

prise of Mr. Rosewater, who has been at the helm of the paper through all its trials and vicissitudes and has brought it up to its present high standard of popularity and excellence.

Alma Record: Today is the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Omaha Bee, the founder of the paper and the present owner, has tendered the press an invitation to come up to Omaha and take part in a gorgeous reception to be held for their benefactor. The invitation is thoroughly appreciated, but it comes on a day when the majority of the editors of Nebraska are yielding the strongest of George Washington hands. The few who will imbibe punch from the big bowl in the Bee building ought to think of their fortunate brethren and drink again.

Seward Reporter: The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee will be celebrated on June 19, 1896. A handsome invitation to a reception to be given at the Bee building, on the evening of June 19, has been sent to the editors of the Omaha Bee, and it is expected that many of the editors of the Omaha Bee will be present. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

Omaha Tribune (German): The Bee today celebrates the twenty-fifth anniversary of its birth, as it was twenty-five years ago that the first issue of the paper was published. The Omaha Bee has grown from infancy along with Omaha, a magnificent proof of what consistent energy and honesty can accomplish. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

Randolph Reporter: We are in receipt of an invitation from the Omaha Bee to attend the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the Bee building, on the evening of June 19, 1896. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

Sidney Postcard: The Postcard has received an invitation to be present at a reception to be given by the Omaha Bee on the evening of June 19, 1896, in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Omaha Bee. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

Beatrice Democrat: The Democrat is in receipt of an invitation to attend the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee, which occurs today. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

Teumseh Chieftain: The Omaha Bee celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary yesterday. An unusual edition of that great paper marked the occasion. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

Grand Island Independent: The Omaha Bee will, on June 19, 1896, celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary. A reception will be held from 5 to 10 o'clock. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

Omaha Western Laborer: The editors of the Laborer, among others, received a very flattering reception card to the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

Washington Star: "I think," said the editor of the Washington Star, "that I will be present at the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater."

SECULAR SHOTS AT THE PULPIT.

New York Sun: This is from the examination of a candidate for Presbyterian ordination: Q.—Were not the writers of the early books of Genesis altogether correct, without any qualification? Ans.—They were religiously correct. The young man has mistaken his calling; he is cut out for an expert witness.

Boston Globe: The Chicago minister who found that he had only fifteen persons in his congregation the other night sent them home without a sermon. He says: "I never had such an experience as that in all my years of lecturing. It will surprise you, too, that the minister didn't think the fifteen present were worth saying."

Minneapolis Tribune: Several of the New York Episcopal churches have introduced women into their vestry choirs, thus following the example of the Episcopal churches in English cities. In some churches the women wear the same uniform as the boy chorists; in others, a black gown with a white collar and a small cap, occasionally an Oxford cap. The movement, though bitterly opposed by Bishop Doane and other ultra-conservative churchmen, is growing in popularity.

PARTING OF THE WAYS.

Indianapolis Journal: Senator Teller has made a brave fight, but the truth is, the more the common sense considers the proposition to favor a class of men already rich by coining fifty odd cents' worth of silver, the more the common sense considers the proposition to favor a class of men already rich by coining fifty odd cents' worth of silver.

Chicago Post: But the martyr's devotion to his faith is no proof that his faith is sound. Fanaticism is proof of the fanatic's insanity. Mr. Teller in the evening of his life has fallen a victim to a great delusion, and the ardor with which he has espoused it only intensifies its power for evil.

BLASTS FROM RAMS' HORN.

The love of the beautiful is a gift that comes from God. As soon as Adam named the animals, he had a language. The Lord gains nothing when good men wear long coats. When the mother of Abraham Lincoln took her babe to her breast, she lifted a rock.

DOMESTIC IDYLS.

Chicago Record: "Our clergyman is getting dreadfully absent-minded." "Yes, I met him the other day and he smiled." "You think that Mrs. Truffitt is honest?" "Mrs. Truffitt—thoroughly. Why, I've known her for twenty years, and I've never found her husband's pocket to get money to pay her soda water man."

Detroit Tribune: "Darling," cried the summer resister, throwing aside all reserve, "the girl I'm engaged to is a real beauty." "The girl I'm engaged to is a real beauty," cried the summer resister, throwing aside all reserve, "the girl I'm engaged to is a real beauty."

Washington Star: "I think," said the editor of the Washington Star, "that I will be present at the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater."

GOOD ADVICE.

How foolish is the pessimist. Dependent and forlorn. Who always, when he gets a rose, does nothing for it. The optimist has better sense; He doesn't mind a scratch or two. He can get the rose.

MESSAGES STILL COMING.

More Congratulatory Letters on Occasion of The Bee's Anniversary.

TESTIMONIALS TO THE EDITOR'S SUCCESS.

Men and Women in All Parts of the Country Join in Wishing The Bee Another Twenty-Five Years of Good Fortune.

The flood of letters and telegrams of congratulation to the editor of the Bee on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the birth of the newspaper and its continued success is a gratifying proof of the popularity of the paper and the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

Chicago Times-Herald (rep.): Mr. Cleveland's letter is too late to do him or his party any good. Minneapolis Journal (rep.): Mr. Cleveland's letter is a good republican campaign tract and might be issued as such.

Chicago Tribune (rep.): President Cleveland has written a letter in which he has declared his intention to withdraw from the race for the presidency. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

NEW YORK, June 18, 1896.—I regret I cannot be present to help celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee, but I send you my warmest congratulations and hope that in the next quarter of a century your paper will continue to mirror the progress and independence of its proprietor and to achieve greater success than it has in the past twenty-five years.

WEST BAY CITY, Mich., June 16, 1896.—An article on "The Omaha Bee" in the current number of the Review recalls to mind an old and valued friend, one whose kindness in a time of trouble was of great assistance to me. I am happy to be able to add my best wishes to the many others which you will doubtless receive on the occasion of the Bee's twenty-fifth anniversary.

ST. PAUL, Neb., June 19, 1896.—I greatly regret my inability to accept your kindly invitation for this evening and participate in the celebration of the Bee's birthday. I am, however, a true and ardent admirer of the Omaha Bee, and I am sure that your paper will continue to be a source of information and pleasure to all who read it.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 17, 1896.—Please accept our thanks for your kind invitation to participate in the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee. We regret very much that we cannot attend, but wish to felicitate you on your twenty-five years of prosperity and the significant success that you have achieved.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 19, 1896.—While I have not the honor of your personal acquaintance and differ with you quite radically in your estimate of the Majors, after reading your article, I am fully convinced that the Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 19, 1896.—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your cordial invitation to participate in the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee and to express my sincere appreciation of the honor of being invited to be present. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

NEW YORK, June 18, 1896.—Mr. Munsey instructs me to express his cordial congratulations to the Omaha Bee and its talented founder on the celebration of its twenty-fifth anniversary and his wishes for the continuance of that success which has thus far marked its brilliant career.

ST. LOUIS, Neb., June 18, 1896.—I would offer me very much pleasure to be present on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee in compliance with your kind invitation, but I am detained by business. Every citizen of Nebraska should be proud of the Bee as an enterprising and progressive newspaper and it is certainly entitled to great credit for the part it has taken in the development of our state.

should be proud of the Bee as an enterprising and progressive newspaper and it is certainly entitled to great credit for the part it has taken in the development of our state. Yours truly, THOMAS BRYANT, President First National Bank.

WHAHO, June 18, 1896.—A subscriber of the Omaha Bee for twenty years wishes you much success to the twenty-fifth anniversary, congratulating you as proprietor and editor of the great daily. Wishing you the same success in the future. I, A. JANSA.

CLEVELAND, O., June 18, 1896.—We are in receipt of your kind invitation to your twenty-fifth anniversary celebration on the 19th inst. and thank you very much for the same, but regret that none of us will be able to represent that group on that day. It is an admission that the honor of the country must be defended by the republican party. So it must be.

Chicago Times-Herald (rep.): Mr. Cleveland's letter is too late to do him or his party any good. Minneapolis Journal (rep.): Mr. Cleveland's letter is a good republican campaign tract and might be issued as such.

Chicago Tribune (rep.): President Cleveland has written a letter in which he has declared his intention to withdraw from the race for the presidency. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

NEW YORK, June 18, 1896.—I regret I cannot be present to help celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee, but I send you my warmest congratulations and hope that in the next quarter of a century your paper will continue to mirror the progress and independence of its proprietor and to achieve greater success than it has in the past twenty-five years.

WEST BAY CITY, Mich., June 16, 1896.—An article on "The Omaha Bee" in the current number of the Review recalls to mind an old and valued friend, one whose kindness in a time of trouble was of great assistance to me. I am happy to be able to add my best wishes to the many others which you will doubtless receive on the occasion of the Bee's twenty-fifth anniversary.

ST. PAUL, Neb., June 19, 1896.—I greatly regret my inability to accept your kindly invitation for this evening and participate in the celebration of the Bee's birthday. I am, however, a true and ardent admirer of the Omaha Bee, and I am sure that your paper will continue to be a source of information and pleasure to all who read it.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 17, 1896.—Please accept our thanks for your kind invitation to participate in the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee. We regret very much that we cannot attend, but wish to felicitate you on your twenty-five years of prosperity and the significant success that you have achieved.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 19, 1896.—While I have not the honor of your personal acquaintance and differ with you quite radically in your estimate of the Majors, after reading your article, I am fully convinced that the Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 19, 1896.—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your cordial invitation to participate in the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee and to express my sincere appreciation of the honor of being invited to be present. The Omaha Bee is a paper of national reputation, and its success is due to the ability and energy of its founder and present proprietor, Mr. Rosewater.

NEW YORK, June 18, 1896.—Mr. Munsey instructs me to express his cordial congratulations to the Omaha Bee and its talented founder on the celebration of its twenty-fifth anniversary and his wishes for the continuance of that success which has thus far marked its brilliant career.

ST. LOUIS, Neb., June 18, 1896.—I would offer me very much pleasure to be present on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Omaha Bee in compliance with your kind invitation, but I am detained by business. Every citizen of Nebraska should be proud of the Bee as an enterprising and progressive newspaper and it is certainly entitled to great credit for the part it has taken in the development of our state.

ECHOES OF ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

There was a vaudeville performance at St. Louis for the delectation of the delegates in which one of the most delightful and applauded scenes was put down in the theater bill as "The Jumping Flea." Some of our Nebraska delegates must have witnessed this performance with infinite pleasure, for they carried the antics of the little beast into their deliberations. And this is the way it all came about. Chairman Forsaker for the committee and moved had just presented to the convention the declaration of the republican party for 1896, when Mr. Teller moved as a substitute for the money plank.

Not a murmur of dissent from the crowd as the Colorado senator drew the issues and followed the adoption of the majority report on the money plank. The stock-in-trade argument of the speaker was well known to the audience, but it listened patiently and respectfully until the speaker's time was ended and accorded him an applause which had no malice in its offering. His patience was exhausted and the temper of the convention was soon to change like a summer's day when the tension of a senator's oratorical performance is broken with uncontrolled fury.

Not a murmur of dissent from the crowd as the Colorado senator drew the issues and followed the adoption of the majority report on the money plank. The stock-in-trade argument of the speaker was well known to the audience, but it listened patiently and respectfully until the speaker's time was ended and accorded him an applause which had no malice in its offering.

Not a murmur of dissent from the crowd as the Colorado senator drew the issues and followed the adoption of the majority report on the money plank. The stock-in-trade argument of the speaker was well known to the audience, but it listened patiently and respectfully until the speaker's time was ended and accorded him an applause which had no malice in its offering.

Not a murmur of dissent from the crowd as the Colorado senator drew the issues and followed the adoption of the majority report on the money plank. The stock-in-trade argument of the speaker was well known to the audience, but it listened patiently and respectfully until the speaker's time was ended and accorded him an applause which had no malice in its offering.

Not a murmur of dissent from the crowd as the Colorado senator drew the issues and followed the adoption of the majority report on the money plank. The stock-in-trade argument of the speaker was well known to the audience, but it listened patiently and respectfully until the speaker's time was ended and accorded him an applause which had no malice in its offering.

Not a murmur of dissent from the crowd as the Colorado senator drew the issues and followed the adoption of the majority report on the money plank. The stock-in-trade argument of the speaker was well known to the audience, but it listened patiently and respectfully until the speaker's time was ended and accorded him an applause which had no malice in its offering.

Not a murmur of dissent from the crowd as the Colorado senator drew the issues and followed the adoption of the majority report on the money plank. The stock-in-trade argument of the speaker was well known to the audience, but it listened patiently and respectfully until the speaker's time was ended and accorded him an applause which had no malice in its offering.

Not a murmur of dissent from the crowd as the Colorado senator drew the issues and followed the adoption of the majority report on the money plank. The stock-in-trade argument of the speaker was well known to the audience, but it listened patiently and respectfully until the speaker's time was ended and accorded him an applause which had no malice in its offering.

Not a murmur of dissent from the crowd as the Colorado senator drew the issues and followed the adoption of the majority report on the money plank. The stock-in-trade argument of the speaker was well known to the audience, but it listened patiently and respectfully until the speaker's time was ended and accorded him an applause which had no malice in its offering.

Not a murmur of dissent from the crowd as the Colorado senator drew the issues and followed the adoption of the majority report on the money plank. The stock-in-trade argument of the speaker was well known to the audience, but it listened patiently and respectfully until the speaker's time was ended and accorded him an applause which had no malice in its offering.

20% DISCOUNT.

Every article of furniture—bookcases—bed room sets—parlor sets—any furniture of any kind is subject to 20 Per Cent Discount from the Plain Marked Figures.

All curtains—draperies—and heavy hangings get the 20 per cent discount from the plain worked figures—nothing reserved—Terms cash.

Orchard & Wilhelm Carpet Co., 1416 Douglas Street.

MARK FOR THE ARAB SPEARS.

Massacre of Medora's Marquis and His Followers in Africa.

DE MORES' CAREER IN THE DAKOTAS.

His Fighting Propensities and Foolish Business Ventures—Sensational Stories of the Erratic Frenchman.

Confirmation of the early report announcing that the Marquis de Mores and his band of fifty men were massacred in Africa has reached Tunis, Morocco. Shortly after the British Egyptian advance on the Sudan, the fighting marquis organized a band of French adventurers to advance into the Sudan country for the purpose of enlisting Arab chiefs to join the Sudanese in repelling the advance of the British.

By the killing of the Marquis de Mores there passes away one of the most remarkable characters that has come to the United States for adventure and the accumulation of wealth. The Marquis de Mores was a Frenchman who was exceedingly erratic, followed no advice in his mad career except that of his own mind, and wasted all the money upon which he could lay his hands through the indulgence of an unwary father-in-law.

Several months ago Senator Hill made a recommendation to the Navy department that a vessel be named Albany, in honor of the capital of New York. New vessels come from the stocks, but the New York senator's request remains unheeded. The law governing the selection of names provides that battleships shall be named for the states, cruisers for the cities, gunboats for small cities and torpedo boats in commemoration of distinguished characters in the nation's history.

Several months ago Senator Hill made a recommendation to the Navy department that a vessel be named Albany, in honor of the capital of New York. New vessels come from the stocks, but the New York senator's request remains unheeded. The law governing the selection of names provides that battleships shall be named for the states, cruisers for the cities, gunboats for small cities and torpedo boats in commemoration of distinguished characters in the nation's history.

Several months ago Senator Hill made a recommendation to the Navy department that a vessel be named Albany, in honor of the capital of New York. New vessels come from the stocks, but the New York senator's request remains unheeded. The law governing the selection of names provides that battleships shall be named for the states, cruisers for the cities, gunboats for small cities and torpedo boats in commemoration of distinguished characters in the nation's history.

Advertisement for Cuticura Soap, featuring the text 'Cuticura Soap' and 'Purifies and Beautifies The Skin by restoring to healthy activity the Clogged, Irritated, Inflamed, Sluggish, Overworked Pores.'