Found Not Guilty of Gambling. William Ebersole, R. O. Bachus and sev eral others, who were arrested in the midst of a poker game in rooms near Fifteenth and Capitol avenue, were placed on trial before Judge Gordon yesterday afternoon. When the officers raided the room they found the men seated around a number of green covered tables with poker chips and other gambling devices, but there was no money in sight. The evidence introduced by the defendants tended to show that the by the detendants tended to show that the game was merely a harmless affair with no money at stake, although the police main-tain that this statement is untrue and that the "tiger" was in full operation, but a few seconds before the entry of the officers. The men were discharged.

SENT OUT TO HEAL THE SICK

Omaha Medical College.

Address to the Members of the Class Delivered by Chancellor Mac-

Lean of the State University at Lincoln.

What with fine music, an abundance of beautiful and fragrant flowers and the presence of a host of friends to wish them success upon the career they were about to enter, the twenty-two graduates of college the Omaha Medical been in high spirits yesterhave day afternoon as they received diplomas bearing witness to their three years of faithful study and conferring upon them the degree of doctors of medicine. was the fifteenth annual commencement of the college. The exercises were held in Boyd's theater. The house was well filled with the friends of the alumni, graduates and undergraduates. On the stage were seated a number of local physicians and the trustees of the college. The program was opened with an overture by the orchestra, after which Rev. W. W. Harsha, D. D., offered a fervent prayer for the spiritual as well as for the worldly success of the young men and women who were about to be honored.

William F. Milroy, M. D., president of the board of trustees of the college, delivered a short address to the graduates before conferring the degrees upon them. He spoke of the vows taken by the father of medicine, who is supposed to have dwelt on an Island in the Aegean sea 500 years before the dawn of the Christian era. "With holiness and purity will I practice my art," was his selemn yow and from all these whe studied of him did he and from all those who studied of him did he demand this vow. His original investigations help to lay a successful foundation for a rational study of medicine, but, as important as was his wonderful progress, it did not compare with the value of the vows of holiness and purily. Dr. Milroy strongly urged upon the graduates a close observance of these principles. He said it was true that there was no punishment for transgressing the principles mentioned, save disgrace, but there should be a higher motive than fear which would compel adherence to them. He declared that physicians in the garb were many, but those in reality were too few.
"I apprehend that those who practice the art of medicine simply for the dollars that may be in it," said he, "shoot very far wide of the mark." I'm aware that physicians are the laughing stock of the commercial world which worships only the almighty dollar. Every well equipped physician may feel as-sured of a good livelihood, but should he reach only after the dollar mark he will fail to attain the best results.

"The profession is often spoken of as one of the liberal professions. So it is. Occabionally you meet a narrow-minded physician, who stumbles through a career of some kind. His sing are rather of omission than of commission. The practice of medicine demands the highest faculties to be employed by the mind, keen and accurate observation, the most cultured tastes and the best judgment. 'Think for yourself,' is a motto I was once given, and I can think of none that will better serve you in the career that you have before you. Historical facts are of mere passing interest. HANDED THEIR SHEEPSKINS.

"It is now my pleasure to hand to you the iplomas awarded to you by the Omaha Medical college for your completion of a re-quired course of study and to confer upon you the degrees of doctors of medicine. I heartily congratulate every one of you, and wish you every success throughout your career. It is my warmest wish that when you have completed your work on this earth that you may find the silent boatman of the golden stream waiting to convey you through open gates to the honor and the glory that await them who have nobly filled their mission here."

President Milroy called the graduates to the front of the stage, and as each one responded to his name, he was presented with a diploma by the president, and a round of applause by the audience. The names of the graduates, together with the names of the towns in which they will settle and com-mence the practice of medicine, are as fol-Herbert Augustus Abbott Waterle Edson Lowell Bridges, Omaha; Albert But ler, undecided; George Pigeon Clements, Hartington; Charles Clarence Crawl, Ran-dolph; George Richardson Gilbert, Omaha; Paul Ernest Von Keerber, Grand Island; Thomas James Lawson, Council Bluffs, Ia.; William Herod Lawrie, Omaha; Frank Ed-ward Liliedah Lawrie, Omaha; Frank Edward Lilledahl, Immanuel hospital, Omaha-Maud Mead, Oberlin, Kan.; Roy Harry Mc Carl. Verley, Arlington, S. D.

After the degrees had been conferred, the ushers began to distribute the various presents sent to the newly-made doctors by their admiring friends. It was a task of no mean dimensions. There were enough floral designs brought up to the stage to establish a fine conservatory in the home of each graduate. Almost every member of the graduating class received one or mor handsome bouquets; others received books.

ADDRESS BY THE CHANCELLOR. After another selection by the orchestra, Chancellor George Edwin MacLean of the University of Nebraska was introduced and received with hearty applause. He said that with considerable pleasure he had accepted the invitation to speak again in Omaha. The first time he addressed an audience in this city it was in the act of performing a marriage ceremony between Lincoln and Omaha. The two cities had been separated on account of a lovers' quarrel. He believed that the two had been living harmly together. the two had been living happily together ever since the marriage ceremony. He had appeared in this city again to urge upon the good church people the necessity of supporting the public schools. Again he had spoken on the ration's foreign relations. But his considered this occasion the crowning even of all his appearances in Omaha, and on that ccount he was glad to be present. He spoke briefly on "The Modern Amer ican Physician," saying: "In the first place the modern American physician is a gentle man. He is a gentleman, historically con-sidered. Back in the times of Good Queen Bess the physician ranked as one of the nobility, and of the royalty." He was glad that there were no classes in America that the gentleman was not a title to be bestowed because of noble blood, but was an honor that could be earned by even the humb'est persant.

"You have before you a noble profession, a great vocation. We, who are members of any profession, profess belief in certain principles. A profession may include an art or a craft, but no profession is designed as a money-making enterprise. In these days when the science of medicine is so rapy rising it may be your good fortune to discoverers of some important medical it. That would indeed be a great honor. But if you are looking for wealth, and that only, you had best leave the professions alone. SOME FATHERLY ADVICE. "You must be men of science. Practice authority. Be at home with your chemistry, your physics and your biology. must also be a man of culture. You need to be men and women of great and expanding hearts. He is the best physician who knows something of art and literature, in addition to his knowledge of the medical science. I have in mind a friend who was a most successful physician. Above his collection of medical works there was his own private library, a treasury of the beat things in literature. In this he found surcease for his sarrow. It gave him freshness for his special work. It made him more than a physician. It made him a man of thought and of culture.

Harold Gifford, Mi II., dean of the college faculty, after a short address, presented to Reuben Robinson, a prize for obtaining the best set of marks in the final examinations. The prize was a handsome set of surgical in-struents. The dean declared that the prize winner was entitled to a great deal of praise, as he had had to contend against the obstacle of language and had even then FIFTEENTH ANNU/ L COMMENCE MENT HELD led his class. DICK GRANDON FINALLY CAUGHT.

Has Been Wanted in Council Blufts for Four Years. Dick Grandon was arrested yesterday afternoon.

Four years ago George Stevens toll taker at the east end of the Douglas street bridge, was held up by two men who robbed the each register of $20 and the man of a gold watch. It was suspected that Soper Burns and Dick Grandon were the highwaymen.

A few nights later the men were arrested in this city and taken to Council Bluffs. Burns pleaded guilty to the charge against him and is now serving a seven years' sentence at the Fort Madison penitentiary for the crime. Grandon pleaded not guilty and was released on bonds of $500. His mother put this money up in hard cash, but later put this money up in hard cash, but later S. B. Wadsworth signed the bond and she withdrew her money. Suit has been brough on the bond. A very short time thereafter Grandon ekipped from the city and although he was traced all over the west no definite knowledge of his whereabouts was ever obtained. Ex-Sheriff Hazen, who was then in office, spent some time in running after his man along the Pacific coast, but never succeeded in catching up with him. Now that Grandon is in custody he will not be prosecuted. The complaining witness in the case, George Stevens, is dead. About a year and a half ago he was shot and killed by his stepson in Council Bluffs while he was abusing his wife and the boy's mother.

WAS FOUND DEAD IN HIS ROOM. Engineer Garrigan of Sioux City

Failed to Answer the Call. D. W. Garrigan of Sloux City, an engineer n the Omaha road; called at the Drexel hotel at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and asked for a room. Shortly afterward he retired, leaving instructions to be called at noon. Shortly after 12 o'clock the clerk rapped at the door, but Garrigan failed to reply. Looking over the transom, the clerk saw the man lying on the bed. The door was broken open and it was found that Garrigan was dead.

St. Patrick's Choir Benefit. The musical and theatrical, given a Creighton hall, last evening, for the benefit of St. Patrick's choir, was a success, both n point of attendance and in the excellent in point of attendance and in the excellent program rendered.

"Happy Days," solo by Miss Mahoney, and "In Flecia," by Jules Lombard, were received as old favorites. The harp solo by Miss Withelmina Lowe received a double encore, and her subsequent playing as accompanist showed an extensive study of the instrument. The double number, "An Irish Eolk Sng" and "Because I Love Tree," sung by Miss A. Bishop, was a feature of the evening and earned a prolonged encore from the audience. The other selections rendered were "The Angelus," by Mrs. F. Moriarity, and "Ave Maria," by Mrs. Moriarity and Miss Rush. Following the musical first part the comedy sketch, entitled "Roseberry Shrub Sec." sketch, entitled "Roseberry Shrub Sec," was given, with Mrs. E. Matheson, Mrs. J. H. Wheeler, Miss Edith Squires and Fred Scmers in the principal roles.

Friends Seeking an Insane Man Chief Sigwart received a letter yesterday rom S. C. Thompson of Plattsmouth, requesting that the Omaha police be on the lookout for Oscar Thompson, a young man, who left his home in that city last Friday evening. Thompson is slightly deranged and has been under the care of a physician for several months. He was closely watched by his relatives, but evaded the guard placed over him last week, and came to Omaha. Last Sunday night he was a lodger at the station, and attracted the attention of the failer by his peculiar actions and was locked up in the boys' cige on the upper floor. It was thought at first that he was an insane man wanted in South Omaha, named Donka, but when a description of the prisoner was forwarded to the parties it was learned that he was not the man. Thompson was released Monday morning, and has not been seen since. questing that the Omaha police be on the

WILLOW SPRINGS PLANT OUT OF THE TRUST Early Next Month the Management Will Begin the Manufacture of Spirits-Forty Men to Be Employed.

A deal has been nearly consummated by which the Willow Springs distillery will once more be separated from the trust and ecome operative under the management of P. E. Her. It is reliably stated that the establishment, which has been idle for two ears, will be opened about May 1, employ ng about forty men during the summer. This is the final result of the complicaions in which the distillery has been involved with the Whisky trust for several years past. Mr. Her has practically reached an understanding with the trust, by which he will purchase the establishment and operate it again on his own responsibility To a reporter Mr. Her admitted that such was the case. He said that it might not be consummated before May 1 and until that time he did not wish to plans. But it was more than likely that the distillery would be opened soon after the first of next month. It would be run at a moderate capacity during the summer, but the force would be increased in the fall, when the corn begins to arrive. The fact that the establishment is to pass into Mr. Iler's hands again has been carefully concealed, although the negotiations have been in progress for some time. The distillery is now being overhauled and re-indication that the deal by which it will again become an active industry is very nearly consummated.
