The democrats had only proposed fusion on the electoral ticket. Mr. Manley in his reply says he regarded the memorandum from Senator Butler as private and did not submit it to his committee. He says: "In furtherance to your communication I would spectfully say that the executive commitee of the democratic party made this prope sition for electoral fusion in perfect good faith, and we still express the hope that our inability to come to any satisfactory arrangement to the effect and manner you propose will not be allowed to stand in the way of some just arrangement by which Mr. nominee populist and silver parties, shall receive the united support of these organizations. It failure to have one electoral ticket for Mr Bryan may result in Mr. McKinley's receiving the entire electoral vote of North Carolina, although he receives many thousands less of the popular votes at the polls than may be received by Mr. Bryan. It may be that the loss of the electoral vote of North Carolina will result in the election of McKinley and the fixing of the gold standard upon the people for four more years. It was to avoid the possibility of such a result that the democratic executive committee made its proposition of July 31 for electoral fusion, presented it in a more definite shape at its meeting on the 10th of August and now again presses its acceptance on you "There is also a warm and sincere de-sire on the part of the democratic party that the prospect of the financial reform legisla-tion demanded in the Chicago platform and reiterated in the national platform of the people's party, in the event of the election of Bryan, shall not fail for the want of a majority for silver interests in the national house of representatives and to that end very effort on the part of all parties beeving in silver should be directed to the efeat of gold standard candidates in every congressional district in the state, and if at any time before the election in any congressional district there should be running or congress two silver candidates, the repre entatives of our respective parties, and the division of the silver vote thus brought about would make probable the election of a gold standard candidate, I believe it would become our duty in some honorable way to meet the situation so as to prevent this result.

We are all equal before the law as American citizens, and will not accept the new name applied to us by our modern philosophers and embryo statesman. Mr. Bryan has lately displayed an ardent love for the farmer and the workingman. Four years ago, when he advo-cated free wool, he did not care how much he injured the farmer and sheep raiser. it is different; he wants their votes. Is the American farmer and sheep raiser so foolish as to be misled by the man who helped to rob them? I think not. The workingman next receives his sympathy; they have votes and he wants them to place him in power so he can distribute postof-fices to his friends. Mr. Bryan, when in congress, advocated the Wilson bill, and still adheres to his free trade principles. It is needless to discuss the effects of the Wilson bill on the industries of the country. The evidence is too plain of its disastrous effects. In all parts of the country idle men, starying women and children. smokeless factories and general paralysis to the manufacturing industries of our country, the exident effect of the incompetency, theoretical blundering, nefarious and destructive legislation has left our workmen in idleness and poverty and brought our once happy country to the

I suppose he considers such mere antiquated trifles as beneath his notice. I presume he would like to crase from our statutes his active participation in the crime of 1893. His aim and object is the crime of 1893. His aim and object is to turn the people's attention from a real crime to a fancied one, and charge all our sufferings and financial distress to what he designates as the crime of '73. He has sang that song whenever he could get an audience, much to the disgust of sober, sensible men, but it won't work. When a wind was blowing in this temperature we did not ing in this temperature we did not comfortable in our too thin woolen lothing. To save weight, we had left our ur suits on board ship . The minimum emperature in March was 59, and the maximum was 24; in April the minimum was 35 and the maximum 20 degrees. "We saw no sign of land in any direction.

In fact the floe ice seemed to move so freely before the wind that there could not have been anything in the way of land to stop it for a long distance off. We were now frifting rapidly northward. "On April 8 we began our march toward Franz Josef land. On April 12 our watches an down owing to the unsual length of he day march. As we came south we met many cracks, which greatly retarded our progress. The provisions were rapidly decreasing. The dogs were killed one after the other to feed the rest. In June the cracks became very bad and the snow was in exceedingly bad ondition for traveling. dogs and the ski and sledge runners broke through the superficial crust and sank deep in the wet snow. Only a few dogs were now left, and progress was next to impossible. But, unfortunately, we bad no line of retreat. The dogs rations, as well as our own, were reduced to a minimum and May 31 we were in 82 degrees 21 minutes secording to Payer's map we had expected to meet with Petermann land at 83 degrees north. These discrepancies became more and more puzzling as time went on.

"On June 23 we had at last shot a bearded seal and as the snow became constantly worse we determined to wait. We now had a supply of seal meat until it melted away.

On July 24, when about 82 degrees north, we sighted unknown land at last, but the ice was every-where broken into small floes, the water between being filled with crushed ice, in which the use of the kayaks was impos-sible. We, therefore, had to make our way by balancing from one ice piece to another, and we did not reach land until August 6, at 81:38 north, and about 43 degrees east longitude."

GOSSIP ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE.

The last of the survivors of the famous party of Fremont which first undertook to cross the Rocky mountains is Thomas E. Breckinridge. He is of the lineage of the celebrated Kentucky family, but was born near St. Louis seventy-one years ago. From 1845 until 1849 he was a follower of the great pathfinder of the Rockies, engaging in three expeditions and taking an active part freed California from the dominion of Mexico.

In the course of some parliamentary reminiscences Sir George Osborne Morgan says that the most brilliant speaker the House f Commons has known for several generations was Disraeli, who was a master of the art of phrase-making. Nowadays there are fewer displays of ornate oratory, and the general tone of debate is more business-like than formerly. "The boldest man would scarcely venture now to cite the familiar line of Horace or Virgil," s There has been a similar decline of rhetorical flourish in American oratory.

Judge Oliver Wendell Holmes was recently the guest of Lord Chief Justice Russell at a dinner party in London. In commenting on the fact the London Law Journal said: "The son of the genial 'Autocrat' is among the best equipped lawyers on either side of the Atlantic. His book on 'The Common Law, which he wrote several years ago, is one of the most crudite legal works ever published, and has enjoyed a large circulation in England as well as in America. The vantageously have a greater knowledge of one another, and the growing intimacy sign of the times.'

The Same... Old Sarsaparilla.

That's Ayer's. The same old sarsaparilla as it was made and sold by Dr. J. C. Ayer 50 years ago. In the laboratory it is different. There modern appliances lend speed to skill and experience. But the sarsaparilla is the same old sarsaparilla that made the record-50 years of cures. Why don't we better it? Well, we're much in the condition of the Bishop and the raspberry: "Doubtless," he said, "God might have made a better berry. But doubtless, also, He never did." Why don't we better the sarsaparilla? We can't. We are using the same old plant that cured the Indians and the Spaniards. It has not been bettered. And since we make sarsaparilla compound out of sarsaparilla plant, we see no way of improvement. Of course, if we were making some secret chemical compound we might But we're not. We're making the same old sarsaparilla to cure the same old diseases. You can tell it's the same old sarsaparilla because it works the same old cures. It's the sovereign blood purifier, and-it's Auers.
