EVERYONE WAS FOR MERCER

Not a Dissenting Voice Raised in the Convention Yesterday.

BUSINESS TRANSACTED IN A HURRY

Only Required an Hour for Speeches and All-Congressional Delegates Instructed to Vote as n tnit.

It took the republican county convention held in Douglas county. There was only one name mentioned in connection with the nomination and the uninitiated observer would never have imagined that and different situation had previously obtained. If there were any dissatisfactions remaining from inharmonious note was sounded. It was an auspicious beginning of the congressional campaign and when the convention meets tion of the will of the three counties of the and gave way to Mr. H. C. When the county convention met in Washington hall yesterday afternoon every delegate on the floor was for D. H. Mercer. The Third ward delegates were the last to climb into the band wagon. During the forenoon they got together and decided that it would be useless to oppose themselves to the rest of the convention. Consequently they determined to cast their full vote in Mercer's interests. During the interval while the delegates were arriving. the unsuccessful aspirants for Mercer's shoes lingered around the edges of the crowd and received the good humored chaffing of their friends with as good grace as possible. Mercer's overwhelming victory at the primaries had settled all opposition and to hear the conversations going on in various parts of the hall one would think no such opposition had ever existed.

The delegates consumed some time in exchanging felicitations and it was 2:20 o'clock when Chairman John Lewis of the county central committee called the convention to order. Secretary Lunt read the call, after which Chairman Lewis said:

"Gentlemen of the Convention: The battle in the republican camp is over. The overwhelming majority rolled up in the various wards of this city upon yesterday the returns rom South Omaha and the country precincts, indicate the way the wind blows and settle the congressional struggle in our party. Yesterday we followed the several banners of our own particular candidates. Today, without regard to former allegiance, one and all, we gather about one banner, the banner of the re-publican party, which has inscribed upon it, the three mazic names, McKinley, Mac-Coll and Mercer. Under this banner, united and loyal, the republican party in this county will march on to magnificent victory in November next. Out from the conflict of yesterday we come with no heartburnings, no enmities, with but one desire-the success of the entire republican ticket next fall.

"I have the honor of presenting as your temporary chairman, Hon. Charles J. Greene of the Ninth ward." The applause was renewed when Mr. Greene was introduced and took the gavel. In thanking the convention for the hono conferred Mr. Greene remarked that while the great interest in this campaign centered on the contest for the presidency the composition of the next congress was even more important. There had been a struggle in this county, but now that it was over all should be united and know no man except as a republican.

He called attention to the great issues that were to be decided. "The democratic party was for free coinage, free trade and everything else that was free except free labor. He arraigned the populist party and pointed to the riot and disaster that had followed its assumption of power in Illinois Kansas and Colorado. It had shown itself incapable of governing a state and still it aspired to govern the nation. All these interests meant war on the republican party its institutions and its policy. The repullican party stood for protection to American labor and industries and for the best financial policy that the world had ever known It was the best friend silver had ever had Up to 1873 there had been scarcely $8,000, 000 of silver coined in the United States Since then the republican party had added nearly $600,000,000 to the silver coinage of

The speaker followed with a strong portrayal of the weakness of the position taken by the free and unlimited coinage advocates. He showed the unfairness of the proposition and indicated the manner in which the exe cution of their views would contract the cur rency and bring disaster to every interes of this country. "Work was what the peo of this country. "Work was what the peo-ple wanted. Was this to be provided by destroying the industries which afforded labor Would free silver or free trade give work to the American people?

This was no new situation. It had been confronted five times before in the history of this country and in each case had resulted in disaster. The republican party had always been true to the people. It had found the country in the midst of a civil war and had brought about peace within and without its borders. It had found it in financial distress and left it in a condition of prosperity unparalleled in its history." At the end of the chairman's address, the organization was completed by the election of B. C. Smith of the Sixth ward and W.

A. Soussey of Clontarf as secretaries.

On motion of T. K. Sudborough, the list of delegates as received by the secretary were declared seated. W. B. Taylor of the Fourth ward moved that a committee of seven be selected to name the delegates to the conversal of the conversal convention. the congressional convention. An amend ment to increase the committee to include one member from each ward and precinct was voted down, and the original motion prevailed. The committee consisted of W. B. Taylor, T. S. Crocker, I. SOUTHSIDERS HARD AT WORK

Urge the Commissioners to Proceed with the Thirteenth Street Boulevard.

OBJECT TO THE BOND REQUIREMENT

Indications that at Next Meeting of the County Board Some Favorable Action Will Be Taken in the Premises.

The Southside Improvement club is still making every effort to secure the grading of the Thirteenth street boulevard by the county commissioners and without the giving of an indemnity bond by the property commissioners have adjourned until June 25, but in the meantime the southsiders Nebraska that was becoming universal. He vigorously urged home patronage and a determined effort to build up the industries to win a majority of the board over to their side and the indications are that when the board next convenes the resolution providing that the street shall be graded, providing a bond is given, will be reconsidered

> At the time this resolution was passed some of the commissioners asked the county attorney for an opinion as to the legality bond which had been asked for This question was turned over to Assistant County Attorney Day for investigation and Mr. Day submitted an opinion in which he stated that he oclieved the requiring of a bond of that nature to be against public policy and void; that the work was of a public nature, and such action would be delegating to private individuals duties which devolved upon the commissioners as a public body. This opinion was very carefully buried out of sight and another o the assistant attorneys was asked to draw up the bond.

> Commissioner Stenberg, who has been the most ardent supporter of the move to require a bond to be furnished to protect the county, admits that it is a mere matter of form and that the county could never recover a dollar on the bond in case property owners should win damage suits against the ounty on account of the grading. He con tends, however, that the moral influence of the bond would be such as to prevent property owners with imaginary damages from bringing damage suits. He argues that suits would be brought against the ounty by persons who would not start a suit if they thought a few individuals would have to stand the loss. The proposed grad-ing being inside the city limits of South Omaha. Mr. Stenberg says the county has no right to appoint appraisers to fix the damages caused by the grading, whereas the law requires that appraisers shall be appraised by the grading of the production of the state of the pointed before grading is done. He cites the Taylor case on West Leavenworth street as an instance of how it works. Taylor was the owner of a lot on Leavenworth street, west of the Belt line railway, on the south side of the street, inside the city limits of Omaha The north side of the street is outside the city limits at that point. The street was graded by the county without expense to the property owners, but without appointing appraisers because the commissioners had no power to do so. After the grading was done Taylor sued the city, the county and the individual commissioners who were in office when the work was done. He recovered judgment in the sum of $600 against the Stenberg's point is that if the county. county had had an indemnity bond in that case the moral influence of such a bond would have prevented the suit being brought.
> Stenberg is supported in this view by Commissioner Williams, who also favors the requirement of a bond.
> On the other hand, Commissioner Kier> stead takes the position that the work is a great public improvement and that it is unreasonable to ask a few of the heavy property holders in the city to assume all the responsibility of giving a bond for $10,000 when the whole city is benefited, and he favors waiving the requirement of a bond and going ahead with the work as soon as possible. He says that it is absurd to require the south side property owners to give a bond which is admitted to be illegal and that such tactics are simply obstructive Chairman Jenkins coincides with Mr. Kier stead and favors going ahead without a bond, owing to the importance of the work Mr. Hoctor also favors the work without equiring a bond and stated before he went to Chicago that he would vote to re ider the resolution requiring a bond to be given before anything was done.

The grounds on which they protested against the admission of the will were these: First, that at the time the will is alleged to have been signed Creamer was totally blind and could neithe read nor write; second, that for a lon, period prior to the alleged signing of will be had been mentally unbalanced and incapable of making a will; third, that he was unduly influenced in making the will by his wife, to the injury and prejudice of the contestants; fourth, that one of the executors, C. The decorations of the cathedral made it assume a decidedly martial appearance Large American flags covered each of the chancel rails, while small flags crossed, designated the front pews, which were reserved for the members of the two families and most intimate friends. The groom and his best man were attired in full military uniform, and there were a number of army officers among the guests, who also wore their uniforms. In addition to the bouton nieres which adorned the coat lapels of the ushers they were little bows of red, white and blue ribbon. The chancel of the cathedral was also decorated with a large number of palms and roses. Prof. Butler presided over the organ.

The bride is a daughter of Dr. McClelland who will be remembered by the older citi-zens of Omaha as one of the best physicians of his day. At one time he was a surgeor in the army. Lieutenant Powell has lived here for seven years, having been detailed to Fort Omaha in 1889. He has been sta-tioned here continuously since then until the recent order moving the Second regi-ment away to other posts was received. His company is now located at Fort Keogh where Lieutenant and Mrs. Powell will take up their residence. HAVE DECLARED WAR ON SATAN American Volunteers Ready to Star on the Campaign.

The Volunteers of America, the secession ists from the Salvation army, are preparing to start upon a vigorous campaign in the near future to overcome the evil one. They are preparing to bring Dr. Palmer of Chicago, one of the most prominent members to this city for the work. Dr. Palmer is now in Lincoln, where he has been addressing good crowds for the past six weeks.

In order to have ample accommodations for who will desire to hear him, the local Volunteers are now soliciting among the people of the city for money with which to hire suitable quarters. They expect to require a large hall, as Dr. Palmer has always succeeded in calling together big It is hinted that Dr. Palmer may make

This is the time of the year when the stores that have been getting tenth story prices for fourth story goods are conjuring up all sorts of excuses to make people believe that the prices are now on the ground floor and that they are practically giving the choice goods away.
