The temples of Omaha society have been captured during the week past by a host of youthful invaders. To be sure there has been none of the glorious pomp and furnished by Kaufman's orchestra. circumstance of war. No clang of armed men, no crash of musketry, and no booming of cannon has been heard. The conquest has been a peaceful one, but none the less complete on that account. The kings and queens who have held sway over the empire of local society, their courtiers and ton, May Hamilton, Georgia Lindsey, Ade-line Nash, Louise Squires, Sue Colpetzer, the lesser satellites, have been routed and their thrones razed to the ground. Flora Yates, Bessie Yates, Agnes Reed.

Florence Morse, Ethel Morse, Margaret Brown, Flora Webster, Edna Cowin, Bost-The week has been a brilliant one socially, especially for this season of the year, and the events concomitant with the Bluffs, Anna Millard,' Helen Millard, Mr. conquest by the young folk have been well appointed and thoroughly enjoyed. It might almost be said that society, certainly that of the real swagger set, has been completely given over to those who are to enjoy the festivities of the social world for Lake, Millard Hopkins, Cookson, Howell, Harry Lindsey, Samuel Burns, Charles Pratt, several seasons in the immediate future. The older clique, appreciating the pre-destinate victory of the younger set, took to the woods, the mountains, anywhere to escape from witnessing the ascendency of the fair debutants that are to be and the gallant lads who will lead germans and arrange blevele parties in the seasons soon

At first glance it would appear strange, if not ludicrous, that such an outbreak of the younger set should take place during the last week in July, in very midsummer. On reflection it will be seen that this was the most opportune time. The young women who are completing their education at fashionable seminaries and academies (a few only have matriculated at colleges), returned home late in June. Many had to stop en route to spend some time with their schoolmates. After their arrival home, another week or two was spent in renewing acquaintances among the family. This brings the sweet girl student-the fin de female seminary does not graduate its pupils-down to the week that shines out brightly on the season's social calendar The gay young collegian was a trifle late himself in reaching home; perhaps he lost on the deciding base ball game or the boat However, the past week was really best opportunity the youthful clique has had for enjoying occasion set apart to itself. That the opportunity was well improved, no one who has glanced at the list of festivities that crowded the past week's calendar can for a single moment doubt.

The dances of the week have afforded one a chance to look around and see how beautiful and attractive are the fair maidens who will soon formally enter the realms of society. To such an observer no feeling society. disappointment has come, rather a feeling of pleasant anticipation for the numerus coming-out parties and the series of gay events that will follow. Those who will have charge of the invitation lists for the functions of the coming season important have also improved the lawn, porch and dancing parties of the week by noting the names of those who have im-pressed them favorable.
