WAS A PLUCKY RACE.

There was never a better illustration of English courage, endurance and pluck than in the university boat race between Oxford and Cambridge. I am glad to pay this tribute, since half a dozen or so of the contestants were involved in unjust and un-sportsmanlike charges against Cornell last year. But these same boys, together with the rest of the two crews, launched their beats in the face of an impending storm and rewed to the end of the course, through almost a tornado of rain and sleet, which would have sent any ordinary boat to the nearest shore, and through water which momentarily threatened to swamp their frail crafts. The violence of the storm may be judged from the fact that the big launch of the Leander club, on which I was a passenger, dragged her anchors and was driven ashore. The whole contest, and finish especially, was one of the most exciting and interesting in the history of boating, both crews rowing in per-fect form throughout, and the issue being doubtful until the last moment. Within a month it is quite likely that the sound of the hammer and the saw will again be heard ringing within the precincts of the new government building and the work which has been temporarily delayed will be resumed with redoubled energy.

Congress has just supplied by a timely emergency appropriation the necessary funds for a resumption of activity, and next few days contractors will be given the opportunity of making bids for doing amount of interior work, which will keep a big force of laborers busy all sum-found in his office by a Bee representative yesterday busily engaged in perusing late advices from Washington containing the welcome information that by the passage of an emergency appropriation, the amount of which is about $100,000, it will now be necessary for him to proceed to call for bids for the interior work on the big building.

"This appropriation," said Mr. Latenser, "was rendered necessary by reason of the change from limestone to granite, which was made in the original plans. Work was then temporarily delayed, there having been, however, a total expenditure up to that time of $400.000 for the site and $464,000 for the construction of the building. I see by the report of the supervising architect at Washington, which I hold in my hand, that during year 1895 there was spent in Omaha the sum of $211,000 on the building. The report shows that there is at present, avail for the uses of construction, $125,220,49.

This money can be used immediately. "Inside of a few days I shall proceed call for bids on the plumbing, the steam fitand interior finish work on the new flce building.

"How much will it cost to do this work, you inquire? I should say somewhere in the neighborhood of $200,000. The plumbing will cost perhaps $25,000, the heating $30,000 and the balance, for the interior finish, will eat up this amount. As some of the rooms are to be fitted in a decidedly sumptuous style, you can see that much labor will be re-quired to complete the work. The court rooms, of which there are two, will be finished in mahogany, the celling being elaborpanelled, while Romanesque arches t feet in width will be ranged along sides. The court rooms are not to be very large. It is not the custom nowaday them so large as to invite the crowds to congregate. The heating plant is to be of the most modern pattern. Steam heating will be used, the indirect system Steam being employed in conjunction with fans. "Regarding available space, the new postoffice is to be a decided improvement over the old building. I have just been making an estimate and find that whereas in the old building some 200 employes are cooped up in a working space of not to exceed 5,000 square feet, in the new building 18,000 square feet will be available."

"It is not genrally known," added Mr. Latenser, "that Omaha last year expended a sum of money for its government buildplacing it third on the list of some eighty buildings now under process of contruction in the United States. Washing-ton exceeded us, having spent $700,000, and Milwaukee having spent $330,000, yet while the Milwaukee building was commenced prior be out it is building was commenced prior ours it is not even under roof, and the Kanzas City building, though started about the same time, is still only one story high. When it comes to pushing work I think Omaha stands well to the front."
