Fragrant Flowers Strewn Over Graves of Soldiers Gone Beyond.

Loving Comrades and Grateful Citizens Pay Tribute to the Memory of the Dead Veterans of the Rebellion.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., May 31 .- (Spectal.) Decoration day exercises in this city yesterday were well attended and were with out any serious mishaps, though there was one very close call. At 9 o'clock in the morning the veterans of the city met at the Grand Army of the Republic hall and from there marched to the cometery, where the graves of departed veterans were decorated with flowers and the Grand Army of the Republic ritual for the occasion was carried out. At the same hour about fifty veterans at the Soldiers' home proceeded to the Home cemetery and the same program was car ried out. At 1:30 p. m. a parade, consisting of city officials in carriages, the police force, Pacific Hose Company band, members of the fire department, children of the pub-He schools, veterans, members of the Woman's Relief corps and Sons and Daugh ters of Veterane, formed in line and paraded the principal streets. At 2 o'clock the crowd assembled at the opera house. The assembly was called to order by Commandant S. P. Mobiey of Lyon post, Grand army of the Re public, and the ritual was read. The meeting was then presided over by Mayor W. H.

It was during the reading of the ritual that there was a close call to a severe acci-dent. The book and ladder company made a practice run and dashed by the opera house. Some one in the house cried "Fire" and the children in the gallery, which was packed with them, began a rush for the door. Several of the gentlemen on the platform ex-plained the situation and with the aid of an officer the little ones were quieted before any one was injured.

Rev. J. G. Tate delivered the address t the veterans. He dwelt upon the achieve-ments of Lincoln and Grant, of the victory of the union army and of the patriotism of the surving members of that grand army as shown in the volunteered assistance in those days when the country seemed upon the verge of war with England over th ezuela matter. He showed how thankful the soldier had a right to be that he had something to do with the victory of that army and what claims be had upon the succeeding generation by a careful review of the resources of this country, the rights of its citizens, its educational facilities and its

The stage was beautifully deco-rated and the exercises were very impressive. The procession to the cemetery was nearly a mile long. Addresses were deliv-ered by Rev. Smith, Mr. F. P. Glasner and Rev. S. L. Anderson. Among the veterans was Mr. M. S. Miller, 80 years of age. FRIEND, Neb., May 31.—(Special.)—Decoration services yesterday in Friend were the most interesting in the bistory of this city. Dr. P. C. Johnson of Table Rock had been secured to deliver the oration, and his talk was a masterly one. Every available foot of the large opera house was occupied by an eager listener or enthusiastic old soldier. The day was as pleasant as could be desired id every one appeared to have laid off for day to do honor to the nation's dead,

CRETE, Neb., May 31.—(Special.)—Deco-ration day ceremonies were carried out in the usual way in this city. SUPERIOR, Neb., May 31.—(Special.)— The Memorial services of yesterday will long be remembered in Superior. Never has there been so much enthusiasm and patriotism displayed, not only by our own citizens, but by many from adjoining towns. The pre-gram was excellently produced. Following the musical and devotional exercises was an address of exceeding interest by Colonel J. E. Ehrhardt, senior vice commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department I Nebraska. Colonel Ehrhardt is one of the finest orators of the state. He spoke, not to one, but to all, and by his well chosen remarks he was made thrice welcome to Su-perior. General John M. Thayer then delivered an address that gave more honor to Nebraska than her greatest efforts can ever give to him. His manner was so suggestive of energy and vigor that one can scarcely realize that the allotted three-score years and ten have long ago passed over his head, and that away back in the early '50s he was making our history and using every power, and finding no obstacle too great to surmount in order that we might stand as we do today- a state as greatly to be proud of as any in the union. INFLUENCES ARE GENERALLY FOR GOOD

All Indications Are Toward a Resumption of Activity, Except the Uncertainty as to the Financial Polley of the Government.

NEW YORK, May 31,-Henry Clews, head of the banking house of Henry Clews & Co., writes of the situation in Wall street:

Wall street is still held in complete suspense by the excitement and uncertainty attending the approach of the political conventions. The market is entirely in the hands of the professional operators, who under such circumstances find selling most congenial, so that the predominant tendency is toward a slow decline in prices. Outside these political conditions, influences are, on the whole, favorable. It is true the export of gold continues, but Wall street has not taken that factor very seriously, and there are indications that the movement will soon come to an end. There is also an absence of return of securities from Europe, which is rather remarkable considering the agitation of the free colnage issue in the elections. The railroads also are doing well. Managers generally report a good business and encouraging prospects, and are making liberal provision for accommodating the coming erop movements. The earnings make a good showing connerted with last year, which writes of the situation in Wall street; and encouraging prospects, and are making liberal provision for accommodating the coming crop movements. The earnings make a good showing compared with last year, which is the more gr. if ying, is a year ago the buildess was upon an increasing scale. In the mercantile business the conditions are varied some trades reporting a fair movement, but at low prices, whilst others are full of complaint. The dry goods distributers especially find it difficult to move off their season's stocks and have to adapt prices to the conditions of ample stocks and a slow demand. The iron trade is very sluggish, the recent raising of prices by the combinations having put a very severe check upon the demand. Taken as a whole, however, the material conditions affecting the market would probably admit of a general rise in stocks were it not for the chilling effects of political uncertainties in connection with would probably admit of a general rise in stocks were it not for the chilling effects of political uncertainties in connection with the silver question. These remarks as to the condition of trade have reference, however, to the local markets, while reports from the interior indicate a healthler state of business than prevails in this city. This is a difference to which we have found occasion to refer previously, and it needs to be kept in mind in judging of the state of affairs in the country at large. As the local depression comes nearer to Wall street it produces an effect disproportionate to its real importance and thus breeds an extent of persimism exceeding what is warranted by the general national conditions.

The early adjournment of congress will have somewhat of an assuring effect upon confidence. It will mean an end to interference in the Cuban and Venezuelan questions; to disturbing silver schemes, and to virtual repudiatory resolutions for preventing the government from protecting its notes by borrowing gold and thereby precipitating the silver basis.

The undenlable revival of silverism, as shown by the political symptoms of the hour, has naturally increased the solicitude of reflective men about the future of monetary readjustment. It is becoming more evident that the settlement of this entire problem is not likely to be effected by any one bill or at any one session of congress. The large general question involves subsidiary parts, upon each one of which there are likely to be wide differences of opinion, and which also will require separate treatment.

The first branch of the general issue to be disposed of must be the future position of the contraction.

The nature of the coin standard is a matter so fundamental that all other money legislation must depend upon what is done in respect to that question. Upon the action in respect to silver must largely depend what is possible or what is probable in respect to other branches of treatment. After silver would naturally come the legal tender problem. This may be found a much more difficult question than it is now supposed to be. Although it may be assumed that, as a rule, the eastern "sound money" rentiment favors the withdrawal of these notes, yet it is not to be overlooked that, even in this section, there is an attachment to this form of money that would raise obstacles to a complete retirement of the notes, Albion has a new pressed brick plant with capacity of 15,000 per day.

Creto's diphtheritic epidemic has subsided

Creto's diphtheritic epidemic has subsided the old greenback faction and the "sound money" people would be quite likely to present a stubborn opposition to any sort of interference with the notes. The silverites also, so far as they are inflationists, may be expected to resist any withdrawals of paper circulation; the more so as they are aware that, as free coinage would mean a depreciation of all paper money, a larger volume of circulation would be needed under a silver regime. It is thus clear that the treatment of the legal tender question must involve a long and embarrassing struggle, with an uncertain outcome.

Next, in order of treatment, must come the bank note question. I say "next" because what may be done in this matter must large'y depend upon what is done in the way of retiring the greenbacks and Sherman notes. The south and the west may be expected to make a resolute demand for the rights of the state banks to issue notes, either under the existing state laws or under a general national law defining the conditions under which any and all bank notes may be issued. Here is a problem involving discussions and conflicts of interest and opinion sufficient to demand a session for its settlement; if indeed any such measure could be got through a senate opposed to anything in the way of currency that might tend to supersede silver or lessen

HOW TO KEEP UP A RESERVE. HOW TO KEEP UP A RESERVE.

Outside of questions of currency reform and purely as a question of practical finance, there is also the treasury question; that is, the question how shall the treasury be enabled to keep good its gold reserve without continuous resort to long cans to the extent of about $100,000,000 a year. This is a question of the most urgent practical Importance; for, in the present circumstances, the treasury stands exposed to the possibility of being unable to maintain a stock of gild sufficient to pay its demand notes in that metal-a contingency which would involve the country drifting straight upon the silver basis. It is this danger which, more than any other, is producing foreign distrust against our investments, and it demands most imperatively immediate settlement. Yet it cannot be said that congress has so far shown either disposition or capacity to deal with it in a safe and effective way; on the contrary the senate is now plotting to deprive the treasury of its only means of temporary protection.

It seems necessary to keep in view the

It seems necessary to keep in view the foregoing facts; first, as showing the necessity of making such nominations for congress as will secure for the fiext house an important element of men of standing and especially familiar with these complex questions and who are known to entertain sound views and who are known to entertain sound views relating thereto; and next because it would only invite discouraging disappointment to calculate upon a new congress putting financial and currency affairs upon a sound and well regulated basis within a few short months. In the meantime we must, as we safely may, depend upon the honest instincts and the plain commonsense judgment of the American people for an ultimate and wholesome readjustment.

Company promotion is busy in all directions, owing to the continued cheapness of money. Gas, water and all good commercial and industrial ventures are also rising rapidly. Argentine rallways and Italian securities were firm. Brazilian securities were firm. Brazilian securities were lower. The west Australian mining market was active and advancing. Africans were weaker, but closed with a better tendency. The total cost of the Jameson raid to the British Chartered South Africa company is expected to amount to at least 1300,000. Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacifics were firm on the hopeful prospect of Sir Chartes Rivers Wilson's mission. American stocks were lower and were affected by the St. Louis disaster. cipts and a featureless market. Less than 00 fresh cattle of all kinds were on sale and they were practically all killing cattle. The ondition of the trade could be summed up n a few words-It was a good, strong and active market on everything desirable There were some blg, coarse branded cattle in the yards and they were no more than steady. Every one was in a hurry to get through and the yards were soon The quality of the cattle was an ment over yesterday, so that the sales show up much better on paper. PALL RIVER, Mass, May 50.—The movements in the print cloth market during the week had rather a depressing effect. The manufacturers were slow to meet the demand for goods at 29-16c, and buyers lost in the carly dealings. Later they substituted 2½c for 29-16c in their bidding, and the demand was light. After a day's waiting, a few spot regulars were sold at 2½c, establishing the market once more at rock bottom prices. The sales were light, however, and a moderate demand at 2½c continued, which the manufacutrers did not meet. The prospect for an improvement in prices is not good, owing to the drag of the heavy stock. All the sales of regulars during the week were spots, and most of the goods sold were spots. The market is sleady at 2½c, and the demand is quiet, with almost no opportunity to buy. The
