DOES EXCELLENT WORK ON LIVE BIRDS

Last Day of the State Shoot Full of Interest to the Followers of the Trap and Target.

Vesterday was certainly a great day at Parmelee's park, the greatest in its eventful history. It was the windup of the twentieth annual state shoot, and, as has been predicted all along, by far the largest erowd of the week was present to witness the sport. At one time during the state championship event there was something like 1.000 speciators, among whom was quite a Hit sprinkling of ladies, crowded the platforms back of the traps.

The attendance in the morning, too, was much larger than on any previous day, there Umpire: being a very general desire to witness the live bird events. None of these, however, came up until afternoon, target events Nes. 2 and 3 occupying all the morning. The weather was charming and the shooters manifested their approval by shattering the clay pigeons in a way that was fairly startling. Parmelee started off with twenty straight, and followed this up with nineteen more, while Rollo, Heikes, Chippy Budd, Gilbert, Grim, Kellar, Loomis and the rest of the expert gang shot as if they couldn't

As has been indicated by his excellent work since the first day, Frank Parmelee came out on top of the whole heap with flying colors. He not only made the best average for the entire shoot, but won the most money. His average was 93, and his winnings something over $309. Next to the lead champion on averages and money comes Fred Gilbert of Spirit Lake, Ia., average 91, money $275; Relio O. Helkes of Dayton, O. average 90, money $275.50; Charles Grim, Clear Luke, Ia., average 88, money $160.50; J. W. Sexten, Leavenworth, Kan., average 87,

During the four days' shooting there were 42,000 shells shot, 40,000 targets and 600 live birds, which will afford some sort of an idea of the quality of shooting done.

The morning events were as follows:

STATE SHOOT A HOT ONE.

In the afternoon, after several special events had been shot, the state championship event, for the diamond badge emblematic of the honor, was called. This was ten live birds per man, $10 entrance, $40 added, with twenty-iwo entries. This was unequivocally the race of the week, and one that proved of more than ordinary interest. Tom Kellar was chosen referee, which position he filled with eminent success. The birds were a good lot, and there was both good and indifferent markemarkhis displayers. good lot, and there was both good and indif-ferent marksmanship displayed, W. S. Duer of Hastings finally winning the badge in handsome style. He killed his first ten straight, and in the shoot-off grassed more without a miss. Following is the score;

The ties on ten followed with the shoot off, Duer, Linderman, Dickey and Glade facing the traps. Hamilton was barred on account of not being a member of the state association, which fact, however, dd not develop until after he had killed his ten straight in the match proper. The shooting of Colonel J. J. Dickey, who was the only man in the first squad to kill all his birds, excited no little favorable comment, and the genial colonel, when his last bird was knocked to the grass with his first barrel and effectually extinguished with the second. was overwhelmed with the congratulations of his fellow club members. His birds were all good strong filers, there not being a lag kills were remarkably neat and clean, as well as extremely difficult, Old Man Den, the hero of Brownville, also did some creditable shooting and although be only succeeded in getting in the eight hole, it was conceded on all sides that with a little luck he would have quit with the leaders. Mr. Dan is 73 years of age, and has not missed a local trap shoot in twenty years. He is a fine old gentleman and very sepular with all the best shots in the coun-

But one man in the whole brigade that took part in the tournament used black pow-der and that was Tem Cashline in the Diamond badge shoot. He killed five birds and that was all he was entitled to, according to Mr. Kellar, who declared that any man who uses "soft coal" in his gun in these modern times has but little claim in a place fast company. The shoot-off was to have been at ten birds, but after Mr. Dickey had dropped out in two, the balance agreed to miss and out. The score is appended:

One of the most interesting extra matches was a miss and out, live birds, fifteen entries. The affair get down to Parmelee, Gilwhen the two latter missed and dropped out, leaving the two experts to decide which was the winner, but after all it ended in a tia both men killing twenty straight, when the conclude his season next week. praise of the management.

University Club and Soldiers Play at the Park Today.

The University club and the soldiers from Fort Omaha will play a game of ball at University park this afternoon at 3:30. The soldiers are putting up a stiff article of ball this season and will give the university boys this season and will give the university boys an argument well worth while going to see. The University club season proper will be formally inaugurated at the park on May 2 by a game with the University of Nebraska nine. The local team has never been in as good a position to give a fine exhibition of ball playing as this season, as the preliminary games attest. The nine is well balanced, and all are playing in harmony. The University of Nebraska boys, from all reports, are amply capable of compelling the locals to put forth their best endeavors, and a lively game is assured.

BREAKING DOWN WILL WOOD'S CHARACTER

Defense Tries to Show that One of the Witnesses Against Jackson Had Failings of

His Own.

NEWPORT, Ky., April 24.-Every available space in the court house today was crowded during Scott Jackson's trial. Among the witnesses examined was Will Wood, the friend and correspondent of Jackson, once charged with complicity in the crime, but since released by nolle prosequi. The most interesting witness this morning was the mother of Pearl Bryan, who was put on the stand to testify to the disposition of her daughter. It is evidently a part of the policy of the prosecution to show the youthfulness trustfulness and inexperience of the murdered girl. Late this afternoon the defense rewas on the stand, which will be to break nuncio to Mexico. He will come to the down the character of that witness by show- United States immediately upon finishing his ing that he, by his own confession to per- work in Mexico, where he is now engaged

During one of them he asked the prelate when he expected to return to Rome, his witness fees. The cross-examination be-gun yesterday was continued and the witness showed himself ready to answer every ques-tion. He said Shepard and Andrews, when they called on him asked him to take a drink, which he refused. At their request he showed them the house kept by Clara Bates. He repeated his statement that Shepard told him that no power on earth could force him to go to Kentucky as a wit-ness. When asked if he did not call Shepard aside and speak to him privately so he could ask him how much he could get for refusing to testify, he replied that he called Shepard aside and told him he could not refuse to because the state of feeling wa Philadelphia, who spoke about the work of the Kensington branch of the ethical sospoke to Shepard privately occause Shepard made the proposition to him privately. He said it was a bay horse that drew the cab from Wallingford's saloon. He was asked about whether he had been arrested or in-dicted and answered promptly that he had once been arrested for petty larceny, but was acquitted.

WAS AN INNOCENT GIRL A. S. Bryan was called to testify as to the disposition of Pearl Bryan. He said she was of a very confiding disposition toward any one in whom she had confidence, or that she regarded as a friend. She had never been in Cucinnati until she came to her death. She was acquainted with no one here except a mun named Marthias. She was an innocent, unouphisticated girl, who had seldom gone out before the coroner.

The chief point brought out in Dr. Crare's

testimony was that no poison except that which is known to be in the embalming fuld was found in Pearl Bryan's stomach, aside from that of cocaine. He found one and onefourth grains of cocase and estimated that a dose of about two grains had been given. The stomach was bloodless,

Dr. Dickore, a chemist, was examined in egard to stains found in the value and branch of the supreme court tolay handed on the trousers found in Jackson's posses-down a decision deciaring the Raines law clon. He said these stains were made by blood of a mammalia. It was not possible Thirty complaints for violation of the Raineo excise law were laid before the King's county grand jury. The jury made earth taken from where Pearl Bryan's body was found, and compared it with the mud Brocklyn today refusing to indict any of the found on Jackson's trousers. He declared alleged offenders. The district attorney exthat the two specimens were alike. As to the spots on Jackson's coat, which had been recovered from a sewer, he was not able to determine whether or not they were blood stains. It was a question, however, whether the exposure of the coat in the sewer would not obliterate the evidences of blood.

In his testimony in regard to his analysis of the contents of the dead girl's stomach, Dr. Crane showed he had tested for every possible poison, mineral and vegetable, which could be obtained in Cincinnati, finding none in the stomach, except such as were con-tained in the embalming fluid, except cocaine. WILL WOOD ON THE STAND. The cross-examination of the negro bar tender, Allen Jones Johnson, was continued. He identified the girl's dress and bat as that worn by the young girl brought into the wine room by Scott Jackson on the Friday night, January 31, before the dead body was

Dave Wallingford, the proprietor of that saloon, was called afterward. His testimony as to the presence and identity of Jackson and Pearl Bryan at his saloon in the even ing of January 31 corroborated the testimony of Ailen Johnson. It did more. It showed that Jackson was there with the girl on Thursday night, as well as on Friday night. before the murder. Cross-examination instead of weakening his evidence resulted in filling some gaps that the prosecution had forgotten A wave of low murmurs ran over the room when Will Wood took the witness stand. He stated that his friendship for Scott Jackson was acquired during his stay of nearly a year in Greencastle. He also admitted that he had introduced Jackson to his second cousin, Pearl Bryan, and that since Jackson's departure last October from Greencastle to C'ncinnati he had kept up a correspondence with him and that letters from Jackson to with him and that letters from Jackson to him personally were destroyed by him ac-cording to Jackson's request. The part of the story already told about the share he took in bringing Pearl Bryan to Cincinnati, to have a criminal operation performed, he corroborated. The most thrilling part of his story was that in which he said Jackwhile visiting Greencastle during Christmas vacation, went with him to Pearl Bryan's, got a prescription from her that Jackson had sent from Cincinnati, and destroyed it, telling Wood it would be danger ous to him If he should get into trouble. On January 24, 1896, the witness said he re-

Suit Against Lantern-Slide Makers for Stenling "Ben-Hur" Rights. NEW YORK, April 25.—The World this his publishers, Harper Bros., have brought suit against the firm of Riley Bros. of Bradford, England, and of this city. When 'Ben-Hur" was printed by the Harpers they reserved all rights to the publication and dramatization of the novel. Within a year or two they sold the dramatization rights to Clark & Co., a western firm. Riley Bros., who make stereopticon slides, spent $5,000 in getting out an illustrated lecture on the novel. Clark & So. found out last winter that these lectures, with the magic lantern accompanied depicting scenes in "Ben-Hur," were being given throughout Michigan Wisconsin. They objected, and the suit is the result. First, however, they bought the entire lecture outfit. They claimed to have been damaged to the extent of $10,000. The case came up in the United States circuit court, but was adjourned to May 1. M. D. Wilbur is the counsel for the defense, and they contend that the lecture was no infringement of the rights to dramatize. August T. Gurlitz represents the plaintiffs.
