held last evening, the time being occupied by addresses, outside of the prearranged program. In spite of the suffocating hot weather the church was crowded and the same enthusiasm which has characterized the entire convention was manifested. The speakers one and all voiced the sentiment that the session just closed had been an unusually profitable one, and they would return to their various homes to take up the work of evangelizing the young with reand $2.25. newed energy.

There was a repetition of Wednesday's full and interested attendance yesterday morning at the Interstate Sabbath School institute at the First Presbyterian church. While the audience was largely composed of women, a surprising number of men had detached themselves from their business responsibilities long enough to participate in the deliberations and they formed a very respectable minority. Some changes were necessitated in the prearranged program at the morning session on account of the absence of dele-gates, but the vacant places were acceptably filled and there was no perceptible diminution in interest.

The session opened at 9 o'clock with a promise meeting, led by Rev. Charles Williams of Sanborn, Ia. The normal lesson on "The Laws of Teaching," by Mrs. Mattie M. Bailey of Shenandoah, Ia., was omitted on account of the absence of Mrs. Bailey and later in the session Rev. S. M. Ware of this city offered a resolution expressing the re-gret of the delegates on account of Mrs.

Bailey's absence and their sympathy with her in the affliction which detained her. This was adopted by a rising vote, after which Rev. T. S. Bailey, D. D., of Cedar Rapids offered a prayer for Mrs. Bailey's recovery. The subject, "The Primary Teacher and Kindergarten Methods," was discussed by Miss Avice Drako of Omaha and Rev. Amos A. Randall of Marengo, Ia. Rev. Asa Leard, D. D., of this city was to speak on "Should Pastors Teach the Children, and How?" but his place was taken by Rev. Stephen Phelps of Council Bluffs, who delivered a very thoughtful and interesting address. Miss Sarah Rice of Boone, Ia., spoke on "Plans for Enlisting Teachers" and this was followed by a brief discussion on "Motives that Should Influence in Taking Up the Work of Teaching." The last paper of the morning was read by Rev. Charles F. Graves of Shelton, Neb. He

WORK OF THE LAYMEN.

Rev. Graves declared that the question would more properly arise why they were discussing the expediency of this matter. The record of the past already abundantly justified the belief that the work of the laymen was most profitable. It had long ago been demonstrated that God had abundantly blessed the efforts of laymen in all departments of Christian activity. This This was especially true in the Sabbath school and in the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor and similiar organizations. The speaker deprecated the tendency that was everywhere more or less apparent to leave the work of salvation to the educated ministers. The necessity for educated and ordained ministers could not be overesti-mated, but God had never intended that the call of salvation should be restricted to them. The Holy Ghost had fallen on all alike at the Day of Pentecost.

In the pioneer country, Rev. Graves con-tended the work of laymen was more ordinance which was defeated. Yesterday effective than that of the average minister. The very education and training of the minister too often operated to create a gulf between himself and those whom he was trying to save. The people were apt to regard him as a person who was inviting them to Christ, because it was his business and by which he carned his living. The consecrated and common sense layman could do much better. He was nearer to the erned them and he could minister to their needs more fully and successfully because he knew what those needs were.

CLOSING SESSION.

The evening session was opened with prayer and music, after which Rev. S. R. Ferguson, synodical missionary, delivered a short address on "Missions." "If you wish to reach the people who most need the gospel," said he, "you must go where they are. If you cannot go yourself there are those who can and will if others will only furnish the means." He reci-cd numerous instances where prosperous churches had grown up where prosperous churches had grown up from small beginnings, which only involved the outlay of a few dollars in establishing a Sunday school in some hitherto neglected community. He urged his hearers to give something and induce others to give to enable the workers to go out into these places and found Sunday schools that all might have the gospel taught to them. Rev. J. B. Currens, Sunday school mis-sionary for Nebraska, spoke on the same topic and added his testimony to the growth of churches around the Sunday schools planted in communities where hitherto no round services had been hold. Many of gospel services had been held. Many of these churches were still without pastors, but kept up the school and when possible secured some one to come and preach to There was a dearth of ministers for them. the charges which were rapidly springing George Perry, Sunday school missionary for the Black Hills, spoke of the great need of gathering in the children. "The Savior loves the little children. The hardened sinner can come to Him and be forgiven, but he must first become as a little child. The parents can be reached through the little ones. They go from the Sunday school and in their childish way talk of what they have heard and the person who would not listen or head such topics brought up by older ones cannot resist the sweet innocence of the little ones. It is also in the Sunday schools that the first work is done toward making the good citizens and faithful mothers of the future.

VOICE OF GOD IN THE CHILD. Rev. J. M. Wilson took for his topic, "And He Sat a Little Child in the Midst of Them." The voice of God is heard in the voice of the little ones and they in their innocence have moved the greatest and most powerful minds the world has produced. They were the inspiration for man's greatest and best efforts and in them is the hope of the church in the future. Train them up in the Sunday school and they grow to manhood and womanhood and drop naturally into the church." Rev. Bracken of Peoria, Kan., spoke of the

Rev. Bracken of Peoria, Kan., spoke of the great need of the Sunday school missionary work in many parts of Kansas, and par-ticularly in the Indian Territory. It was stated there were 35,000 children in the territory who had never attended a Sunday school and to whom the sight of a church was as a stranger. There was no money at present to carry on this great work and he was as a stranger. There was no money at present to carry on this great work and he made an carnest plea for arsistance. R. S. Suizer, the "Minnesota Cyclone." was the last speaker. His address was largely devoted to the teachers. Few teachers, he said, appreciated the importance of their work. Children are largely what their teachers make them. Teachers should be punctual and regular in their attendance and should always have something by which to fix the attention of the little ones on the lesson. They should also be person whose characters They should also be person's whose characte's and daily life were an object lesson to the children. Too little attention was paid to these requiries by superintendents in se-lecting teachers.

BINKLEY LOSES HIS WEALTH.

While His Way Home He is Robbed.

Charles Binkley, Thirty-fourth and Franklin streets, yesterday morning reported to the police that he was held up at Thirty-third and lzard streets at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday aight by two men and robbed of $31.

night by two men and robbed of $21. Binkley is in the employ of the local gas company, and Wednesday drew his salary. This has led the police to believe that the robbery was committed by some one who knew Binkley. Binkley, however, is not able to give much of a description of the men, saying only that they were both short and dressed in dark clothes. Binkley was held up while on his way home. He says that he was accosted by the two men, who asked him if he had seen a horse straying about. In the course of the conversation the men came close to the horse upon which Binkley was astride and suddenly one selzed him by the leg and pulled him to the ground. The men then went through his pockets.
