

IN HONOR OF DR. HAHNEMANN

Anniversary of His Birth Celebrated by Homeopaths. BANQUET OF THE OMAHA PHYSICIANS. Their High Tribute Added to Those of the School the World Over—The List of Toasts.

The homeopathic physicians of Omaha, with a number of invited guests from out of town, banqueted at Hahnemann's last evening in honor of the one hundred and forty-first anniversary of the birth of the progenitor of their system, Dr. Samuel Hahnemann. The room was very tastefully decorated with potted plants, and the menu and incidental arrangements of the occasion left nothing to be desired.

It was about 8:30 o'clock when the Omaha physicians congregated around the banquet table. Dr. H. P. Holmes occupied the head of the table, with Rev. S. Wright Butler at his left. With them were seated Dr. P. J. Montgomery and Dr. A. P. Hanchett of Council Bluffs; Dr. W. A. Humphrey and Dr. W. A. Humphrey of Plattsmouth; Dr. O. S. Wood and Miss Wood, Dr. R. W. Conwell and wife, Dr. D. A. Foote and wife, Dr. T. E. W. Hanchett, Miss Dr. Davies, Dr. E. L. Alexander and Mrs. D. Davies, Dr. J. S. Quinby, Dr. H. P. Parrell, Dr. J. M. G. Wood, Dr. R. W. Conwell and Mrs. C. S. Sherman, Dr. A. Smith, Prof. Roe and Miss Tilly Larsen. The homeopathic physicians of Lincoln had been invited to be present, but were unable to attend on account of a similar celebration of their own.

After the coffee had been served, Dr. Holmes called the banquet to order and briefly outlined the significance of the occasion. He spoke of the manner in which the anniversary was being celebrated in all the large cities of the United States, and briefly referred to some of the most important features of the work of Dr. Hahnemann. He declared that in his opinion no man had ever lived whose life was worth so much to the world as Dr. Hahnemann. No one had done so much for the general good of humanity as he had done by this one discovery of "similia similibus curantur."

DOCTORS MAKE SPEECHES. The toast was very brief, each speaker being limited to three minutes. This being the case, set speeches were not attempted, and most of the speakers limited their efforts to a few lively comments on the prominent side of the subjects. Dr. Parrell spoke on "Homeopathy, the Goal of Therapeutics." He said that all were striving for perfection in science, in art, in literature and in character. But as a rule, humanity was fated to fall far short of its purpose. The starting point of perfection in all sciences had been when the great theory of Dr. Hahnemann was promulgated, but the goal would never be attained. There was no end in the race toward perfection, which would continue as long as the sun continued to light the earth.

Dr. Montgomery discussed "The Physician's Air Castles." He contended that fads and fancies were not air castles. The air castle was something that a man built from his intellect. It might be the goal of his ambition, and it might be the goal of his ambition. Every young physician should build air castles, and every old physician should dwell in the real habitation. Dr. Quinby was called to speak on "The Unexpected," and by way of being true to his subject he read Oliver Wendell Holmes' poem "Bill and Joe" instead of answering a toast. The other toasts were: E. L. Alexander, "The Bachelor Doctor," R. W. Conwell, "Politics and Medicine," E. J. Davies, "The Maiden Doctor," D. A. Foote, "Pills and Water," W. H. Hanchett, "Our Medical Societies," A. P. Hanchett, "Rev. Sister States," E. Mann, "Our Seminars," G. S. Wood, "The Physician's Life," Rev. S. Wright Butler, "The Chalcogones," C. S. Sherman, "Little Pills and Big Pills," W. A. Humphrey, "The Missouri Valley Homeopathic Medical Society."

WORLD WIDE CELEBRATION. The Hahnemann banquet in Omaha was a small part of the tribute that was being offered to the memory of the great master of the art of healing. All over the world the celebration of the centennial of homeopathy is made the occasion for a fitting recognition of the services of the man whose labors the homeopaths owe the foundation of their school. One of the most notable features of this celebration in this country is the movement which was started by the American Institute of Homeopathy to erect a monument to his memory on one of the most squares of Washington, D. C. The model of a handsome granite monument surmounted by a bronze statue has been accepted, and the completed structure will cost about $100,000. It is to be raised largely by contributions from members of the profession, and a special committee of congress is considering the location of the exact site of the structure. A brief synopsis of the life and achievements of Samuel Hahnemann shows him to have been a man of great capacity. He had acquired a reputation as an eclectic and variety of the learning which he had acquired are so remarkable as to excite astonishment. He was born in Meissen, Saxony, April 10, 1755. His early education was received at the hands of his parents, but such was his precocity that he was an instructor in the rudiments of the Greek language at 12, and at 20 he was master of German, French, English, Italian, Latin and Greek. At this time he was an instructor in the university at Leipzig. He afterward added Arabic, Syriac, Chaldean and Hebrew to his linguistic acquirements. During this time he had studied medicine and graduated with honors at Erlangen in 1775. At this time he was a member of various scientific societies in which he was famous for his researches in chemistry. He held various official positions in the German government, and in 1785 he was admitted to the faculty of medicine in the university at Leipzig, where he lectured for many years. During his life Dr. Hahnemann wrote upwards of seventy books, and translated twenty-four more from English, French, Italian and Latin authors. All his lifetimes attending to a large practice of which he kept a careful record. His death occurred in Paris in 1843 at the age of four score years.

The great work which has made the name of Hahnemann famous down to the present generation is a book published in 1795 entitled "A New Principle for Ascertaining the Remedial Powers of Medicinal Substances." In this he indicated the relationship between drugs and the human system, and the dangerous errors which were then practiced and led the way to a more scientific use of medicine than had been previously known. This paper is recognized as the beginning of the present homeopathic system and of a new era in medicine. It is the publication of this paper which furnishes the occasion for the centennial which was celebrated yesterday wherever homeopathy is known.

Spring Time. In when nearly everyone feels the need of some blood purifying, health invigorating and health producing medicine. The real merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the reason of its widespread popularity. Its unequalled success is its best recommendation. The whole system is susceptible to the most good from a medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla taken at this time, and we would lay special stress upon the time and remedy, for history has it recorded that delays are dangerous. The remarkable success achieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla and the many words of praise it has received make it worthy of your confidence. We ask you to give this medicine a fair trial.

Investigating Hood's Charges. A committee of the Central Labor Union held a secret meeting at Labor Temple last evening to investigate the charge that President Fisher and J. G. Kubn had received bounties in the last campaign. A. G. Gale, chairman of the committee, stated that a report would be made at a meeting of Central Labor Union next Thursday evening.

Miss Van Sant of the city attorney's office is preparing the bond refunding ordinance for introduction. The document contains more than eighty typewritten pages. It is the intention to call a special meeting of the council for Saturday night for the purpose of reading the ordinance for the first time, so that it may be passed at the regular meeting Tuesday night. Properly proved too much for Joe White, an employe of the Union Pacific, yesterday. After being payed off he visited a number of saloons and then called upon some women friends at the Coquette hotel at Thirteenth and Capitol avenue. Here the afternoon was pleasantly passed in drinking, until White discovered he had been robbed of $25. He then sent Mary Young, one of the women, out for more beer while he attempted to recover his money from Kate Gibson, whom he suspected of having robbed him. Trouble ensued and the police arrested all three parties, White being retained as complaining witness.

SLIPS IN SPEECH.

Had Breaks Apologized the Cause of Quotations. In the hurry of speech and the anxiety to be polite one is very often liable to slips of the tongue which may put an entirely different construction upon the sentence than was intended. For example, upon arriving at your entertainers' house, you say: "I beg a thousand pardons for coming late," and are met by your hostess with the words: "My dear sir, no pardons are needed; you say never come too late."

Take another instance. At an evening party in Cork a woman said to her partner: "Can you tell me who that exceedingly plain man is sitting opposite to us?" "That is my brother," "Oh, I beg your pardon," she replied, much confused, "I did not notice the resemblance."

That was certainly putting one's foot in it, and yet, perhaps, was not so awkward as the following: After a certain concert a well known German cantatrice asked a man to whom she had been introduced how he liked the duet. "You sang charmingly, madam. But why do you select such a horrid piece of music?" "Sister," she was written by my late husband?" "Ah, yes, of course, I did not mean—but why did you select such an ass to sing with you?" "An himmel, that was my husband!"

A woman said something the other day at a friend's dinner that found a mark the archer little meant. There were several strangers present, and in response to a remark made about a certain woman of a certain age the fair guest in question exclaimed: "Here, my dear husband," and a loving wife, "I have brought you a little silver pig for luck. It's a charm, you know, dear, to bring happiness to a house."

A neighborhood complaint recently rather disturbed the harmony of a wedding breakfast given by a substantial farmer blessed with five daughters, the eldest being a well known young farmer, who was honored with an invitation, thinking, no doubt, he ought to say something smart and complimentary upon the event, addressing the bride and groom, and saying: "I am the pick of the batch." The countenances of the four unmarried ones may be imagined.

Blood purified, disease cured, sickness and suffering prevented—in this the record made each year by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Marriage Licenses. Permits to wed were issued to the following couples yesterday: Name and Address. Age. Carl Carlson, Omaha, 24. Hannah Carlson, Omaha, 22. Joseph Sekera, Omaha, 24. Antonie Sarranek, Omaha, 19. T. Casimir, Omaha, 24. Hannah Peterson, Omaha, 25.

Electric Bitters. Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails. It is a powerful purgative and sloughs and the need of a tonic and a stimulant is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal illnesses.
