Mr. Wright asserted that for years his company had been obliged to accept the city's estimate and corresponding reductions, but that the difference, constantly growing greater, had reached the limit of patient endurance in the reductions demanded for March. He claimed that the city had doubled the reductions by careless man pu-March. Regular W. C. T. The police under their instructions would report these lamps as no good or out, so the company would get a double dose of reduction. The matter was argued for two straight hours by Chairman Brown and Mr. Wright without any conclusion being reached, and if will be the subject of another conference in committee of the whole during the week. During the controversy Alderman Brown and

Mr. Wright became warmly earnest and the mayor was compelled to use his gavel with lots of force. The Chicago & Northwestern Railway com-pany asked for a refund of $56 water taxes, upon the grounds that its property extended a mile or more beyond the fartherest fire hydrant. The committee decided to refuse o recommend the refund, for the reason that he railroad company was not entitled to it and incidentally because the company was occupying a right of way through Lake View park without having paid anything for it.

Petitions for electric lights on the corners

Charles Baughn, the well known local cap italist, filed a claim for $1.75 for damages done to a house belonging to him located on he alley between Breadway and Vine street on North First. A hose wagon team became ing hose after a fire in the vicinity last win-ter and the crank scratched some of the paint off the siding of the house. The bill had been presented to the clerk a number of times. The aldermen voted unanimously to reject the claim.

J. B. Bennett filed a claim for $40 due for public, besides ennancing their value by raising gardens instead of weeds and cockle-burs. TRYING TO SAVE HIS HOME.

Jacob Layton Finds a Judgment Against Him and Home in Danger. The day in Judge Smith's court yesterday was spent in hearing the evidence in the case of Jacob Layton against J. I. Case & Co. This was an action brought by Layton to restrain the defendant from enforcing a judgment obtained in the district court a matter of sixteen years ago on a claim that is now twenty years old. Layton was surety on a note given by one Lacolpe for a threshing machine, the amount being $285. This was away back in 1876 and Layton supposed the matter was settled long ago. At least he alleges that state of mind in his petition. It appears that Lacolpe was not good and that a judgment was obtained against Layton in 1880. The judgment with interest from 1876 would eat up all of Layton's property and he now asserts that he never had notice of the suit and asks that the collection of

Shot His Own Chickens.

Ed Fuse, the well known bicycle expert and repairer, lives on the corner of Eighth avenue and Ninth street. Monday night for the, third time this spring his hen house was visited by thieves. He was compelled to go after the fellows with a revolver. When he reached the back door he saw a fellow coming from his hen house with both hands full of chickens. He called upon the thief to drop the fowls, but the fellow hung on to them and started to run. Fuse fired one shot straight at the fugitive. He stumbled and fell and dropped the chickens and as he disappeared over the bank of an unfilled lot Fuse sent a couple more builets after him. The police were notified, but could discover no other clew than the fact that a spring wagon had been rapidly driven up Fourth street a few moments after the shooting. Shortly after daylight Fuse found one of his white leghorn hens painfully limping home from the direction taken by the thief when he fell over the bank. An examination showed that the handsome bird was suffering somewhat from the passage of a bullet across its back. Five of the chickens taken from the coop returned home after daylight.

Four Went One Way. It was a chilly afternoon for plaintiffs in the superior court yesterday afternoon. It just happened that way, but of the four cases decided by Judge McGee the defendants came out winners. The suits decided were: Hutchinson against Wickham, claim for commission on a real estate deal, judgment for defendant and costs to plaintiff; Winchester against Bryant, suit to quiet title in a five acre tract of land north of the city, judgment for the defendant; McKenzie against Hart, injunction to restrain prosecution of forcible entry and detainer action commenced in the justice court, injunction dissolved and suit dismissed; Myrtue against

"The wires will have to go under ground in the business part of all big towns sooner or later," said Mr. Yout to a reporter for The Bee. All of the members of the city council said at Lincoln. They are talking under with the exception of Aldermen Barstow and ground business at Des Moines. When they ommence talking that way the only way out of it is to put the wires under and save a start. We are, of course, anxious to incur ness, and while we are not opposing the ordinance, we are anxious that the underground district should not be made large enough to be an excessive burden upon us during these hard times. It will cost at the reports made by the city electrician of least $25,000 to put the wires in conduits of Missouri Valley will give a concert at the First Christian church on Friday evening under the auspices of the Christian church on the Shortage in voltage and lamps that did in the territory provided by the ordinance, and that is a pretty heavy expense on a under the auspices of the Christian church of the Shortage in voltage and lamps that did in the territory provided by the ordinance, and that is a pretty heavy expense on a under the auspices of the Christian church of the Shortage in voltage and lamps that did in the territory provided by the ordinance, and that is a pretty heavy expense on a under the auspices of the Christian church of the Shortage in voltage and lamps that did in the territory provided by the ordinance. not burn satisfactorily or at all during the month. of the committee represented the city's in-sentiment of the council seems to be very strongly in favor of its passage. The section of the ordinance defining the limits of the underground district is as follows: Commencing at the northeast corner of Wil low avenue and Seventh street, thence north along the east side of Seventh street to the southeast corner of Mynster and Seventh street, thence east along the south side of Mynster street to its intersection with Ma'n street, thence north along the east olde of Main street to its intersection with Bryant street, thence south along the west line of Bryant street to its intersection with Broadway street, thence east along the south side of Broadway street to its intersection with Glen avenue, thence south along the west side of Glen avenue to its intersection with Pierce street, thence in a westerly direction along the north line of Pierce Etreet to its intersection with Bluff street, thence south along the west line of Bluff street to its intersection with Willow avenue thence west along the north side of Willow venue to its intersection with Seventh street. There is a feeling with the councilment that the district should be changed so that would require no more work or cost or the part of the company and still give the business section of the city better service. The idea is to drop off one block from the west line of the district and probably one from the north and extend the district fur-ther south on Main street and further east on Broadway. Laboring men are very much interested in the ordinance, as it means work for a large force for several months. COST OF DREAMS AND THE LIKE.

Suit Discloses the List Prices of Gowns, Lingerie and Fixin's.
Women who have had a consuming desire to wear gowns made by a man tailor with a reputation can find a lot of valuable information as to the expense of such a luxury in a suit filed in the district cour:

E. Stauffer is a man-modiste of New York City. His name bars him from claiming Parisian origin, but his prices indicate that he is a promising disciple of Worth in one respect, at least. The suit is brought by Stauffer against Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Mont-gomery of this city, and is for a claim of $1,000.08, for a balance due on dresses made and furnished during the years 1893, 1894 and 1895. The original claim was for $1,357.08. Payments to the extent of $365 are acknowledged, and an item of $8 is charged for interest to make the balance ing interesting in the petition, recites in a very few words the fact that Mrs. Montgomery bought dresses from Stauf-fer, and that there is a thousand dollar balance on the ledger against the purchaser. Exhibit "A" attached to the petition, however, furnishes a lot of interesting information as to the cost of art gowns, from the shop of a fashionable man tallor. The first item on the bill was by no means a small one. In October, 1893, Mr. Stauffer turned out one of his creations in black and green woolen, put up an extra silk waist, used velvet guipure trimmings and charged up a little bill of $210. A tan woolen came a little later at $110, and then $15 was charged up for retrimming the suit. Gowns more modest in price filled in an interval until the Easter approach, and then a blue canvas dress, gimp, moire, buttons, etc., was excuse for another $90 addition to the Then came the usual bunch of smaller items, capped by an item which recites the building of a "black and blue grenading dress, jet trimmings, spangled tulle, surah, jet clasp, etc., $135," and following close upon this just a simple black and yellow brocade that cost a trifle over $165.

Mr. Stauffer persists in making an itemized list of his claim, and there is a bill under the specification "underwear." in which the cost of a lot of feminine apparel is revoaled. There are skirts at $9 to $14. A French sacque at $16.50, French waists at $4 to $6, and the waist attachments at $4.50 to $5.50 per pair. Stauffer's corsets are listed at from $7 to $12. After this list comes another itemized account in the dress goods line for the daughter of the defend-ant. An oriental figured crepe waist was built for $40, and a tan striped poplinette dress cost $60. It took $25 to have a brown suit "refreshed," and some velvet trimming added. The last item of the bill was for a modiste's dream in Pekin blue and terra cotta, chenille embroidered suit that is listed at $145. The suit is commenced by a firm of Omaha attorneys, one of whom is an authority on gowns, having played a star part in the Ak-Sar-Ben ball one breezy night last Sep-

The city under this doubtful charter holds its elections at a different time from those of other first class cities in the state, and today it develops that as a result of the general over-turning of affairs in the municipal election yesterday the present office holding element is contemplating an action to enjoin the city clerk from issuing certificates of election to any of the newly elected. Oh! What a Blessing is a Bicycle!

Aside from the pleasure there is in bicycling, it is the most economic method of transportation that one can have.
