Trolley Parties Are Now All the Rago.

Trips Over the Rall Prove to Be Just the Thing for the Hot Sommer Evenings Gossip of the Week.

The delightful weather of the past week has been a real boon to local society, which has quite shaken off the letharmy in which it lay a week ago. Stimulated by cool breezes and a pleasing climate, society has and Mr. more or less completely aroused itself from that morbid drowsiness concomitant with torrid weather, and a retrespective glance and Mr. Joseph Little best man. The over the week's calendar shows a number of ceremony was witnessed by only the iminteresting functions. Whether or not this has been but a brief lease of life preparatory to the profound sleep into which all urban society must fall in the summer months can-have hitherto included only blevele, horse-back and coaching parties, porch parties and garden parties, has been further illus-bead, to Mr. Edwin J. Bodwell, county su-ern cities for the past three seasons. The idea orginated in Philadelphia, and last summer the managers of the Quaker lines could not meet the demands for their party could not meet the demands for their party cars. These are fitted up in an especially attractive manner with seats running around the sides of the cars and electric lights arranged to show the "counterfeit presentment" of some famous man or to represent some popular institution. Should the fad continue to grow in favor in Omaha as it has in the past week, for there has been scarcely a night without its trolley party, the local managers may be induced to provide some of these roomy party cars. With the completion of the projected lines into the various suburbs of Omaha such parties will increase more rapidly in favor. This will be especially true when the trolley is stretched between here and Fort Crook.

Speaking of Fort Crook, Omahans are already beginning to get acquainted with the officers and their families, and they find the soldiers from the west and their friends a most congental set of people. young women are as attractive as their elders are hospitable and the young men of Omaha, anticipating the many good times that are bound to come at the new fort, are already planning to lay siege there. But there has been more consternation caused by the coming of the new soldiers from the west among the young women of this city, for it is reported that there are no less than eleven marriageable officers in the regiment. The departure of the Second regiment with-drew many officers who had been extremely popular in local society, but the latter in-stitution is now almost reconciled to the loss because it has taken thought of the gain it has made. The presence of a wed-ding more or less military in its character on the week's calendar has caused many of the buds and many more of their sisters regard the advent of eleven marriageable officers as an exceedingly auspicious event. What the harvest will be, but that, popular author would say, is another story,

The lakes of Minnesota are now attracting a number of Omahans to the cool and delightful resorts by their sheres. The colony of society folk at one of the most popular of these lake resorts has grown considerably during the past week, and of the names that have helped lengthen the roll of guests there is that of a young woman of this city who enjoys an enviable reputation in the most elite circles. Ever since warm weather struck here she has pined for the cool breezes of the lake. She is a good swimmer, enjoys sailing, when afternoon comes is ready to ride a wheel or play tennis, and in the evening never tires of dancing. It is small wonder then that she wanted join her friends at the lakeside, where all these amenities are offered. She had received an invitation to come there and visit, but she could not see her way clear to provide the necessary transportation. She had fretted and worried, and, passing that stage, had determined to be satisfied to remain in town during the torrid season other afternoon she was at the railroad station to bid farewell to a number of companions who were departing for the place where she longed to be. She had just kissed one of the dear girls goodbye the last time, and, turning away, saw the general manager of the road intently watching her. It must be confessed that, busy man though he was, for he had just been appointed to the position named, he had been quite captivated with what he had just seen. He came over to where the young women were standing and entered into their conversation with the earnestness of a man thirty years his junior.

"Dear me, I wish I could go with you, rls, but I can't, so there's no use crying." said the pretty little school girl. "Why can't you?" queried the newly ap-pointed general manager.

"I haven't the money to buy a ticket," came back in soft accents.
"What would you do if I should give you a pass?" asked the g. m. "Would you kiss promised goods were duly delivered to the g. m. He kept his part of the contract and made out a round trip pass for the school girl, and she is now enjoying herself to the limit, but she doesn't tell her friends why it was that her trunk was packed in ten minutes and that she so sud-denly changed her mind and decided to spend some time at the resort in question.

Powell-McClelland. The most notable event of the week so far as Omaha society is concerned was the wellding of Miss Jennie Morrow McClelland. daughter of Mrs. Florence McClelland, and Lieutenant Hiram McLemore Powell. The ceremony was performed by Dean Gardner, assisted by Rev. John Williams, at Holy Trialty cathedral, on Wednesday at high noon. There were present a goodly repre-sentation of local society and not a few visitors from other cities. The martial appearance of the cathedral, which was liberally decorated with flags and other forms of the national colors, and the military uniforms of the groom, his best man, Lieutenant Julius A. Penn, and a number of the invited guests, combined to make the wedding one of the prettient make the wedding one of the prettiest t has been seen in Omaha for many

The event of the week, around which clustered a series of lessor events, was the Powell-McClelland weiding. There were were several breakfasts and luncheons in honor of the bride and her unaids. Besides these affairs, there were a number of bicycle parties and porch parties. There can no longer be any doubt about the propriety of such outdoor functions and their popularity. and garden parties, has been further littles trated during the past week by the invasion of a few form of amusement. The trolley car has pushed its way right into the midst of society's circles, and bids fair to exclude many less popular forms of pleasure.

| Dead. to Mr. Edwin J. Bodwell, county subperimental perimeters of schools, occurred at the residence of the bride's mother Thursday afternoon, the ceremony being performed by Rev. S. B. McCormick, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The wedding clude many less popular forms of pleasure.

It's no surprise that the trolley car has been admitted to society, for society is, as a rule, quick to recognize a good thing. The bicycle and other modern inventions have been duly admitted, and the friends of the trolley car knew that it would not be far behind the mount.

Trolley parties have been popular in eastern cities for the past three seasons. MIMIC NAVAL WAR. The naval maneuvers of next week will be on a larger scale than yet attempted. will open with a preliminary cruise, which will be followed by tactical exercises. A sham war will be the next feature. The ships will be divided into the channel and eserve fleets. The latter, according to the cheme, protects the coast against the channel squadron. Great Britain will send to sen upon this occasion a larger naval force than was ever before mobilized by one power in the history of the world. The number of ships which will take part will be about compared with the seventy-five which were sent to sea for the same purpose last year. Every class of vessel will be em-ployed in the fleets mobilized, including fif-teen battleships, twenty-five cruisers, twenty-one guiboats, twenty torpedo de-stroyers, twenty-four torpedo boats and a number of dispatch vessels and other craft. There will be 22:000 men on board these fleets. The leading point to be decided by the maneuvers is expected to be whether orpdo destroyers can effectually protect blockading ships against torpedo boats. Last year they proved able to catch and sink tor pedo boats, but were not able to hinder them entirely from reaching the ships. The Admiralty announces that a feature of the admiraty anaduces that a read of the mimic war will be the watching of one fleet in port by the other. The government has got into a muddle over the Irish land bill, which measure is acceptable to neither the nationalists nor to the Ulsterites as it stands. Gerald Balfour, the chief secretary for Ireland, has tried to conciliate both parties by amendments with the only result of discontent. It is understood that T. W. Russell, liberal unionist, threatens to oppose the measure if the government persists in the amendments and it seems likely that the government will have to withdraw the bill altogether.
