RETURN FROM THE CONVENTION. Nebraska Delegates Bring Trophies

from the St. Louis Meeting. The members of the Nebraska delegation to the St. Louis convention returned to this city at noon yesterday. They all looked hot offects, separate collars and cuffs; all the and wearled and there were but few of them that had recovered their entire vocal powers. 'All expressed themselves as highly satisfied with the trip, and the first question they put to the crowd of by standers was: "Well, how did you like it?" The latter replied that the nominations suited them a T and then there was a hurrah for

McKinley.

There were two special cars attached to the Miszouri Pacific's express which brought in the party. General and Mrs. Cowin were the first to alight from the rear car. They were closely followed by Senator and Mrs. Thurston. The latter had so many souvenirs that his friends had to assist him in carrying them all to his carriage. The permanent chairman did not look like a man who had been through a trying ordeal, but greeted his friends in a pleasing manner that in dicated he had never felt happier in his

The senator carried the red, white and blue plumes that had been borne throughout the convention by the California delegation. R. Walsh carried for him the elaborate oral design that had been presented to him by his fellow Nebraskans when he assumed the chairmanship of the convention. The flowers were not the ones that composed the pieces originally, as they had all been plucked by enthusiastic admirers. As soon as the Nebraskans found that the design had been robbed of its flowers they sent it to a florist's and had fresh flowers put in the place of those that had been tolen for souvenirs.

Delegate Kennard of Lincoln proudly bore aloft the Nebraska state standard that had designated the place where the delegates rom this state sat during the convention. He was jovial and seemed to be prepared to start right in on another convention, John L. Webster walked down the platform, smiling in his inimitable fashion and bowing profusely to his friends. All the delegates had their breasts well covered with badges of various designs and different shapes.
"McKinley" and "Nebraska" were the two words seen most often, and it was evident that those two words had furnished the key to the joy and happiness that had reigned minterrupted since Thursday afternoon. Traveling Passenger Agent Barnes of the Missouri Pacific accompanied the party up from St. Louis and received many hearty thanks for the courtesies he had extended the delegates. He was presented with a set of resolutions expressing the thanks of souri Pacific road had exhibited.

MERCER BACK AT HIS HOME

pected Manner. RECEPTION AT THE COMMERCIAL CLUB

Discusses the Exposition and Prediets that it Will Be a Great Show_Ready to Enter Political Arena.

Congressman Dave Mercer returned from Vashington yesterday morning and will remain in Omaha until after the congressional convention, July 9, arrived at the Commercial club at 11 o'clock, and aithough it not generally known that he would return so soon, the news spread rapidly, and he was soon besieged with friends, who gathered to express their appreciation of his indefatigable exertions in behalf of Omaha and the west and to pledge their best efforts toward his re-election.

To all who came, he was the same genial, enthusiastic individual as of yore, and when, in reply to some remarks concerning the efforts put forth by his competitors in his absence, he simply declared, "Well, boys, my coat is off, and I am going to win," his confidence communicated itself to every one who was present. That was about all the answer he would make when that matter was broached. He treated the assertion that he had manipulated the exposition bill his personal interests as a good joke which any one would appreciate who was familiar with the desperate opposition that he had encountered in the house, and the only expression that he would make in regard to the congressional situation was the plain declaration that he was bound to win. He preferred to talk about the exposition and to grow enthusiastic over the results which would surely attend it. In his opinion it would be the greates, thing that had ever occurred in the western country. More than that, it came at the most favorable time. Money was honrded up mountain high in the east, and investors from now on would be looking for an opportunity to place it where it would return a profit. The great exhibit of the resources of the western states would be sure to attract the attention of investors and bring immense capital into Nebraska, and the other western states. The thing for Omaha to do now was to put every shoulder to the wheel, hit any man with a brick who endeavored to create any discord or discouragement and make the big exposition a tremendous success. Care should be taken to send a delegation to Lincoln this winter that would see that a proper appropriation was made from the state, and attention should be paid to the legislatures of adjoining states to see that they performed their part in the enterprise.

Congressman Mercer said that in his talks with representatives of the other Transmississippi states he had been satisfied that the people were nearly as enthusiastic as Nebraskans in regard to the exposition, and he was confident that they would all join in the effort to make the exposition a landmark in the progress of the western states. Regarding the national ticket, Congressnan Mercer predicted that it would be a landstide for republicanism. As to the position that William McKinley occupied in the hearts of the people, there could be no doubt. He had been practically nominated three months ago. His colleague, Mr. Hobart, he regarded as an excellent candidate, a thorough business man of high standing in his own state and one who would do credit to the party. Mr. Mercer did not anticipate that the silver bolt would seriously affect the chances of success. Senator Teller was a man whom all admired; he was a man of high principles, unsullied honor and eminent ability, but while some of the western states might incline to the free silver fallacy, the manly stand taken by the republican party would meet with the emphatic approbation of the eastern states. In Mr. Mercer's opinion the tariff was really even lean toward free silver, but they took the position that the tariff was the most important and they would subvert their interest in the money question to their desire to see American institutions and industries again protected. remain to attend to it until the convention. Then he will go to Washington to perform appears necessary during the campaign. Several mass meetings in the various wards have already been arranged, the announcement of which had been delayed until the date of his arrival was more definitely

Attorney Beckett Confident of Winning the Poor Farm Cases.

Attorney W. D. Beckett, who was re tained by the county to prosecute the appeal to the supreme court in the cases which have scome known in history as "the poor farm cases," is very jubilant over the action of the supreme court in granting a rehearing, and interprets this action as indicating that he supreme court has become convinced that it erred in affirming the decision of the ower courts against the county, and that when the cases are again decided the decision will be in favor of the county and thereby relieve the taxpayers of the necessity of repaying to purchasers of lots in Douglas addition the money paid to the county.

"I cannot think that the supreme court has granted a renearing simply for the purpose of repeating the decisions already rendered," said Mr. Beckett. "I believe that there is every ground for confidence that the next decision will be in favor of the county and will affirm the power of the ounty board to make the sale of the lots. thereby settling the question of the validity of the deeds given by the county.

"There are two cases in the supreme court," explained Mr. Beckett, "but both are practically the same. The first was the case of Keller et al against the county, and was a suit to recover from the county he amount paid for the lots bought by the plaintiffs. This case had its origin five ears after the lots had been bought by he plaintiffs. They asked the existing the plaintiffs. board at that time to declare the deeds void and refund the money paid to the county. The board refused to do this and the case was appealed to the district court. Judge Davis was on the bench at that time and he decided in favor of the plaintiffs. The county commissioners then appealed to the supreme court, the case then being the county of Douglas against Keller, The decision of the lower court was affirmed Later, Keller commenced mandamus pro-ceedings in the district court to compel the commissioners to issue warrants to pay the judgments secured in the supreme court. A mandamus was ordered to issue by Judge Duffie, who at that time expressed doubt as to the wisdom of the finding of the supreme court. This case was appealed to the supreme court in the form of Stenberg Stenberg et al against Keller, et al. About one month ago the supreme court handed down its decision in the latter case, affirming the finding of the lower court. I must confess I was greatly disappointed when the decision of the court was announced, as I was confident that the lower court would be reversed. I prepared a motion for a rehear-ing, urging substantially the same grounds as were set forth in the brief filed in the case, principal among these grounds being the claim that the board which sold the lots had full authority to do so for the reason that the proposition authorizing the sale of the property had received a majority of all the votes cast on that proposition, without reference to the total number of votes cast at the election. Another reason urged was that the board to which Keller appealed. five years after the sales had been made and after the board which sold the property had ceased to exist, had no authority to review the acts of the former board, and had no authority to pass upon the validity of the deeds given by the board. If the board had no authority to review the acts of the former board, the district court could not the main issue. If the republican system of protection and reciprocity were once established the money question would take care of itself. This was the position of a great number of voters. Some of them might even lean toward free silver, but they took the position that they had no toward to be a silver. suits, however, elected to commence pro ceedings in the county board on account of the statute of limitations. "I believe that the action of the supreme court in granting a rehearing, especially at Congressman Mercer stated that his this stage of the case, when it has been campaign had now commenced and he would urged that the county commissioners are desirous of raving the matter decided as soon as possible, in order that they may his duties as secretary of the congressional make provisions for paying the judgments committee, returning to Omaha as often as by including the necessary amount in the by including the necessary amount in the levy to be made, means that the court concluded that the county's side of the case has some merits."

AMUSEMENTS.

The announcement already made in these columns to the effect that arrangements Augustus Ceasar, have been made to bring to Omaha again this season another of Paine's pyrotechnical exhibitions, "The Last Days of Pompell," has excited interest and aroused eager antleipations of the general public concerning Pain's trio of spectacles, "Pompeti," "Sebastopol" and "Vicksburg," have done much in the past in the way of attracting crowds to Omaha.

The location this time, at University park, corner of Twentieth and Miami streets, is easy of access for these exhibitions, and FAITH IN THE REHEARING, this fact will add very greatly to the chances of success. The engagement of "Pompeil" will include the national holiday, July 4, when the Pains promise the most elaborate and beautiful display of fireworks Omaha has ever witnessed. Arrangements will be made for scating 12,000 people on this night, and ample street railway facilities will be prepared. On the afternoon of the 4th a special performance will be given, ne the a special performance in the pyro-ncluding a display of Pain's latest pyro-echnic novelty Japanese day fireworks. The echnic novelty Japanese day fireworks. hippodrome races, ballets, specialties, pageants, aquatic circus, etc., will also be shown at this performance.

Over three continents—Europe, America and Australia—the fame of the Pain spec-tacles and fireworks extends, and their present presentation of Bulwer Lytton's thrilling story, it is said, will be equal to any-thing ever done by them in any of these countries. "The Last Days of Pompeii." that will be seen in Omaha, is a very different spectacle from even its predecessor of three years ago. The Roman hippodrome is a strong special feature of the coming production. Sixteen beautiful thoroughbred horses and eight daring male and female iders will participate in five exciting Roman hariot, Roman standing, hurdle and jockey There are also two large and pretty pallets by sixty attractive young and sensational specialties by a small army of American and European performers, headed by the Gloss brothers, the famous statuesque acrobats; the Morello family, the four Bell brothers, the three Ronaldos, Delmore and Lee, the Les Penauds, a troupe of aquatic circus performers, and others A large military band is this season car ried by the spectacle company, as the in-tricate special music of the ballets, marches and performance, renders it impossible to utilize the services of a local band, as heretofore, and give smooth opening performances

To properly present the mimic city of Pompell at University park 12,000 yards of massive scenery is used, all mounted on heavy frames of wood and Iron. hundred and fifty correctly costumed people will participate in the production.

Lytton's story and Pain's spectacle are both based upon fact. The building of Pompeii is generally ascribed to the Ascans, building of and its name is derived from the Greek "homieta," or "storehouse," indicating its indicating its commercial origin. It is known to have been a city of some importance 500 years before Christ, but under the empire it seems to have become a kind of Brighton of the epoch—a fashionable summer resort and watering place. Cicero had a villa in the suberbs and there wrote his famous 'Offices' and entertained as guests Augustus Ceaser, Palbus, Hirtius and Pansa. Claudius took refuge here from the tyranny of Tiberius and his son Druscus died here

The city was on numerous occasions menaced by destruction and Tacitus tells of a terrible earthquake that threw down half the place in A. D. 63. The first cruption of Vesuvius of which there is an authentic record occurred in the year A. D. 79, on August 24, late in the afternoon, and is the

THE CYCLONE PHOTOGRAPHED

A Graphic Portrayal of the St. Louis

Cyclone's Deadly Work.

THE BEE HAS EXCLUSIVE RIGHT

Four hundred killed and 1,200 injured is the record of the cyclone which struck St. Louis and East St. Louis at 5 o'clock on the afternoon of May 21. Within half an hour thousands of families were rendered homeless and property to the value of $50,000,000 was destroyed. It was the most disastrous storm of modern times, far more appalling than any carthquake or hurricane that has occurred in this generation. Hundreds of niles of electric wires and thousands of telephone and telegraph poles were dashed to the ground like so many ninepins. Trees were uprooted and hurled a distance of several blocks. Heavy iron fences were twisted as though they were so much tin. The masonry at the approaches of the great Eads bridge was blown away, steamboats were dashed across the river, broken Into fragments and hurled high upon the opposite banks. There was nothing either on land or affoat to withstand the pitiless fury of the awful wind, which attained a velocity of eighty miles an hour and brought with it havoe, ruin and death. Right upon the heels of the storm came Strauss, St. Louis leading photographer, who made perfect views of all the most important ruins, which included some of the ity's most substantial buildings churches. These views, together with a graphic description of the wreck from the en of one of St. Louis' most noted newspaper men, have been handsomely engraved and printed on supersized and calendered paper and bound in book form, after the style of the World's Fair Views, which The Bee scattered broadcast in 1894, making an interesting album of the great storm which is almost priccless, as it is the only au-thentic edition, photographed direct from ictual life or death, that will be published. The Bee has exclusive control of the pro-luction and offers this complete work of fifty pages, including forty-three full page views, to subscribers of The Daily Hee for the insignificant sum of 25 cents and one coupon cut out of the advertisement on another page.
