McKinley Managers Select Their Oratorical Champions for St. Louis. SPRINGFIELD, O., April 13 .- The information comes direct from Senator Joseph B. Foraker that he will present ex-Governor McKinley's name to the republican national convention at St. Louis for the presidential nomination. It was first announced about two months ago by Governor Bushnell, whose is here and who is Foraker's bosom friend, that Ohio's new United States senstor probably would do this. This was at the time that the charges against Forsker of lack of loyalty to McKinley were bitterest, and the announcement was naturally received managers of the sound money element, with a great deal of doubt. Foraker is exis stated that Governor Bushnell, who is McKinley a great sendoff this time at St. Louis. It has already been announced from braska is to second McKinley's nomination. This statement is verified.

Secretary of the Pantheon Club, Dallas, Tex.: My Dear Sir—I am in receipt of yours of the 3d inst, in regard to the annual banquet of the Pantheon Republican club of Texas. Your organization has achieved a reputation that is as creditable as it is widely extended, and I would be delighted, were it within the possibilities for me to make the trip to Texas, to meet the members of your organization face to face. Up here in the north it is easy to be a republican, but it requires true grit and a firm foundation in the faith to belong to the republican party in your state, but we can rejoice that there is promise of a brighter day in the states of the south. I send my most cordial greatings to the members of the Pantheon club, and trust that ther banquet will be a pronounced social success and an inspiration for renewed activity in the republican cause. CALLED OFF THE JOINT DEBATE

Ex-Speaker Crisp Quits Under Advice of His Physician. ATLANTA, Ga., April 13.-A decided sensation has been created in political circles here by the announcement of ex-Speaker to call off the last of the joint debates between himself and Secretary Hoke Smith at Lexington tomorrow, and also to cancel all the engagements he has made to deliver speeches at other points in the state.

Mr. Crisp stated that he does this on the senator Akers and Frank R. Beoman. The following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, We recognize that an overwhelming majority of the rank and file of the republican party of the United States are in favor of the next national convention of that splendid soldler, matchless statesman and noble civilian, the foremost champion of the doctrine of protection the unswerving friend of the agricultural and industrial classes, and the advance agent of prosperity, William McKinley of Ohio; therefore, be it Resolved, By the republicans of the Sixth conversional district in convention assembled, that we are carpestly and unalterably in favor of William McKinley for president of the United States, and be it further Resolved. That the delegates and alternates selected by this convention to represent the Sixth district at the national republican convention at St. Louis be and are each of them hereby instructed to use all honerable means to secure the nomination of William McKinley by said convention.

The engagements he has made to deliver speeches at other points in the state.

Mr. Crisp stated that he does this on the advice of his physician, who informed him this morning after a personal examination that he was threatened with heart failure and warned him against a continuance of his possible that he may resume his free silver campaign later, but that for the present he has decided to submit his chances to the people on his talk already made.

Turner of the High school and W. Michaelson. The electricians even made some of Roentgen's pete, or said they did. The big audience, which filled the auditorium, did not see them, but when li looked upon the globe of yellowish green light it felt that they were there all right. W. Michaelson was the first to take his place among the electrical machines and electricity. He especially the alternating current, the one which was introduced into the Crooke's tube to make the X rays. The tube is a pear-shaped glass which has been found to be less useful for the purpose than a common cylindrical tube. It contains a point and a disc, between which the X ray seems to be manufactured when all but .0000005 of the air is exhausted. noticed a piece of paper covered with a chen in its work, but the professor did not know it at the time. He smelled rodents, how ever, and he put a box over the Crooke's tube to put an end to the funny business. The still undiscovered X ray was not made of the stuff to be downed like that, and the paper still glowed. Thereupon the professo put his own goodly body between the tube and the paper, but the florescence continued. This made him angry, and getting out his photographic outfit he finally captured the ray. The world looked upon Prof. Roentgen as a faker for some time, but practical experiments have proved that the wheels were n the world's head and not his. The electric light in the auditorium was turned off and the current was passed into a Crooke's tube that was displayed on the platform. A yellow-green light filled the tube, while scattering sparks flew from the point to the disc. Prof. Turner explained that an enclosed photographic sensitiv was placed below the lower end of the tub and under it the object to be photographed was placed. It required an hour or two before an impression sufficiently strong was

Prof. Turner also exhibited a number o photographs that he and Prof. Leviston had made by the process. A full set of surgical restruments enclosed in a leather case was shown, all the articles being plainly outlined. Even the outlines of a small ther-mometer in a hard rubber casing within the case were plain. He also showed photo-graphs of fish in which the ribs and back-defeat to Johnston's efforts in the Fourth bones were shown, and a number of photographs of hands. In two of these imbedded bullets were plainly seen.

Prof. Turner also stated that Edison had taken hold of the X ray and was working it for all it was worth. He had invented an open box at the end of which was fastenel a cardboard covered with the chemica substance by means of which Roentgen had discovered the ray. When this was held to the eyes and an object was placed between the Crooke's tube and cardboard the outlines of the object were plainly thrown upon the latter and could be viewed at leisure. This on the rostrum beside Mayor Johnston be used to better advantage than that which Roentgen used. The professor did not care to predict the possibility of the X ray. He said it was a marvel now as common photography was to the people when first discovered and believed that the X ray would rise in the world just as much as photography had done As to the opinions that were held regarding the ray, Prof. Turner stated that a woman had asked him to locate the seat of h deafness by means of it. Another wanted him to photograph a friend's back by mean ray, in order to discover whether the friend was ruffering from a bad liver, a kidney complaint or something else. On my advent into the office of mayor two years ago I found the funds of the city overdrawn in the sum of $10,296.67, and that the current expenses for the two preceding years were, 1892 and 1893, $71,080.37; 1893 and 1894. $69,113.60, making a total of $140,133.97.

The current expenses of the present administration have been, according to the published financial statement, 1894 to 1895, building the published financial statement, 1894 to 1895, and 1895. 59.468.46; 1895 and 1896, $61.114.58; total, $120.

published financial statement 1894 to 1895, $53,463.46; 1895 and 1896, $51,114.58; total, $120,583.04.

Instead of being overdrawn now the balances amount to the sum of $7,782.85.

The present system of taxation is clearly inequitable, because the system of assessment is not equitable. South Omaha is in the predicament whereby the maximum rate of tax for general purposes as fixed by our city charter produces several thousand dollars less than the requirements to meet the running expenses of the city. Leaving out the charge for interest on our general bonded indebtedness the running expenses are in round numbers $4,000. Our assessed valuation is in round numbers $1,600,900. With a maximum tax rate of 21 mills this produces $34,880. It will be seen by these figures that there is a shortage or overlap each year of about $10,000. The only way to remedy this will be to increase the assessed valuation of corporate property.

It is a well known fact that the corporations pay a very small proportion of the local taxes, the bulk of the burden being borne by the small home owners and the people who are least able to bear it, while the corporations by means generally understood are assessed at a valuation which is ridiculously low. In this direction the mayor of Detroit has demonstrated that the people when are least able to bear it, while the corporations by means generally understood are assessed at a valuation which is ridiculously low. In this direction the mayor of Detroit has demonstrated that the people when aroused to admitted inequalities of taxation are not slow to remedy their wrongs. No official in my judgment has any right to destroy equality of taxation by arbitrary official action. This is a matter of the greatest importance to all our citizens and a strong and determined effort will be necessary to accomplish a reform in this direction.

The facilities enjoyed by entrenched capital constitute a practical exemption from taxation. The means adopted to avoid it are a menace to p-pular government. Capital consolidates, creates trusts and augments profits at the expense of other interests. Certainly there is a deepseated conviction in the public mind that the co-ordinate branches of the government are under its control. To remove such cause of popular discontent I am of the opinism that where power is equitably distributed among different political organizations the people are the gainers thereby.

Maiadministration is the offspring of the unpardonable indifference or the cowardice of the electors. If the general results of the past two years should mark a decided advance in the direction of municipal resonance in the direction of municipal resonance in the direction of municipal resonance in the direction of service to my fellow citizens.

For my successor I bospeak the respectful consideration to which he is entitled. I trust that his official acts will be viewed and criticlesed from the standpoint of patrictic citizenship.

In surrendering to the people the trust

Explanation Not Good Enough M. Miller, arrested some time ago for attempting to defraud his landlady, Mrs. Mary Erwin, 1412 Leavenworth street, by passing a confederate $10 bill in payment for his board, was tried in Justice Anderson's court yesterday for attempting to pass counterfeit money. Miller claimed that he had had considerable money on the day of his arrest, but that while intoxicated in a certain saloon some one robbed him and substituted the spurious money in the place of his legal tender. Miller was bound over to the United States court, the bonds being $500.
