THAT ALIBERGE MAN'S NEST.

The course pursued by Mr. Bryan's organ since the silver debate is beneath contempt. A great hue and cry has been raised over the pretended duplicity of his antagonist of a speech delivered by Judge Aldrege of Texas some months ago.

It is the habit of demagogues and mountebanks to make mountains out of mole hills by magnifying and exaggerating. There is nothing in the Aldrege matter that calls for an apology. The truth about it, and the whole truth, is this: A week ago Monday the editor of The Bee, while talking with Senator Caffery of Louisiana at the national capitol, incidentally mentioned his forthcoming debate with Bryan.

It is probably very safe to say that pending the action of the national convention there will be nothing given to the public, if there shall ever be, regarding what was said at yesterday's interview between Major McKinley and Senator Quay.

In order to put an end to all the gabble about the alleged theft of Judge Aldrege's brains, attention is invited to the reproduction in this issue of the Bee of the whole of the Rosewater part of the silver debate, in which the citations referred to are printed in black letters. It will be seen at a glance that they form a very insignificant portion of the debate and are not essential to the thread of the argument.

There is this difference between an honest newspaper and a boodle organ. The honest newspaper is proud of the enemies it has made, the boodle organ is ashamed of its friends.

Isn't it about time for some one to announce again that he will not permit his name to be considered in connection with a place on the republican state ticket? We ought to have proclamations of this kind at least once a week from now on until the convention.

When Mr. Bryan goes down to Chicago he ought to take with him a liberal number of copies of his famous editorial on the ethics of boilding. Unless prospects are very much altered within the next few weeks he would be pretty sure to find a demand for it, if not among his followers among his opponents.

The action of the Omaha presbytery in requesting that militiamen be exempt from unnecessary duty on Sunday during the state encampment is in keeping with approved public sentiment. The reply of Adjutant General Barry will be regarded as a compliment to the religious element of the state.

at stake besides silver, are prepared to subordinate and if possible to sacrifice everything else to the cause of the white metal—a cause which they must see is altogether hopeless.

Quite the most commendable act of the American Federation of Labor of late was its notice to this community that no strike or labor disorder could be expected or precipitated by its members. The federation wants it distinctly understood that it has no grievances with the pickers of South Omaha and that there exists today no occasion for dissatisfaction at the treatment accorded the federation's members.

It is a fact worthy of note that the Episcopal church shows steady growth in the diocese of Nebraska the past year. There has been, according to official reports read in the annual council in session here, a material increase in the number of missions and of communicants. While the finances of this great denomination reflect in some measure the depressed state of business affairs during the year, yet it may be said to be in a flourishing condition in matters material and spiritual.

The clearings report for the week just ended gives Omaha a percentage of increase over the corresponding week of last year of 51.2. In other words, the sums cleared by the Omaha banks this week compared with the same week of a year ago aggregated nearly a third more.

There was for a time some danger that congress would permit Fort Omaha to be abandoned without making provision for the care and preservation of the property. But such danger has, it is now almost certain, been happily averted. The bill which has just been passed will be the means of putting the fort to a new and laudable purpose, from which the government as well as the state must be benefited.

The supreme court has granted a stay of execution in the Bohn case and adjourned till June 2. Such action will, of course, not prejudice the case one way or the other. It is important in view of the fact that almost every criminal case tried in the courts of this city the past year has been opened by the supreme court for review and final adjudication.

The Young Men's Republican club has decided to permit the forthcoming conventions to corner all endorsements of candidates and to decline to make any endorsements in advance of nominations. This is the rational course, even admitting the club's endorsement would have no force or effect upon the conventions.

Both of the old parties in South Dakota have declared for sound money. The silver delusion is passing away.

Political bosses and jurists. Political bosses are dangerous enough when they limit their activity to politics. When they become jury makers they trespass upon a domain in which they are worse than thieves. They are promoters and protectors of the delinquency of the courts.

When the Band Plays. The leader of the band that is to play at the Coliseum democratic convention is to be searched in order to see that he does not smuggle in the music of "Silver Threads Among the Gold." It is proposed that no one but delegates shall start the rios.

Color Line in Railroad Cars. The supreme court of the United States has decided that the Louisiana law requiring railroads to run separate coaches for white and negro passengers is constitutional. It is to be noted that the law does not prohibit race discriminations should they be admitted under the constitution, but possibly the knowledge of the negro which legislators hold over railroad corporations will be found useful in other ways.

OTHER LANDS THAN OURS. While the exact terms of the agreement or treaty between Russia and China have not been made public, there is sufficient evidence that in return for pledges of support Russia has secured most valuable concessions on the side of the latter, although England's commercial interests in Chinese waters are out of all comparison to those of Russia.

It would appear that the recent war between Japan and China has had the effect of bringing home to the latter the importance of railroads, not only as a factor in the maintenance of trade, but also as a means of defense against foreign invasion and internal disorder by the facilities which it affords for the transportation of troops.

The Hapsburgs have been particularly unfortunate in relation to direct heirs to the throne. Francis Joseph himself was a nephew of a nephew. The emperor of Austria is descended from a collateral line, and Queen Victoria was a niece of her predecessor on the throne of England.

What makes the inhabitants of the Sudan so terrific to foreign invaders is religious fanaticism, which is able to do service to a government and organization. As fanaticism the Sudanese far exceed the Kurds of Asiatic Turkey, and when confronted by a Christian foe all dissension fades and the dervish rages close up in fearful array.

It may be reckoned as sure that Abyssinia's doom is sealed. She has repulsed Italy, but she cannot repulse all who crowd to Italy's successors. If Great Britain does not take advantage of the present opportunity, Russia will probably not hesitate to do so.
