How Meschendorf Died.

Coroner Jennings decided yesterday that an inquest was not necessary to establish the cause of death of the old man, Meschendorf, who died in a cell in the city jail on the evening previous. Inquiry developed the fact that the man had been ailing for several days, and had been exposed to the heavy rain and hall storm during the afternoon drinking a large quantity of beer. Death had evidently come after a fearful spasm, similar to the termination of a fatal case of poisoning or spinal mening tis.

It was learned yesterday that his sor George H. Meschendorf, was in Douglay, Alaska, and that a sister, Mrs. Metzer, lived in Lincoln. A telegram sent to the address given in Lincoln was not successful in finding Mrs. Metzer. Another relative lives in Lncoin also, but could not be found. The dead man had no other friends in this vicinity. Unless the relatives in Lincoln can be found the body will be buried by the county.

Mr. Owens has gone to a great expense in the matter of preparing a su-perior performance of his play and he has demonstrated his ability as a stage director by the remarkably clever production of "Rosedale." He is a citizen of Council Bluffs and we should be loath to allow a man of his commanding abilities to become discouraged by reason of non-appreciation of his efforts to give us something better, in the way of home productions, than we have been accustomed to in the past. "The Fairies' Carnival" should attract large audences and no doubt will. The scenery is all in place and everything is in complete readiness for the opening tonight.
