

TRIBUTES OF ELKS FRIENDS

Elks Conduct the Funeral Exercises of the Late Frank Mayo.

ROLAND REED DELIVERS AN ADDRESS

Speaks Feelingly of the High Ideals and Pure Character of the Deceased—Many and Beautiful Floral Offerings.

Memorial services over the remains of the late Frank Mayo were held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the lodge rooms of the Society of Elks in the Ware block.

The ritual of the society was followed throughout, Exalted Ruler W. B. Taylor presiding. Rev. T. J. Mackay, rector of All Saints' church and prelate of the lodge, acted as chaplain.

The services were simple but impressive. The ritual of the society was followed throughout, Exalted Ruler W. B. Taylor presiding.

Mr. Reed then read the following letter that he had written to the lodge to be read at its memorial services next Friday evening.

"On this occasion, when we are expressing your love and appreciation of our dear departed brother, Frank Mayo, I feel incumbent upon me, as a personal friend of many years' standing and as a brother of the late departed, to express to you the great qualities which were embodied in his noble nature."

"Here was a man, who, in his younger years, made such an impression upon me that I should never forget him. His great saying in his noble creation of Davy Crockett: 'Be sure you're right, then go ahead,' has been exemplified in his noble nature."

"As he cannot speak now, so I speak for him, and tell you, dear brothers, that the hearts that have come out to him from the Omaha lodge of Elks I so thoroughly appreciate that words are inadequate to express my affection for the noble qualities of the greatest order that lives on God's green footstool—the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks."

Messrs. Joseph Harland, Alexander Cameron, Charles Kent and John Davis, all of the Primrose & West company, sang very sweetly an appropriate selection by himself, saying: 'Auld Lang Syne,' in an affecting manner.

The floral offerings were elaborate and beautiful. An immense pillow of roses from the Elks; two bouquets of roses, the one white, the other yellow, from Paxton & Burgess; a bunch of white roses from Primrose & West, and smaller ones from Roland Reed and D. W. Chamberlain, respectively, were noticed among the tributes.

At the conclusion of the services the remains were escorted to the Union depot by the Elks. The pall bearers were: Frank Alken, Emmett King, William S. Gill, Frank Campau, Adolph Klauer and John P. Tucker, all members of the Mayo company.

The inquest over the body of Frank Mayo occurred yesterday morning in the rooms of the Elks, under the direction of Coroner Burkett, who had been requested to be present.

The verdict of the jury was: "That the deceased died of natural causes, and that the death was not caused by any foul play or any other unlawful act."

The jury consisted of Messrs. J. H. Johnson, N. N. Davenport, Joseph Tenney, Arthur Metz, Charles E. Fanning, Henry Philbin and A. S. Briggs, that Mayo had died

EDUCATION DOES WONDERS

Closing Exercises for the Nebraska Institute for the Deaf.

TWO FINISH THE PRESCRIBED COURSE

Exhibition of the Work Accomplished in All the Grades of the School—Two Very Clever Pantomimes Given.

Yesterday afternoon occurred the commencement exercises at the Nebraska Institute for the Deaf. Fully 500 visitors received the cordial greeting of Mrs. Gillespie at the entrance before the exercises were given.

The program, which was very interesting in every point, was made up of regular school and general exercise, as well as the orations of the two young women who graduated.

Miss Nellie Burrows of Ord gave the first literary number of the program, subject, "Study of Nature." Her first sentence—"Nature is the system of laws established by the Creator which secures the existence of things and the succession of beings"—was an adequate introduction for the theme.

Then the first grade, consisting of Eugene Hugel of Omaha, Pauline Hanel of Ashland, Hattie Hauman of Concord, Eddie Gillson of Plattsmouth, Willie Stiecker of Lincoln, John Wright of Madrid, Clarence Pratt of Lincoln, Theodore Keiser of Madison, Cora Pellard of Lincoln and Lora Mean of Scribner, came upon the stage and recited the results of their studies.

They could understand spoken language well, being able to obey commands and follow directions with surprising ease and rapidity, and speak distinctly and in some cases in tones well modulated.

This work, which was conducted by Mrs. Taylor, the efficient primary teacher of the institution, gave a clear idea of how this remarkable work, requiring such ceaseless patience and effort, is wrought out by the students.

Miss Hattie McChesne then came before the audience with Bessie Speaker of Omaha, Al Chase of Elkhorn, George Thompson of Cedar Bluff, Bertha Allen of Lincoln, A. L. Strain of Valley, Julia Steery of Lincoln, Lillian May Williams of Omaha and gave a number of lessons.

Miss McChesne's manner with the children is most happy and one would never guess from the ready and spontaneous responses that they knew no sound. It was only the voice that told the tale.

Mabel Scanlan of Fremont, Francis Manning of Omaha, Helen Oliver of Beatrice, Sarah Struby of Lincoln, Clara Jensen of Marquette, Daisy Combs of Omaha and Lucy Foy of Fairmont, third grade pupils, showed their knowledge of geography by drawing and describing Nebraska.

ENJOYABLE DIVERSIONS. Two pantomimes proved enjoyable diversions in the program. The first, "A Fishing Scene," by Mrs. Steere, of Beatrice, was of about 10 years, was very well done.

The perfect play of expression in the young comedians' face was its crowning excellence. The other pantomime was "A Hunting Scene," by Martin Kennealey. The young man carried his audience entire while he loaded his old-fashioned gun, bagged his prey, found a nest of birds, and while well laden with spoil disturbed a swarm of bees.

The boys and girls in the drill kept good time and did well in blackboard and sketches under the magic touch of Otte Crawford, Bertha Bowen, Lloyd Blankenship and Martin Kennealey. The Nebraska National Guard, dressed out, then praying for rain and then jubilant over the last food.

The valedictory was given by Miss Cora Reed of Fairbury. Her essay, "Preparation for Life," was full of clear, sensible ideas. After speaking of many ways in which they had been benefited by their education in this, their alma mater, she said: "We cannot get anything for ourselves without work. The world does not owe us a living, and we must earn our way to do so, we must give something more to the world than get out of it, something to make the world better, brighter and a pleasanter place to live in."

PRESENTING DIPLOMAS. Prof. Gillespie presented the diplomas to these two fair and interesting young women, making his farewell speech in the beautifully expressive sign language, amidst a silence so great that the hearing ears were almost pained.

The hearing numbers were furnished to the musical audience by Miss Rene Hamilton, and to the mute audience by choral work with the sign of gesture.

This school throughout is one of the most interesting educational institutions in the reach of the people of Omaha. Its work is conducted upon two distinct plans. There is the manual department, whose work goes on by means of a sign system, with the aid of the fingers and hands.

Messrs. T. T. Moseley and R. E. Stewart and Misses O. W. Crawford and Ella M. Ruid are the teachers. Their work is oral and aural department, whose teachers are Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Taylor and the Misses McChesne, Reiguer and Connett. Here the pupils are taught to read lips and to understand the sign of gesture, and to express thought by oral language. But this is not all. In many children considered deaf some slight sense exists. Here the matter is carefully tested, and if any symptoms of sound perceptions is discovered it is carefully guarded and developed.

Mr. Gillespie is the pioneer in this line of work with the deaf, and feels gratified to know that it is making its way in all up-to-date institutions. By following out this of young girls whose hearing is deficient that he may not get his schooling with hearing children, is saved from being merged at once with the totally deaf, and to the extent of their hearing, as in all other matters, it is not the black or white, but the gray, which requires the careful handling. By this method, to which Mr. Gillespie has lent his life work, he believes he most nearly obliterates the difference between the deaf and the hearing, prevents them from feeling and being classed apart; in short, does what all valuable methods of education seek to do—puts its pupil in touch with the largest circle of the world's thinking people.

Several State Delegations Pledge Themselves to Vote for Omaha in the Next Year's Session, Which is Held in Nashville.

Secretary O. C. Holmes of the Manufacturers' and Consumers' association has returned from Terre Haute, where he went to present the Omaha case to the convention of the Travelers' Protective association in 1895.

He appeared before the national convention of the association and feels confident that a reasonable amount of work next year will result in securing the convention to this city for the year of the Transmississippi exposition.

To a Bee reporter yesterday morning Mr. Holmes stated that the first thing he did after arriving at Terre Haute was to interview all the delegates he could, and on their breasts pin satin badges of white and blue, the colors of the association, bearing the inscription, "Omaha Convention, 1898."

Besides getting a large number of the delegates to wear these badges, he induced many of the female visitors to do likewise. He also distributed several hundred copies of the last issue of the Omaha Trade Exhibit, containing pictures of Omaha's prominent buildings and reading matter descriptive of the city.

During the two days he was in the city Mr. Holmes talked with a large proportion of the delegates. He found many who were in favor of coming to this city, because they had never had an opportunity of seeing the western country. Those who had been here were in favor of locating the 1898 convention here, and all were pleased with the prospect of being in Omaha at the time of the great exposition.

There is a provision in the constitution of the association which prevented any deliberate action this year concerning the location of the 1898 convention. When the roll call of states for the location of the 1897 convention came along, however, Mr. Holmes stated that Omaha would claim for the convention in favor of Nashville, with the expectation that the convention of next year would locate the 1898 meeting at Omaha.

After the announcement of the vote, which was in favor of Nashville, National President John A. Lee called on Mr. Holmes for a brief speech. The latter presented letters of invitation from the Commercial club and Mayor Brothard and said, among other things, that no city in the country could offer the same inducements as Omaha for the 1898 convention.

When he had finished, Delegate Randall of New York moved to refer the invitation of Omaha for the 1898 convention to the meeting of next year, with favorable recommendation. This motion was carried with a shout. Mr. Holmes stated that he has pledged of support from the following state delegations: New York, Illinois, Missouri, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Oregon, Washington, Iowa, Colorado, Alabama, Indiana, Kentucky, Texas, Florida, Tennessee, Wisconsin and Arkansas.

The convention was composed not only of traveling men, but also of jobbers and manufacturers. The association has a membership of 12,000 and its membership roll is increasing. There were present at the Terre Haute convention 200 accredited delegates and 500 visitors. It was the smallest convention held in the last five years. This fact is due to no lack of interest, but to the refusal of the railroads to grant the same rates that have heretofore prevailed. It is estimated that at least 2,000 will attend the convention of 1898.
