc-Carthy's office. I agreed to meet him at o'clock the next morning at the doctor's

Weaver added that he kept the appointment and after knocking at Dr. McCarthy's first trial. office door and receiving a response to wait a moment, Claycomb came out and walked checks and instructed him to take the trunks to the medical college and to place them at Twenty-fourth street and Ames avenue. ng the trunks along. Weaver said that he never knew Clay omb's name nor his occupation. Regardng the latter point he said:

"He never told me his business, but he said that probably he would have a good deal of work for me. He did not tell me what the work was, but he said that there were three or four of them in it."
"Did he not say that grave robbing was his business and that he had four partners?" asked the prosecuting attorney. The defense made an objection to the query and it was sustained.

PUT THE POLICE ON. Weaver denied that he had ever known of Dr. McCarthy or knew who or what he was. He stated that he did not even know where his office was located, but learned the location from the police. The cross-examina-tion on this point developed the fact that Weaver lost no time in notifying the police that he had been hired to haul "stiffs," for he visited the police headquarters fifteen minutes after meeting Claycomb.

Detective Edwin E. Johnston of Des Moine. testified regarding the arrest of Claycomb. On the evening of February 21, he had been ent to the depot to examine the trunks, which on account of their blood-stained con-dition had been brought to the attention of the police. He and Detective Harding waited for some one to call for the trunks, but no one came until the following morning, when Weaver appeared. Weaver in the mean-time had told the detectives of his appointment with Claycomb at Dr. McCarthy's office, and they sent him thither. When he leaded the trunks on the wagon and drove away they saw Claycomb follow the vehicle, and they followed him, placing him under ar-rest just before the medical college was reached, as he had apparently become sus-

When Claycomb arrived at the police sta tion he gave the name of George Smith, and insisted that that was his name. The detectives later found that he had registered at a hotel as "J. Smith, Davenport, Ia."
To the officers Claycomb said little, but at one time he told them that he was born in Kentucky, had no home and was not married. All that was found on his person. married. All that was found on his person was $4.85 in money and a gold watch. Claycomb told the expressman, Weaver, on the previous night, that he had but 50 cents.

The detective was present when the pris-oner was turned over to Detective Cox of this city at Stuart, Tay, but could testify to nothing of the transfer.
William H. Whysong, of 1711 High street,
Council Bluffs, the baggagemaster of the Rock Island, testified that on the morning of February 21 Clayeomb approached him with the request that he check two trunks that were standing at the end of the platform. The trunks were weighed, and found to be 100 pounds in excess of the weight permitted on a ticket. Claycomb paid the excess baggage, and, the trunks were checked to Des Moines. The checks were given to Claycomb by Ticket Agent B. F.

Whysong did not know Claycomb's name, but he positively identified him, as well as the trunks. In fact, all the witnesses were very positive in the identification of the prisoner and the trunks.

NO CHANCE FOR MISTAKE.

On cross-examination Whysong strengtheend his identification of Claycomb. He said that he paid attention to both his features and clothing when he checked the trunks.
He denied that he failed to identify him in Des Moines, although, at that time, Claycomb wore a stiff black hat, whereas, he had a soft one at Council Bluffs. A light brown overcoat was another point in the identification. Whysing said that he at once identified Claycomb again at Council Bluffs when brought back and again at Omaha.
Under further questioning, Whysiong said that while checking the trunks. Claycomb NO CHANCE FOR MISTAKE.

but kept walking about the depot. Whyzong at the time believed that Claycomb feared that he would miss his train, as it was fif-een minutes of train time. teen minutes of train time.

A strong effort was made to break the weight of the witness' identification of Claycomb, but Whysong persisted in the statement that to the best of his judgment, Claycomb was the man who checked the trunk. Benjamin F. Griffin of Ninth avenue and Seventh street, ticket agent at Council Bluffs, positively identified Claycomb as the man who paid him money for 100 pounds of excess baguage on the two trunks on Polyce excess baggage on the two trunks on Feb-

John F. Helin, 2734 Caldwell street, testi-fied that the body of the man brought back from Des Moines was that of Jacob Helin, his cousin, who was buried in Mount Hope cometery. He was called upon to say that after the burial the grave was not opened to his knowledge, or that of his relatives, in luding the wife.

The body of the woman brought from De-

Moines was identified by Andrew Larsen of 1400 Williams street as that of his wife, which was buried six days before. He swere that he had not given his consent to, or had accusedge of the removal of the body. Simon Wogensen, the sexton of Mount Hope cemetery, testified that after the buriats of Helin and Mrs. Larsen until Detectives Donahue and Cox instructed him to open the discovered nothing wrong with the graves them on Saturday, February 22. Both coffins were found to be without bodies, but that the Larsen grave contained a black skirt, a black slipper and a few flowers.

Wogenson testified that although the graves were some 500 feet from his house, he did not believe that the graves could have been opened in the day time without his knowledge, or that of people passing along Mill-George Smith, this being the name Claycomb gave when he was arrested. This contained one count, and charged the prisoner with opening the grave containing the body of Jacob Helin and removing it without which he originally buried.

DETECTIVE COX'S TESTIMONY. Detective Cox testified to his investigations from the time that a telegram regarding the discovery of the dead bodies at Des Moines was received by the police until the graves in Mount Hope cometery were found empty. He also testified to the removal of Claycomb to this city. He said that he identified the body of Helin in Des Moines from a general description and that of Mrs. Larsen from a slipper that was found on the bidy, and which was the mate of one found in the grave.

The final witness was Mrz. Helin, widow of Jacob Helin. She was called simply for the purpose of showing that the body of her husband was taken from its grave without her consent or knowledge. With this the state rested and the defense informed the court that it had no testimony to offer. The defense's attorney thereupon argued for a dismissal of the case on the ground that one of the complaints did not specify for what purpose the bodies were stolen and for the dismissal of the other for inpufficiency of evidence to show that Clay-comb had robbed the graves, even if the bodies were found in his possession in Iowa.

Justive of the Peace Foster decided to hold Claveomb to the district court in the sum of $500 on each complaint.

In case that Claycomb had not been held would have been at once rearrested and turned over to the Iowa authorities. tective Cox has a bench warrant from Polk county, Iowa, in which Des Moines is situated, charging Claycomb with receiving, conveying and disposing of a human body in the state. In case he is acquitted in the district court this warrant will be served at once. If he is not convicted it will not be served until he completes his sentence

BARNEY M'GINN AGAIN ON TRIAL

Work of Selecting a Jury Not Yet Completed. The second trial of Barney McGinn for the murder of Edward McKenna was begun in the district court yesterday before Judge Baker. The entire day was spent in the examination of jurors, and on adjournment last evening the defense had exhausted four out of its six peremptory challenges, and the defense eight out of sixteen.

During the examination of the jury, Mc-Ginn sat very quietly in his chair and showed little interest in what was passing, speaking to his attorneys only tervals. He has changed very little since his The crime for which Barney McGinn is now

He said he had had Mc-Kenna arrested for keeping a victous dog and that there had been hard feelings between them since that time. He also said that McKenna had put his hand in pocket in a threatening manner several times when they had met on the street, as though to pull a pistol. When McKenna alighted from the car McGinn said that McKenna struck at him and he had shot him in self-wound inflicted by McGinn.

In Docember, 1893, McGinn was tried on the charge of murder in the first degree and convicted. December 29 Judge Scott sentenced McGinn to be hanged on April 6, 1894. The next day it was discovered that the time intervening between the date of sentence and the date on which McGinn was to be hanged was less than the 100 days required by law, and McGinn was called in o court and the first sentence vacated. He was resentenced to be hanged April 13, 1894. An appeal was immediately taken to the supreme court on error, and November 19, 1895, the court ordered a new trial.

Renders Who Act Promptly Can Still Secure the New Dictionary. The recent distribution by the Western Newspaper Syndicate of 200 introductory sets of the new Encyclopsedic Dictionary sets of the new Encyclopsedic Dictionary resulted in much satisfaction to those who were fortunate enough to secure the work on the terms offered. But those who did not act promptly and whose application therefore came in too late, have lately besiged syndicate headquarters with requests for the much-desired volumes at the special price and on the remarkably easy terms of price and on the remarkably easy terms of ayment then offered. Very many of these requests come from
