CORONER'S JURY FINDS THEM GUILTY

Conclusion of the Investigation in the Terrible Affair at Logan, in Which So Many Lives Were Crushed Out.

LOGAN, In., July 15 .- (Special Telegram.) -The coroner's jury investigating Saturday's wreck held Conductor Reed and Engineer Montgomery guilty of criminal negligence and ordered their arrest.

County Coroner McFarlane resumed the inestigation at 9 o'clock this morning and Al Grosvenor, being sworn, testified as follows: On July 11, 1898, about 7 o'clock m., I was in the office of Dr. J. Knowles in Logan, In. He was bandaging the hand of a man who said he was the engineer of the excursion train. This man said that both he and the conductor were at fault; that he (the engineer) was most at fault, as he knew of the freight train, but had for-

E. S. Bradley, who was present at the wreck, was then sworn and testified to a list of the dead who had been identified in his presence, both at Logan and Omaha. The list sworn to by Bradley reached twenty-live. At Omaha Bradley heard the report that four others had died afterward. but the report had not been verified. Witness knew positively of twenty-three bodies being taken out of the wreeked car at Logan. These were not all dead at the time of rescue, but those not dead at that time died shortly afterward. Wit-ness also stated that he had taken down the names of twenty-seven as dead and had been identified, but only twenty-five names have as yet been found. Witness said that it was barely possible that an error had been made in identifica-tion. Did not know of his own personal knowledge that twenty-seven had been killed. Witness talked with the engineer of train No. 38. The engineer, whose name is Cheesebrough, stated that he had on special orders and was running at his usual rate, which was about twenty-five miles an hour. Was about twenty rods apart when he noticed the approaching train and ap-plied air brakes and reversed his engine. Witness talked with Night Operator Peckenhaugh at Logan and was informed that the excursion train pulled out on regular time. When asked what he meant by regular time the operator refused to talk fur-

William C. Ehrhardt was next sworn and made the following statement: I was not at wreck until late. I was present at Dr. Knowles' office a very short time. Did not know that the man was engineer except as by the way he spoke. The first thing the engineer said was that he felt very bad about the wreck. The engineer stated, when asked if he had running orders, that they promised to keep track clear and could not say whether the engineer acknowledged the blame or not. Engineer did not state in his presence whether he had running or-ders or not.

UNDERTAKER'S STORY. K. E. Webber, the undertaker, testified as follows: Am in the undertaking business. I had twenty-five dead bodies in my place of business July 11, 1896. I was at the wreck and helped carry some of those dead bodies out of the wrecked cars. I was instructed by Mr. Smith, the Northwestern claim agent, to take care of the bodies and that he would pay my charges. An hour afterward Smith countermanded the order. That was after the bodies had been washed. The bodies were mostly very badly crushed and mangled. These bodies were taken away by the railroad officials from my place away by the railroad officials from my place of business. The railroad officials have paid me in full. After Smith had ordered the bodies taken care of he came back mad about something and ordered the bodies removed. When Smith ordered the bodies removed the undertaker hesitated and consulted with Mayor Berry before he would allow them taken away. It seems that Smith was very badly worked up over the accident and tried frequently to pacify the accident and tried frequently to pacify himself by swearing at others and telling them that certain remarks they might make were ridiculous, etc. Mr. Webber was very much displeased with the discourteous manner in which he was used by Smith. Witness states that four bodies which be-longed to friends from Missouri Valley were not removed by the officials and were afterwards taken away by these friends.

railroad agent, but had received no pay from the parties at Missouri Valley. 11 o'clock Station Agent Shaffer presented a message to the coroner request ing him to defer the investigation until the arrival of the railroad officials in order that they might be present. The request was granted and the court adjourned until 1:30 this afternoon. The work of continuing the investigation progressed rapidly this afternoon. Upon opening the session it was found that the ompany was on hand with legal counsel a well as General Claim Agent Richards of Chicago. No testimony was introduced at the afternoon session except by Station Agent Shaffer, who was recalled. The witness stated that immediately after the wreck Conductor Reid sent a message to headquarters stating that the wreck had occurred and it was caused by him forget-

At this juncture the claim agent voluntarily read certain rules of the company, which he stated covered cases like this one and were inaugurated for the purpose of avoiding such accidents as this.

It has larely developed that an ex-employer of the Northwestern company named John Pugh, who has been stopping about Logan with friends for some time, beid a switch key in his possession, and in his eager dealire to do what he could to assist the executable to the procession. the excursionists informed the brakeman that he (Pugh) would open the switch and let the train out. When the signal was that he (Pugh) would open the switch and let the train out. When the signal was given he did this. The evening of the wreck the company officials got onto this fact, and that night he was taken to Boone by the company official, and now he is not to be found. He may be wanted, and in case he is there is some doubt as to whether Harrison county officials will be able to locate

Mrs. S. E. Boughton of Missouri Wants Ten Thousand Dollars Daminges.
MACON, Mo., July 15.—(Special.) Papers were served here yesterday on Colonel Frank Madden, as representative of the Omaha Loan and Trust company, in a case brought against the company by Mrs. Sarah E. Boughton of Rolla, Phelos county, Mo., for $15,000 damages for malicious prosecution. Mrs. Boughton and her husprosecution. Mrs. Boughton and her hus-band, William, were formerly residents of Omaha. They owned two handsome resi-dences in that city. Madden's company held two mortgages on the dwellings. On one of them Boughton had betrowed $10,000 and on the other $5,000. Both houses were well furnished and the security was considered good. When payment was due on the mortgage, Madden went to the houses to mertgage. Madden went to the houses to investigate. Boughton and his wife had departed. In the house on which the $5,000 had been advanced the bare walls were about all that had been left. Boughton and his wife had taken from the house everything they could transport. The window casings, door steps, gas fixtures, water pipe, transoms and about everything of value that could be taken away and moved were gone. Madden traced Boughton and his wife to a village on the line of Crawford and Pheips counties, and a criminal ford and Phelps counties, and a criminal action was immediately instituted against them. At the preliminary hearing, which octhem. At the preliminary learning, which occurred at Rolla the last part of January, the husband and wife were bound over to appear before the jury. After remaining a few days in jail the wife gave bond in the sum of $500 and was released. Later she was discharged on the ground that as the property was in her name she had com-mitted no offense in taking it, and because if she had done wrong she was under the fluence of her husband. She brings her action against the com-pany for these two or three days she spent in jall, wherein she says she was "ruth-leasly taken from her home in rough and inclement weather and held out to the public as a woman unworthy of confidence and trust, etc."

Rocks in a Heavy Swell. PESCADERO, July 15 .- The Pacific Mail steamer Columbia, which ran on the rocks, is rolling heavily and thumping herself to pieces. The sea is calm, but the swell is rising and there is about eighteen feet of water in the hold. The captain and officers of the steamer have apparently given her up and are preparing to leave when it is no longer safe to remain on board. There is some water in the afterhold. Several tugs and steam schooners have been loaded with freight and efforts have been made all day to save as much as possible. Some of the cargo is washed out of the forehold. The surf breaks close to the steamer and if the sea gets rough she will not outlast the night. Many people are gathered on the beach to watch the wreck in anticipation of securing her tools and cargo when she goes to pieces

SMOOTH SWINDLER MAKES A SNEAK

Canvassed the Farmers Pretending to Represent an Omaha Building and Loan Concern and When Cornered Disappears.

WESTON, Neb., July 15 .- (Special.)-It developed yesterday that a smooth swindler has been operating in this locality. A man giving his name as W. M. Rhoades came to Weston last week and engaged board at a boarding house. He represented himself as solicitor for the Accidental Building and Loan association of Omaha and proceeded at once to canvass among the farmers. He proposed to negotiate loans to them if they would first become members of the association, which required a certain fee, but which some were willing to pay influenced with the promise of a large loan at a low rate of interest. He succeeded in securing two members on the liberal propositions offered, the fees amounting to about $40, which money he feigned to send into the company, together with the applications for loans. In the meantime the cashier of the bank wrote to the company to learn something of the solicitor's standing and received an answer stating that Rhoades had long ago been discharged from the service of the company and that it was not making loans anybody at present through agents. shown the letter, the agent expressed great surprise, and professed ignorance of his discharge from the company's employment, or that it was not authorizing loans. He urged the bank cashier to accompany him to Omaha the next morning and they would see the Accidental company and straighten up these misunderstandings, when he would return to Weston and proceed with business. The cashier complied and the two took the train for Omaha. On arriving in the city the slick solicitor was reliable with a violent headach. seized with a violent headache, the result of such rank injustice preying upon his nervous system, and excused himself to run scross to the nearest druggist for a package of ten-minute headache cure. He may have secured the remedy or he may not, but he never came back, though they waited an hour or more." Rhoades is between 35 and 40 years of age, medium size, wears his hair short, is cleanly shaven, and passes himself off as a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen.

TEACHERS' DAY AT CRETE. Prof. Griggs Delivers an Interesting

Discourse on Educators, CRETE, Neb., July 15.—(Special.)—Prof. Griggs of Stanford university addressed the teachers at 2 o'clock yesterday. The study of child life in universities has resulted in methods which are in accordance with the natural laws of development. Prof. Griggs said: "Regard each pupil with reverence as a separate problem. Such an attitude will go far toward solving it." But whatever the method the personality of the teacher is the most important factor. Ag-Arnold, Socrates, and, above all, Christ, were such great teachers, because they were such men. Aggasiz did not they were such men. Aggasiz did not teach botany; he taught Agassiz, and that is why he has so many great pupils. A deep. rich personality is never buried. The discipline in the schools of America should fit the pupils for citizenship in this country. They can be made to see the necessity of industry and order, and to practice to keep it without the use of whip or detention unless bad home training have made them vicious. And a thoroughly vicious boy is as rare as a perfect one.

"The benefit of the nature studies of history and of literature, which they are now teaching children, is that it brings them into relation with the world. The study of plants and trees, not analitically, but as a whole, compels a child to regard with sympathy and delight the growing plant. If history is the deeds and conditions of men and women and not dates, the study of it will enlarge the child's sympathics. The study of noble literature is the study of men's ideals and widens the experience through the emotions."

Prof. Griggs speaks quietly, without flourish of either arm or voice, with an ease, directness and simplicity indescribable. Mathew Arnold said we were wanting in sweetness and light in this country, but he visited America when Prof. Griggs was only 8 years old.
Dr. Scott spoke on the subject of the "Resurrection" in the afternoon, and Mrs. Ford lectured on "Miss Murphree, Miss Wilkins and Mrs. Burton Harrison." Dr. Graham Taylor gave the last of the bi-ographical address on the "Men Who Have Labor on Its Way to Emancipation." It was appropriate to close the series with a tribute to the life of the gentle saint who renounced riches for poverty. Dr. Taylor's life among the poor of Chicago give him the authority of experience and he is listened to with the closest attention.
