

LI TALKS ABOUT AMERICA

Expresses Regret that He is Unable to Remain Here Long.

PECULIARITIES OF THE CHINESE ENVOY

Reverses the Role and Forces the Newspaper Interviewer to Do All the Talking—Interested in the United States.

(Copyright, 1896, by the Associated Press.) LONDON, Aug. 9.—By special appointment a representative of the Associated Press was this morning accorded an interview with Li Hung Chang, England's guest of honor this month. The hour set for the interview was 8.30 in the morning, an indication that the Chinese statesman is not given to late hours. Early as the hour was, there were nevertheless several persons waiting to see the emperor of China's envoy. The attendants were, however, instructed as to the prior appointment of the representative of the Associated Press. A number of applicants on all possible errands and shown into Li Hung Chang's private parlor, which is the ground floor morning room in Lord Londsdale's mansion, in Carleton House Terrace. A group of servants stood before the door through which the newspaper man was conducted by Viscount Li, the statesman's aide and who acts as interpreter. Li Hung Chang rose and bowed with formal courtesy as his visitor entered, and then shook hands after which he motioned to a seat opposite his own. Li Hung Chang was habited in undress costume, consisting of a plum-colored stuff skirt, a dark blue silk jacket and a black satin cap with a crimson tassel button in the center of the crown. In the front of the cap band was fixed a large pearl stud set with diamonds. A diamond ring also glittered on the little finger of his right hand. His hair was of black silk, trimmed with two lines of green silk, and having thick white felt soles.

PEN PICTURE OF LI

As the distinguished foreigner took his seat, following his guests' action, his attention was attracted by the numerous published portraits from photographs, so that he would have been readily recognized. He had information as to the course of the interview. Li most of the time looked his interlocutor straight in the face, his glance being directed at the penetrative power of the Roentgen rays. The complexion of his face is a dark brown, relieved by a thin straggling gray moustache and a thin mustache. His face becomes animated with an occasional smile, full of perception. He then reverts to the impassive expression of a Buddha. His voice is low in pitch, but of sonorous quality and he speaks with the strong inflections so characteristic of the Chinese. He has been interviewed a number of times before his arrival in England and has seized that rather formidable instrument, the pen, and written with a firm grasp to direct rather than to be controlled by it. The method employed by the astute oriental diplomat in his interviews with newspapers is to ask and not answer questions. The Associated Press representative found himself somewhat puzzled by the Chinese arrangements for the coming transit of Li through the United States before opportunity was given to put a query. Li, however, in New York to Washington. At this point the Chinese dignitary clasped his hands to call a servant in the oriental fashion. He should be in the room, he entered and bowed low and retired and then returned with a tea in a covered cup of exquisitely fine and delicate porcelain. The tea was being partaken of by his caller. Li Hung Chang asked about the special train on the Pennsylvania railroad that was to be fitted for him to travel to New York and then direct to Vancouver without change. He was informed that probably it would. Li explained that he had written to Luncheon in Philadelphia, at which he pointed that all of Li Hung Chang's old friends were invited to meet him at New York when the latter accompanied General Grant on his tour around the world and afterward when he became fitted to meet the Chinese under the name of the Emperor of China. Mr. Young held such a position among Americans as to lead them to follow his arrangements, and the Chinese minister asked cordially after the health of Mr. Young and of General James H. Wilson and Mr. Wharton Barker, whom he had seen in London.

SORRY TO GO SO QUICK

The Associated press representative said that the greater regret was felt among Americans that Li Hung Chang would be unable to see enough of the United States to obtain a knowledge of the country equally intimate with that obtained of the countries he had already seen. Li Hung Chang in reply asserted that he deeply regretted that he would not be able to see the United States. He should sail for Vancouver on September 14, for which date passage had been engaged for him on the steamer Empress of China. He was asked if he would like to eat some of the American delicacies, such as terrapin and canvasback duck, which were likely to be his smoke, he asked as to the diners. The fame of the terrapin and the canvasback duck are believed to have penetrated China through the extravagant fondness for those dishes of former Chinese envoy at Washington. Li replied to this query with an amused smile, saying: "I should be glad to eat the terrapin, but I cannot promise to do so, as my teeth are no longer good. For this reason I prefer to confine myself to Chinese food."

Here Li Hung Chang called out something to the servant in the adjoining room. The latter entered and took from a sideboard a long silver pipe, the bowl of which was held a spirit lamp. He blew through the stem, put a pinch of tobacco in it, lighted it with a taper and held the stem to his lips. Li pulled a pipe with much apparent gratification, which served to exhaust the charge, and the servant then offered the stem to his superior. This was repeated three times before Li had enough of the fumes to satisfy his taste. Following his smoke, he asked as to the facilities and the cost of shipping heavy baggage from New York to Vancouver. Having satisfied himself on these points, the respondent inquired whether Li desired to see the leading silverites and gold standard advocates regarding the question of money during his visit to the United States. Viscount Li replied to this that his father was anxious to learn all that was possible about the American money market, and he was in Washington that he hopes those persons wishing to have interviews with him would arrange for them with the Chinese minister at Washington.

Here another caller was shown into the private parlor and Li Hung Chang arose with bows and a handshake, indicating that the interview was at an end.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—At Lord Salisbury's garden party, held in honor of Li Hung Chang, at Hatfield last evening, 2,000 invited guests were present. Among the guests were hundreds of lords and members of the House of Commons and diplomats of the latter including all the members of the Japanese legation. Secretary of the United States Legation Roosevelt, the crown princess of Austria and all the prominent members of London society. Li Hung Chang turned the grounds in his chair, afterward holding a reception.

ARRANGEMENTS AT WASHINGTON

Illustrates Chinese Visitor Will Be Properly Taken Care Of.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Although no official steps have been taken toward the reception of the illustrious Chinese statesman, Li Hung Chang, who is expected to arrive in the United States during the latter part of the present month, the mar has already received the attention of the State department. It is unfortunate that the prospective visit of the Chinese premier was not known earlier to enable the president to apply to congress for an appropriation of funds to defray the expense of entertaining the illustrious visitor in suitable fashion, or at least in such manner as will not be objectionably striking contrast with the profuse display of hospitality made by the European governments, because Li Hung Chang comes not as an individual, but as an ambassador extraordinary. Therefore there will be no escape possible for our national authorities and they must do what they can for the means. This means a recourse to the extraordinary funds of the State department, and while this is not in itself an extraordinary proceeding, it is not clear to be seen how the latter can avoid the necessity for a trip to Washington to secure the appropriation. It is just possible that Secretary Olney may serve as the representative of the president on this occasion, and some color is lent to this belief by the fact that the secretary of state is known to have arranged to come to Washington about the date now set for the arrival of Li Hung Chang. If the president in such cases as follows some of the army or navy, or perhaps a representative of each, will be detailed to meet the national guest in New York and to devote his attention to insuring the comfort of Li Hung Chang while in the United States, travel with him by rail, and acting as intermediary between him and the various officials with whom he will be called upon to meet.

LOSES A STRONG CHAMPION

Republican Party Will Miss Hon. L. D. Apley in the House.

BUSINESS FORCES HIM TO RETIRE

Refuses to Stand for Re-Election in the Massachusetts District Which He Has So Ably Represented for Several Years.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Representative L. D. Apley, who has represented the Fourth district of Massachusetts during the Fifty-third and first session of the Fifty-fourth congress, has notified the managers of his district that he will not under any circumstances stand for re-election. Apley was vice chairman of the republican congressional committee in the last campaign and was unanimously re-elected by his associates to act in the same capacity during the present campaign, and while he will not stand for re-election to congress he will remain with chairman Babcock at the head of the republican congressional committee in Washington until the close of the election in November. Although he has been assured of practically a unanimous nomination and friends have brought much pressure to bear upon him to again become a candidate, Mr. Apley feels that he owes it to his important business interests to withdraw from active politics after the close of his present term in congress. He has represented one of the most important republican districts in Massachusetts, having elected the last time by over 8,000 majority and materially increasing his vote over the republican ticket. Apley has been an eminently successful representative. He has been very popular not only with the members of his own delegation, but with the members of the house, and his retirement will be regretted by republicans and democrats alike because of his successful business experience and his deep interest in tariff legislation. Speaker Reed appointed him chairman of the committee on manufacture, and because of his acquaintance with the laboring classes, a member of the committee on labor, while he was practically the spokesman of the Massachusetts delegation at the organization of the Fifty-fourth congress. Mr. Reed relying strongly upon his judgment and advice in the matter of committee appointments. He made a special study of the tariff, and his report which attracted much attention, and which was put in pamphlet form to meet the great demand that has been made for it in all parts of the country. Mr. Apley has not only been exceedingly active in his position to the interests of Major McKinley, but is deliberately and constantly using his influence to induce the republican party in the county of New York and to impair, if not to destroy, the reputation of the republican ticket in the county. It then recites instances wherein the organization has deprived members of the republican party of their seats in congress and declares: "We believe that in a majority of states the party is thoroughly and completely demoralized and unrepresentative of the people.
