that city in a few days. To give the people of Council Bluffs an opportunity to realize what kind of a hotel the Ogden house is under the new management, Mr. and Mrs. Messmore will give a Sunday dinner today from 1 to 3 o'clock. Preparations will be made to feed several hundred guests.

The building committee of the Odd Fellows spent nearly all of last night wrestling over the problem presented by the bids of new tempte building. There were a large number of bids filed, and the committee soon discovered that it would take nearly all night to determine which was the lowest. It is probable that a decision will not be reached until Monday evening at another. reached until Monday evening at another meeting of the committee.

The Aiton-Hunt Stock company gave one of the best shows of the season last night. The new scubrette, Miss LaBau, is a ctar of the first magnitude, and Miss Blanchard took position as a great favorite before she had been before the curtain ten minutes. The usual Sunday night performance will not be given tonight, but the company will rest for a strong piece, "Man and Master," on Monday night. Manager Alton is very proud of the fact that he has one of the strongest companies that has appeared before a Council Bluffs audience this season. He will further strengthen it, if rumor is to be credited, by the addition this week of Ashly Rush, the ar of the Woodwards.

A Sensation Promised.

Affairs have been so shaping themselves during the past twenty-four hours that noth-ing short of something startling will be the Affairs have been so saining that nothing short of something startling will be the result. The late pedestrian last night might have noticed men in all parts of the city decorating the sidewalks, dead walls, etc., with two large white figures, viz: "3 and 6." What the meaning of it all is no one seemed to know until a reporter succeeded in running one of the fellows down, and after vigorous pumping he gave out the following facts: "We are just advertising a special size sale of shoes inaugurated by Receiver Hughes on Monday and Tuesday. He is going to cell any lady's size 3, or men's size 6, in the entire shoe stock for $1.50." The announcement took the reporter's breath announcement took the reporter's breath away, and while he was looking for it the

The Iowa suckers had been in- and young people's meeting at 6:30 p. m. veigled into the green goods net and the grand jury in session was given the evidence which warranted an indictment, which was returned. The indictments charged the trio with causing certain fraudulent documents to with causing certain fraudulent documents to be delivered through the mails to parties in Iowa. The case was docketed by Judge Woolson on Thursday, and on Friday when the men appeared in Chicago and gave the required $25,000 bond they were at once rearrested on warrants from the Iowa branch rector. Holy communion, 8 a. m.; morning of the federal court, and the prisoners will be brought to this city for a hearing. It was expected that they would arrive yester-day, but for some reason the officials failed to make the connection planned on, and will probably reach the city today. Judge son has fixed the bonds of the men at $15,000 each and that amount will have to be put up before the men can again regain their

THE HALL BLOOMS AS A LAWYER. Conducts Both Sides of His Case with

Marked Ability. William Hall, in whose possession a part of $400 worth of household goods stolen from Kimball Bros. was found, was in Justice Cook's court yesterday afternoon for the purpose of proving his claim that the goods found rightfully belonged to him by reason of original purchase. The goods were stored in Kimball Bros.' factory four years ago and were stolen one night and so suc-cessfully concealed that no traces of them could be discovered until a few weeks ago. when a search warrant revealed the presence of a large part of them in the home of Hall at 2013 South Thirteenth street. The stat ute of limitation prevented the prosecution of Hall upon the charge of burglary. Among the goods recovered were a set of drawing instruments and four silver tablespoons and a silver butter knife. Hall de-nied all knowledge of the burglary, and claimed without hesitancy that the spoons belonged to him, and began an action for their recovery. The case occupied a greater their recovery. To safe a the'r recovery. The case occupied a greater by his father. The instruments were hand erts & Co., and lesued new bonds to take the made and easily identified. When the Kimplace of the old issue, it was supposed that balls' testimony was concluded it looked like the delivery of them would be a matter a case of positive identification. Hall's methof form. Roberts & Co. were notified of ods of cross-examination were novel and the board's action and a copy of the prosomewhat forcible.

"Where did you get my woman's spoons?" he asked of Mrs. Kimball nonchalantly, while a smile spread over his countenance as he realized the imputation his question carried. In an instant he modified it by apologetically remarking: "I shouldn't think you'd want themold spream now anyway".

He insisted on Mrs. Kimball minutely describing the spoons while he held them in his hands and with indolent curiosity noted the identification marks as she mentioned them. When the testimony for the Kimballs was finished he called Mrs. Hall to the stand. The attorney for the Kimballs asked the court to exclude Mr. Hall while his wife testified, as Hall had declared that he would go on the stand himself when he got through with his wife. The court was about to comply with the request when Hall dryly remarked:

"Ain't I an attorney in this case, Mr. Court?' The court was compelled to admit that Hall was acting in that capacity.

"You can't exclude one attorney unless you exclude the other," said Hall. By this time there was a good deal of feeling between Hall and the attorney, and Hall informed the court that he would be very happy to be closeted for about five minutes with the opposing counsel, and he yould endeavor to teach him something bout the manly art of self-defense as well is law. The court would not consent to this, and Mrs. Hall was excluded, while Hall took the stand as a witness. The court conducted the direct examination. Hall testified that he and his wife purchased the silver spoons somewhere in Omaha about five years ago, and that the butter knife had been given to his wife by a woman. When asked if these were the spoons he replied:

from my house they are mine."

"Do you recognize them as yours?"

"Naw, I don't know that I do. Only if them's the spoons Alberti took, they're

"Farm for Rent—130 acres of plow land."

"What makes you think so?"
"Because we ain't got no others."
Under cross-examination Hall became very restless, and it was with difficulty that he could restrain himself from flying at the throat of the opposing counsel. When asked how he came into the possession of the case of instruments, he said he picked them up on the street corner about a year ago, "Didn't you tell Mr. Kimball and myself that you bought that box?" asked the counsel.

"You're a liar," shouted Hall, as he sprang from the chair and attempted to strike the attorney. A dozen hands were laid upon him and he was prevented doing the lawyer any harm. "You can call me a thief, but if you try to make me out a liar I'll smash you." he muttered as he resumed his seat. The prospect for a general fight seemed so good that a number of the spectators made a hasty exit from the room. Hall was warned by the court of the spectators made a hasty exit from the room. Hall was warned by the court that he would be sent to fail for contempt if he repeated his offensive remarks. He was still very angry when he left the stand, and a moment later he crossed the little room with quick strides to where Attorney Kimball was sitting, muttering: "Believe I'll smash you anyhow." Again he was prevented and again the court threatened him with the county jail.

"He had no right to ask that question. It is not cross-examination, because there was no foundation laid for it in the direct examination," said Hall. The point was was no foundation laid for it in the direct examination," said Hall. The point was raised too late for the court to rule upon it, and the examination of Mrs. Hall was commenced. Her testimony was a counterpart of that of her husband, only she could not tell what street in Omaha the jeweler was located who sold them the spoons. Hall's examination of his wife was very full and also very shrewd, and while she was giving her testimony she took special delight in looking daggers at Mrs. Kimball, who had returned to the court room after the incipient riot had been quelled.

After the court had delivered a lecture upon the necessity of observing good order

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF SUFFER-ING FROM TUMORS IN THE NOSE. ING FROM TUMORS IN THE NOSE, Mr. William Bays, Vaparaiso, Neb., the well known grain dealer, writes;
"Over twenty-five years ago I began to feel obstructions in my nostrils, interfering with breathing and the sense of smell.
They were soft tumors, or polypi. They were accompanied by severe headinches and other signs of nasal catarrh. After several physicians had made ineffectual attempts to remove them I placed my case with Drs.
Copeland and Shepard, who gave me perfect results. Their work was done about three years ago, and there has been no return of the trouble."

A PIONEER EDITOR.

His Ailment Had Become Chronic But Not Incurable. Mr. C. F. Bayha, for ten years county surveyor of Antelope county, Neb., has been a prominent figure in Nebraska affairs for many years. He was a pioneer editor in the early days, having published successively the Dakcta C ty Mail and the West Point Republican. In standing and influence he is one of the first citizens of his county Mr. Bayha says:

C. F. BAYHA, Neligh, Neb. "About a year ago I made a public statement to the effect that Drs. Copeland and Shepard had cured me of chronic, complicated at ments that threatened my life. Today I am glad to reaffirm all that I said a year ago. I am not only cured, but enjoying as good health as any man could desire.

"My disease was chronic catarrh of the whole system, affecting severely the head, lungs, heart, kidneys, bladder and bowels. I was tormented by a ringing or whistling.

"I had severe attacks of la grippe which steadily prostrated me, until my home does tors pronounced me incurable and advised me to go to a specialist for counsel.

"I wrote to Drs. Copeland and Shepard for a Symptom Blank, and after filling it out sent it to them. They replied that they could help me, but some time would be needed, as my ailments had become so chronic.

needed, as my allments had become so chronic.

"This was all the encouragement I needed, and I began the mail treatment at once, At that time I weighed only ill pounds. After my course of treatment my weight is 145 pounds, which is normal. My lungs and heart, kidney and stomach have been restored to a healthful condition and I am practically free from every sign of disease. I am now able to do a hard day's work at manual labor as well as at any time in my life. It may be a hackneyed phrase, but I feel that I owe my life to these physicians, They proved quickly that my disease was NOT incurable."

NERVOUS TROUBLE.

Common Affliction in Women Promptly Cured. Mrs. Mary McNulty, 1821 S. 27th street, Omaha, a woman of high character and intelligence, outlines her case:
"Before I went under treatment with Drs. Copeland and Shepard I had heard and read a great deal about their numberless cures. I knew many of these patients, and their testimony was so strong that I felt

The catarrh gave me local distress in the nose, throat and head, and then went to the stomach and bowels, and seemed to taint my blood with humors. Then came a breaking down of the nervous system. I was very bad off at times— weak, trembling and afraid to trust myself alone. My brain was weakened with the body.

"Later on I was afflicted with neuralgla and rheumatic pains and loss of sleep. All I wish to say further is that a short course of treatment with Drs. Copeland and Shepard has given me health and comfort. They have made me strong and well at a triffing expense, and that is all there is to say about it."

Oh! What a Blessing is a Bicycle!

Aside from the pleasure there is in bicycling, it is the most economic method of transportation that one can have. Who would exchange a free, open-air spin on a wheel for a ride in a stuffy, lumbering street car? All shades and conditions of men and women are now looking into the utility of the bicycle.
